FRANKFORT, April 6.—At dawn today the French Tricolor flew over the Town Hall of Frankfort and Darmstadt. During the day the French troops occupied the towns of Homburg, Hanau and Dieburg.

The operation was one of the most quietly conducted and most wonderful ever carried out by one army in another country. It was half an hour after midnight when the men of the Third Regiment of Moroccan Rifles moved forward from the advance posts. Rain was falling and in the darkness the movement of the men was silent and mechanical. They were preceded by half a dozen little tanks, which bumped and snorted on their way.

The march from the outposts of the bridgehead into Frankfort is not long, but it occupied some time, as cavalry screens were at the same time being sent north, south and east of the city. It was still dark when the outskirts of the city were reached and the houses were still shuttered and the people asleep. The rolling of the tanks may have awakened them, but they gave no sign.

Undisturbed and imperturbable, the Moroccans marched down the long Mainzerlandstrasse in full fighting kit, with helmets and rifles ready for action. Once inside the city the column began to break up, some men being told off to occupy the Town Hall, others the Post Office, others the station and barracks. As quietly as they had entered troops carried out these operations, and Frankfort woke up to find itself in French hands.

People Appear Indifferent.

It was not long, however, till the news of what was afoot spread, and by 8 o'clock the streets were crowded with the inhabitants. For the most part they were very indifferent. There were neither scowls nor cheers. Just as the Rhineland people did when the march forward took place after the armistice, they crowded around tanks and field kitchens, examining everything and commenting. The children liked it all, and marched in front of the companies of soldiers everywhere, shouting.

Among the working people there is an element which seems considerably relieved rather than otherwise, for they hope that the move of the French will check any danger of a massacre of the Reds in the Ruhr Basin.

There was no hostile demonstration of any kind whatever and the people on the whole seemed anxious to be helpful, acting as guides to the French officers and troops. By 10 o'clock the walls of the city were placarded everywhere with General Degoutte's proclamations, explaining that France's advance was the result of the infringement of the treaty in the Ruhr district by the German Government and the Reichswehr. The proclamation further explained what restrictions would be placed on the population and forbade public meetings and demonstrations. Local officials will not be in any way interfered with.

When the French troops entered there were none of the Reichswehr left in the city. Most of them left two days ago and the rear guard escaped hurriedly out of the town last evening when it became known that the French had decided to advance.

During the last few days the control of the city has been undertaken by the Sicherheitpolizei (Security Police), who to the number of 600, for the most part clothed in fantastic uniforms, have been arrested and shut up in the infantry barracks under guard. In the barracks and in the billets of the so-called police a very large number of rifles, machine guns and hand grenades have been found, and the discoveries justify the strength of the guard outside the barrack door, which is covered by a machine gun.

City Heavily Guarded.

During the early morning the railway station was occupied by Moroccan troops, and later the engineers took it over. The whole place is surrounded and the stalwart Senegalese are posted outside every signal box and at every crossing and bridge. In the central square of the city the same Senegalese are posted, and all the main streets are

Essen Is Taken by German Government Troops; Position of the Reds Now Said to be Desperate

ESSEN, April 6 (Associated Press).—Reichswehr forces marched into Essen from two sides of the town this morning.

PARIS, April 6.—Advices received from British sources at Solingen at 10 o'clock today painted the situation of the Reds as desperate. It was said the greatest confusion existed in their ranks.

BERLIN, April 6 (Associated Press).—The northern section of the Ruhr region, including Duisburg, Mülheim, Dortmund, Hamborn, Sterkrade, Oberhausen and Schwerte, according to newspaper reports, is in the hands of General Kabitsch, operating from Wesel.

The disarmament of the population is progressing, but only where the Reichswehr are in full control. The desperate character of the fighting is indicated by the report that among the killed have been a number of armed women. It is stated that only the employment of artillery and of armored cars secured the victory. It is again stated that Russian officers are active on and behind the Red front.

BERLIN SURPRISED; FEELING IS BITTER

Liberal Press Had Argued the French Would Not Act—Radicals Delighted.

QUICK RELEASE EXPECTED

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, April 6.—Though the occupation of Frankfort, Darmstadt and Hanau was predicted by the French press, it came as a surprise here. The bitterness was very great among the people as well as in Government circles when the news reached Berlin today. Most of the morning papers had refused to take the French threat seriously because the Germans argue: How can we carry out the Peace Treaty if France seeks to prevent the restoring of peace in the one district that furnishes fuel to all our factories and many in France? How can we pay compensation if France makes production impossible in Germany? How can we disarm as France demands if France's action and attitude actually have the effect of protecting those who have hoarded arms in secret arsenals? The sober French people surely realize all this, and Millerand will not be swayed by the Chauvinists and Militarists.

Thus argued the Socialist, Centrist and Democratic press, but Theodor Wolff in the Tageblatt for once joined the chorus of reactionary mistrust against France, intimating that the occupation of the cities named was quite likely because Millerand was anxious to show he was quite as strong a man as Barthou. Originally, said Herr Wolff, the French idea was to permit the chaos in the Ruhr district to grow until the tortured population would call for French help and thus give Marshal Foch the longed-for chance to occupy the Ruhr district himself. But this plan, according to Herr Wolff, was not approved by the Allies' High Council.

All the newspapers now raise the question whether the High Council has approved the occupation of the cities and are inclined to the negative, though it is not thought unlikely that England may have given tacit consent for some concessions made by France in Asia Minor.

Deny Passing Troop Limit.

At the Foreign Office it was asserted that Articles XLIII. and XLIV. of the Peace Treaty gave France no right of occupation, because the supplementary protocol of Aug. 6, 1919, justified Germany in employing 20,000 troops in the neutral zone if necessary, which number had not been reached yet.

Chancellor Müller, who is also head of the Foreign Office, told the press representatives he was convinced that America, England and Italy had not consented to the French occupation, which at any rate could last only a few days, the Government having positive news from Paris that the French troops would be withdrawn as soon as Millerand was convinced the articles and protocol mentioned has not been violated by Germany.

Unfortunately the robber bands terrorizing the Ruhr district already regard France as their protector, and are beginning to fly to the occupied zone, carrying large quantities of war material and food stores along.

All the Bolshevist elements in Germany greet the French occupation with great satisfaction, hoping that chaos will result or at least a severe undermining of the Government's authority.

In several large factories of the Moabit district where Communists, Independents and Bolshevists are in the majority among the laborers the news was enthusiastically cheered during the dinner hour. Tonight both the Communists and Independent leaders will gather to discuss how the Red brethren of the Ruhr district should be aided against the Government, and whether

JAPANESE TROOPS SEIZE VLADIVOSTOK

REPLY TO RUSSIAN ATTACK

VLADIVOSTOK, April 5 (Associated Press).—Japanese troops today occupied Vladivostok after eight hours of severe fighting in all parts of the city.

Some of the officials of the revolutionary contingent already have been arrested and deported. All Russians have been disarmed.

Throughout last night the Japanese fought with rifles, machine guns, grenades and small artillery in all portions of the city. Their incessant firing met little opposition, as the Russians were taken by surprise, the Japanese moves toward occupation having been unexpected by the party in power.

Many Russians escaped into the hill country behind the city, whence they had come two months ago, when the All-Russian Government of Admiral Kolchak fell before the attacks of a revolutionary party.

Early today the Japanese launched their attack in the Korean quarter, which they occupied. Later they marched Korean and Russian prisoners, tied with ropes, through many of the streets of the city.

United States to Make No Protest.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 6.—The purpose of the occupation of Vladivostok by Japanese military forces under General Takyanagi is stated to be to protect Japanese interests, to safeguard the principal Japanese base of supplies in Siberia at Vladivostok, to ward off the threat of Bolshevism which has been advancing steadily toward the Pacific with the Bolsheviki forces through Siberia and also to remove the menace to Manchuria and Korea which lie to the east and west of Vladivostok.

No representations have been made by the American Government against Japan's action and it is not understood that there will be any. Japan's vital interest from the point of view of national defense in the maintenance of troops in Siberia is recognized by this Government.

Japanese Say Russians Attacked.

WASHINGTON, April 6 (Associated Press).—The Japanese attack on Vladivostok which gave them control of the city resulted from "threatened and aggressive acts of a portion of the Russian army," according to an official dispatch from the Japanese War Department received today by Major General Kazutsugu Inouye, the Japanese Military Attaché here.

"According to a proclamation by the Japanese Government under date of March 31 negotiations between the Japanese army and the Russian authorities at Vladivostok were progressing very favorably with a view to agreeing upon a program of co-operation, whereupon on April 4 the sudden aggressive action of the Russian army forced a battle with the Japanese troops at Vladivostok, Nikolsk and Khabarovsk.

"At Vladivostok the Japanese succeeded in disarming both the Russian army and navy on the morning of April 5, but at Nikolsk and Khabarovsk the fighting is still in progress. The Japanese commander proclaimed that the disturbance was provoked by the threatened and aggressive acts of a portion of the Russian army and that his disarming the Russians had no motive other than to maintain order and peace. The Russian authorities are now being negotiated with in an endeavor to arrive at a harmonious future policy."

Leaders of Kansas Strikers Defy Judge's Order Calling Them Before the Industrial Court

PITTSBURG, Kansas, April 6.—Five officials of District No. 14, United Mine Workers of America, late today refused to obey a summons to appear before the Kansas Industrial Relations Court upon an order issued by Judge A. J. Curran of the District Court. President Alexander Howat, Vice President August Dorchy, Secretary Thomas Harvey, Traveling Auditor Thomas Cunningham and Auditor R. B. Foster were the five men. Mr. Howat made the following statement tonight:

"We officials of the United Mine Workers of District No. 14 do not recognize this industrial court. Let its members go down into the mines and dig coal and learn the business the same as we did. If they do not know the coal mining business they are unfitted for the position and are wholly incompetent. Instead of a court composed of politicians and corporation lawyers, drawing a salary of $5,000 a year, the men should have been chosen from the industrial ranks as the judges who are competent to deal with the questions in hand.

"We may be dragged into court, but we absolutely refuse to answer any questions, as we do not recognize the court's authority or existence."

The summonses were issued following a strike of coal miners in two Kansas counties. Mr. Howat declared yesterday between 1,500 and 2,000 miners had struck "of their own volition" in protest against the recent wage award of President Wilson's Coal Commission.

Warrants for the arrest of Howat and the other miners' officials on a charge of contempt of court will be issued tomorrow morning.

TOPEKA, Kan., April 6.—"The Industrial Court began the investigation at Pittsburg at the request of members of Mr. Howat's union," said Governor Allen today. "The law is plain and if Mr. Howat declines to recognize it, no joint debate with Mr. Howat is required."

Governor Allen said that no prosecution of miners because of the walkouts of yesterday and today were contemplated.

ENRIGHT TO RESIGN, SAYS HIGH OFFICIAL

Neither Mayor Nor Police Commissioner Will Discuss Persistent Rumors.

NEW VICE INQUIRY OPENS

Commissioner of Accounts, on Hylan Order, Takes Up Straton Charges.

That Police Commissioner Richard E. Enright soon would be out of the Hylan administration was rumored persistently yesterday. A flat statement that Commissioner Enright was likely to resign within a matter of days was made by a high official. Neither Mayor Hylan nor his Police Commissioner would submit to questioning on the resignation forecast.

Mayor Hylan directed Commissioner of Accounts David Hirshfield to make an investigation of the charges of the Rev. Dr. John Roach Straton, pastor of the Calvary Baptist Church, that vice and whisky drinking were flagrant in some of the biggest public resorts of the city. The Mayor would not make public his letter to Commissioner Hirshfield, directing an investigation of the Straton charges against the police and calling for recommendations for the improvement of conditions in restaurants and dance halls.

Even before Mayor Hylan ordered the Hirshfield investigation, it became known that he was greatly disturbed by the Easter sermon of Dr. Straton, who made a general arraignment of moral conditions in many big public amusement places, and asserted that from the brazenness with which soliciting and whisky-selling went on it was a moral certainty that these places received police protection.

The Straton sermon and the raid on Peter's restaurant which was attacked in the sermon followed closely upon the assertion of District Attorney Swann that, while Mayor Hylan apparently was intent on having a clean administration, with strict enforcement of the law, he was being "fooled" by his subordinates. Mr. Swann went on to criticise several of the acts of Police Commissioner Enright, without mentioning him by name.

Hirshfield Starts Quickly.

The investigation by the Commissioner of Accounts, already begun, is one of many. The Federal Grand Jury will hear the Rev. Dr. Straton today on his tour of big restaurants and dance halls where he was shocked, according to his Easter sermon, by the number of intoxicated men and women he saw, the vicious character of the dancing and the activities of unescorted women. On the following day Dr. Straton will appear before the regular County Grand Jury for March. He and the two companions of his rounds will probably go at a later date before the Extraordinary Grand Jury with their sensational narrative.

Commissioner of Accounts Hirshfield, although already heavily burdened with the investigations of the patrolmen's and firemen's associations, of the traction muddle on Staten Island, the Bronx Zoo, the Metropolitan Museum of Art, the American Museum of Natural History, Assistant District Attorney James E. Smith and other subjects, started with his investigation promptly.

Commissioner Issues Statement.

Commissioner Hirshfield refused to answer questions, but gave out a typewritten statement, in which he said:

"I have called for a report from the Police Commissioner and from Inspectors McDonald and Henry on the dancing and eating places referred to in his sermon last Sunday by Dr. Straton, and have also had a conversation over the telephone with Inspector McDonald, wherein he phoned me that his men had visited these particular places for the last few weeks and had found nothing objectionable, and that the raid last evening was for selling liquor in violation of the Eighteenth Amendment.

"I have also written to Dr. Straton and expect as soon as I receive the police reports to examine under oath these officers, Dr. Straton and the young men who accompanied him on the investigating tour and make a report thereon to the Mayor as directed."

Asks Straton's Aid.

Commissioner Hirshfield also made public a letter he sent to Dr. Straton, in which he said:

"It is well known that Mayor Hylan is very anxious that our city be gov-

WOMEN FLY OVER BRITISH EMBASSY

EMBASSY DISPLAYS BANNER

Attaches Show Humorous Appreciation of Pickets' Efforts—Arrested Women Refuse Bail.

WASHINGTON, April 6 (Associated Press).—Barred from the streets surrounding the British Embassy, the pro-Irish women pickets today took to the air.

From a flying machine they rained down packages of leaflets, espousing the Irish cause, and challenged the police to come up and stop them. There being no sky policemen in the national capital, no arrests were made. Four land pickets, however, who ventured out earlier in the day, were arrested and held in the House of Detention.

The bombing expedition attracted plenty of attention, but it registered no hits. A low visibility and squally winds scattered the "bombs" everywhere but on the embassy.

The propaganda leaflets whirled in a tiny snowstorm about the windows of Dolly Madison's house, half a mile off, circled Andrew Jackson's rocking horse in Lafayette Square, were almost wafted into the White House grounds by the gusty squalls of early April, and showered down on groups of romping children in Dupont Circle.

Evidently somebody in the embassy thought the pickets deserving of some reward for the nervy effort, for late in the afternoon, as official Washington was streaming homeward and the Diplomatic Corps was out for a promenade on Connecticut Avenue, there appeared in a front window of the embassy one of the banners previously captured from the militants.

"Down with British Militarism" was the legend it blazoned out from the old midvictorian mansion all evening. It furnished the capital with a topic for discussion of British humor.

Government Takes it Seriously.

But quite behind the curtain of good-natured banter, which has accompanied the exploits of the pickets so far, is something more serious, to which the Government is giving careful consideration.

The International angle of the affair, officials feel, make it of more moment than the demonstrations of the Militant Suffragists, which were considered quite important a year ago.

The resumption of the picketing was marked early in the day by the arrest of four women pickets on charges of violating a Federal statute, making it a felony to offer an insult to diplomatic representatives of a foreign Government.

The women who were arrested gave their names as Mrs. Honor Walsh, 936 East Shelton Avenue, Germantown, Pa.; Miss Elaine Barrie, 938 North Twentieth Street, Philadelphia; Miss Helen O'Brien, 5,227 Delmar Road, St. Louis, Mo., and Miss Kathleen O'Brien, 1,644 South Twenty-sixth Street, Philadelphia.

The arrests followed quickly the decision of John F. Laskey, United States attorney, that continued picketing would provoke application of the Federal statute.

The first detachment of women picketed the embassy at noon, bearing banners. Before a crowd had opportunity to collect, a police patrol dashed up. Captain Robert Emmett Doyle and Inspector Daniel Sullivan asked them if they were aware they were picketing the British Embassy. Both pickets smiled and nodded their assent.

They were informed they were violating a Federal statute, and would be arrested unless they desisted. The women resumed the picketing, and policewomen took their banners and arrested them.

As soon as word of the arrests reached headquarters of the pickets another pair with fresh banners were dispatched to the embassy. The police repeated the arrests, the land pickets desisted, and the aerial forces came into action.

Women Refuse to Give Bail.

Mr. Laskey placed the bond of each arrested woman at $1,000. It was not furnished and they were locked up for a hearing in Police Court tomorrow.

JOHNSON AND HOOVER BEATEN IN THIS STATE; BOTH PARTIES' DELEGATES UNINSTRUCTED; JOHNSON HAS 42,733 LEAD IN MICHIGAN

La Follette Ticket Seems Beaten in Wisconsin; Milwaukee Has Re-elected Socialist Mayor

Special to The New York Times.

MILWAUKEE, Wis., April 6.—Uninstructed delegates to the Republican National Convention made a strong start in the Presidential primary today running up a total which the La Follette faction will have difficulties in overcoming.

Gov. E. L. Philipp, George A. West, Otto Bosshard and William W. Hatton running as uninstructed have heavy leads over the La Follette slate, E. J. Gross, James J. Blane, M. James Thompson and Henry Krumrey.

La Follette's men received a surprisingly large vote in Milwaukee, but the Socialists are accountable for this. They had no Presidential ticket in the field and apparently their support went to La Follette on his war record.

There was no contest in the Democratic Party and there were no Presidential names on the ballot. Of those written in La Follette and Hoover lead.

Daniel Hoan, Socialist, was re-elected Mayor of Milwaukee by a majority of about 3,500 over Clifton P. Williams, Non-Partisan, but it is not likely that Hoan can pull through the other Socialist candidates with him.

JOHNSON'S LEAD BIG IN MICHIGAN VOTE

His Plurality of 52,861 Over Wood in Detroit Swings the State.

HOOVER LEADS DEMOCRATS

Margin Over Edwards Is 4,466 on Incomplete Returns of the Primary.

Special to The New York Times.

DETROIT, April 6.—Senator Hiram Johnson's popular plurality over Major General Leonard Wood in the Michigan Republican Presidential primary election on Monday probably will be close to 45,000 when the returns are complete.

Additional returns have had little effect on the heavy lead which Johnson amassed in Wayne County (Detroit) and it is regarded as improbable that the final result will vary greatly from the present estimate.

A discovery late tonight of an error in computing the returns of the votes given to the Democratic Presidential primary candidates changed the complexion of the race and indicated that Hoover and not Edwards was leading the field.

Revised figures at midnight show that Hoover has a lead of 4,466 over Edwards. They are as follows in 1,472 precincts out of 2,421 in the State:

Hoover, 17,662.
Edwards, 13,196.
Bryan, 11,586.
McAdoo, 10,934.
Palmer, 7,570.

With 1,645 precincts out of the State's total of 2,421 accounted for, the vote for the four leading Republican candidates stands:

Lowden, 43,965.
Hoover, 40,208.

Johnson carried six of the thirteen State Congressional districts, and was but little behind Wood in the other seven districts. The standing of the candidates in the districts was approximately as follows:

First District (Detroit)—Johnson wins by 52,861.
Second—Johnson leading by about 100 votes.
Third—Wood leading by 3,000.
Fourth—Wood leading by 1,700.
Fifth—Wood leading by 900.
Sixth—Johnson leading by 2,200.
Seventh—Johnson leading by 2,300.
Eighth—Wood leading by 150.
Ninth—Wood leading by 1,000.
Tenth—Johnson leading by 1,200.
Eleventh—Wood leading by 1,500.
Twelfth—Wood leading by 1,500.
Thirteenth—Johnson wins by large plurality.

Twenty-six delegates will be chosen by district conventions and four delegates at large are to be chosen at the coming State Convention, making thirty in all. They will be instructed to vote for Johnson. In a statement issued today Burt D. Cady, Chairman of the Republican State Committee, declares that he expects the delegates to stick to Johnson to the finish.

Edwards's chief backing was in Wayne County and he also ran well in Grand Rapids, Saginaw and other populous centres.

Ex-Governor Fred M. Warner is about 6,000 votes ahead of Oscar Marx of Detroit for nomination as Republican National Committeeman.

The returns indicate an unusually light Socialist vote in the State, as Debs had no rival for the Presidential nomination of that party.

The complete Detroit vote was:

Republican—Johnson, 69,004; Wood,

CAPITAL DISSECTS JOHNSON'S VICTORY

"OLD GUARD" IS SILENT

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 6.—The result of the primary in Michigan, in the opinion of political observers of both parties, gave an indication of the drift in the contests for the Presidential nominations and, according to some Republicans, showed the views of Michigan voters on the Peace Treaty.

Republican Senators, and others held that two outstanding contenders had developed in the race, Johnson and Hoover, while Wood's boom, which had been gaining steadily, had received a check. Johnson's victory, his supporters held, would put him to the fore in coming primary elections.

The Johnson leaders, notably Senator Borah, assert that the vote showed that the electorate was opposed to the League of Nations and approved the fight Mr. Johnson made against it. In this connection they comment on the fact that Attorney General Palmer, who supported the President's treaty position, and was the only Democratic candidate to speak in the State, ran far behind Hoover. Mr. Hoover, they add, recently declared for ratification of the treaty with reservations.

Greater emphasis, however, is laid on the alleged big financial campaign of General Wood, which, many think, did not meet with the approval of the voters, who had the Newberry trial freshly before them. Supporters of General Wood admit that Borah's statement concerning expenditures of money by Wood's managers was one of the causes of the General's defeat.

Johnson, it is also pointed out, won favor in Michigan by his fight to have the Michigan troops returned from Siberia. Voluntary committees of mothers and fathers who had sons in Siberia were organized in his behalf.

Much significance is seen in the result in the Democratic primary where McAdoo is third and Palmer last, according to late returns. Some Democrats say that Palmer's showing has eliminated him from the race, which they think has narrowed down to McAdoo and Hoover.

Senator Borah said:

"The determining factors in the Michigan campaign were: First, Johnson's strong personality. The people saw him, heard him and believed in him. Second, campaign expenditures. The people saw on every hand an intolerable use of money. They were thoroughly aroused and they rendered their verdict. Third, the League of Nations. My experience with my audiences convinced me that this was the great determining factor in the campaign in favor of Johnson."

Senator Kenyon, who also spoke for Johnson, said he "felt it was coming, but did not know it would come so hard."

Senators Lodge, Smoot, Watson and New declined to comment on the result. Most of the leading Democrats likewise were reticent.

Senator Kirby of Arkansas remarked that the vote showed that the American people would not have a military man for President. As to Mr. Hoover, Senator Kirby said: "The vote for him isn't significant. We Democrats have no candidates in the field and won't have until we hear from the President. The boys are just playing round."

Senator Pomerene thought the Michigan vote would assure his colleague, Harding, the delegation from Ohio.

Senator Ashurst said to Senator Lodge: "We Democrats now have a ticket you can't beat—Hoover and Edwards. Ham sandwich in one hand, glass of beer in the other."

Homer Cummings, Chairman of the Democratic National Committee, discussing the vote with correspondents, said: "There are now three Republican candidates for President—Senator Johnson is one, Mr. Hoover is another and the rest are Henry Cabot Lodge." The Chairman thought the Edwards vote a vote for an idea, rather than a person.

Mr. Cummings also remarked:

"It shows where Mr. Hoover's real friends are."

N. Y. REGULARS CLAIM 3 TO 1

MYRICK ALSO IS DEFEATED

Bitter Campaign Waged in the Seventeenth Congressional District by Women.

BENNETT IS SNOWED UNDER

Organization candidates made a clean sweep at yesterday's primary election in New York State for the election of delegates and alternates to the Republican and Democratic national conventions. As a result of the primary, uninstructed delegates will be sent to both conventions.

Candidates favoring the nomination of Herbert C. Hoover who ran against Republican organization selections in the Seventeenth Congressional District in Manhattan, the only test of Hoover strength in the entire State, were completely snowed under. One of these candidates was Miss Mabel Choate, daughter of the late Joseph H. Choate, but she shared the fate of her running mate, Julian S. Myrick. Both Hoover candidates made a determined fight against Albert J. Berwin and Herbert Parsons, but they lost by about 3 to 1. Miss Choate especially made a spirited contest in the district.

The same fate overtook the candidates put up by the supporters of United States Senator Hiram W. Johnson. In the eight Congressional districts in Brooklyn and in four Manhattan districts Johnson candidates opposed the regular Republican organization candidates, but every one went down to defeat, losing by a ratio of about three to one, although in some individual districts they ran slightly better. Former State Senator William M. Bennett, a Johnson candidate and the only one to oppose the organization delegates at large, lost in every county in the State and was slaughtered in New York City.

The greatest interest in yesterday's primary centred in the fight made by the Hoover candidates, it being admitted that the showing made here would have a material effect upon his candidacy for the Republican Presidential nomination. Admitting his defeat, the Hoover managers sought consolation by stating that the campaign was run by inexperienced politicians and that on the whole he made a good showing.

With eight election districts missing out of a total of 116, the combined vote of the Hoover candidates was 4,621, while the combined vote of the organization candidates was 11,075.

In 75 election districts out of a total of 116 in the Seventeenth Congressional District the vote was: Parsons, 3,648; Berwin, 3,590; Myrick, 1,368; Miss Choate, 1,436. Miss Choate carried only four election districts, the Sixth of the Eighteenth Assembly, the Seventh of the Eighteenth, the Twenty-seventh of the Fifteenth and the Twenty-fourth of the Fifteenth. She lost her own election district, the Sixteenth of the Fifteenth Assembly. There the vote was: Miss Choate, 29; Myrick, 28; Berwin, 82, and Parsons, 75.

Hoover Headquarters Gloomy.

The Hoover headquarters in the Vanderbilt Hotel were steeped in gloom when the early returns indicated that their candidates for delegates were totally lost. The Hoover candidates for alternates made an even poorer showing.

It was admitted by the Hoover managers that the Hoover candidates were beaten by about 5 to 2. Watson Washburn, head of the Hoover committee, which waged the fight in the Seventeenth Congressional District, gave this explanation of the result:

"In view of the fact that the Hoover movement was started by a few people with no political experience and no backing, a 2 to 5 result against a strong organization shows that the sentiment for Hoover is overwhelmingly strong, and he is by far the leading candidate here against any other."

Julian Myrick also blamed the defeat on the inexperience of the workers in charge of the campaign.

"I think we made an extremely good showing for Hoover, especially under the circumstances," said Mr. Myrick. "The workers were inexperienced in politics and labored for an ideal. It was made to appear that it was Hoover against the field. We not only had to combat the regular organization, which is at all times strong, but we had to fight the people who were for General Wood, as well as for other candidates. We feel that we made a wonderful showing."

U. S. Senator William M. Calder made the best showing among the "Big Four" candidates. With 405 election districts missing out of a total of 2,571 in the entire city, he polled 62,079 votes against 59,214 for Nathan L. Miller; 59,468 for Senator Wadsworth and 57,608 for William Boyce Thompson. Bennett polled 21,407. There was little evidence that the women took revenge upon Senator Wadsworth for his attitude against women's suffrage.

The primary was one of the quietest ever held in the State. Little interest was manifested anywhere except in the few Manhattan disricts where there were contests. There being few contests among the Democrats, and these having to do only with State and country committeemen, the apathy among Democratic voters was especially noticeable.

Outside of the fight put up by the Hoover delegates, the only other interest was in the contest made by the candidates favorable to Senator Johnson. The Johnson defeat was complete. There were eight Johnson candidates running in Brooklyn, four in Manhattan and three up-States.

Johnson Beaten Three to One.

In practically every district the organization candidates beat the Johnson men by three to one.

A sample of how the Johnson candidates fared is shown in the Eleventh Congressional District, where F. A. Fleck and Edward F. Gillece opposed Chauncey M. Depew and George Cromwell. In 25 election districts out of 76 the vote was: Depew 384, Cromwell 383, Fleck 112 and Gillece 112.

Senator Calder received the high vote for delegates-at-large. In 1,325 election districts out of a total of 2,571 in the city the vote was: Calder, 31,930; Wadsworth, 30,668; Nathan L. Miller, 30,501; William Boyce Thompson, 29,540, and William M. Bennett, 11,501. Bennett made his principal drive against Thompson.

The showing the Johnson candidates made in Brooklyn is reflected in the Seventh Congressional District where a local organization fight between Colonel Jacob Livingston and Senator Calder brought out a comparatively large vote. William Boardman and Michael J. Dady, the organization candidates, received 1,005 and 1,039 votes respectively, while Wagner and Walsh, the Johnson candidates, received respectively 351 and 352 votes. In the Fifth District, Brooklyn, the combined organization vote was 9,850 and the Johnson vote, 3,303.

In the Nineteenth District, Manhattan, Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler received 5,037 votes and Charles D. Hilles 4,832. The Johnson candidate, Joseph Beihilf, received 1,257.

The only interest in the primary on the Democratic side was a fight for leadership in the Eleventh Assembly District between James J. Hines and State Senator Abraham Kaplan. Hines had the Tammany organization against him, but he defeated Kaplan for member of the State Committee by a vote of 2,512, against 742, with only thirteen election districts missing. Hines elected 420 out of 450 County Committeemen, which assures his control of the leadership of the district.

Voting was light throughout the city, except in the districts in Manhattan where contests were scheduled and where fights more or less spectacular were staged. Supporters of William M. Bennett were particularly active in Harlem, Washington Heights and certain parts of Brooklyn. Even his contest against the Republican organization members of the "Big Four" failed, however, to stir up enthusiasm.

There were no contests for delegates in the Democratic primary, which caused a light vote. The only exceptions were in the Eleventh and Fourteenth Assembly Districts, where Tammany leadership and State committee contests brought out much more than the normal primary vote.

The voting in Brooklyn was light, more interest being taken in the contests for State and county committeemen than in the election of delegates. Although none of the Brooklyn Republican leaders would be quoted last night, the belief among them was general, after the returns from a number of districts came in, that the Johnson delegates would not carry any of the eight Congressional districts, although they made contests in all of them.

Bennett Cuts Into Wadsworth.

Early returns showed that Bennett was reciving an average of thirty-five votes in each hundred cast and it was predicted by the leaders that his average when the full vote was recorded would be about 35 per cent. of the entire vote cast. It was evident that Bennett was pulling most of his votes from Senator Wadsworth, who ran behind the other three delegates at large. The leaders were certain that women generally were cutting Wadsworth, but that there was no doubt all the organization candidates would win. Senator William M. Calder ran far ahead of the other three members of the Big Four, as was expected in Brooklyn, where he lives.

A contest between Joseph F. Thompson and J. Frank Atterbury for the Chairmanship of the Richmond County Republican Committee brought out a good Republican vote in Staten Island. In the Bronx, the vote was comparatively light. There were no contests for delegates in that borough and only one local contest among the Democrats and two among the Republicans.

Women Watch the Count.

Women took a particularly active part as watchers after the polls had closed. Because of the charges made by Mr. Bennett, who cited his experience in the Republican Mayoralty primary in 1917, and because of the belief of those at the head of the Hoover Seventeenth Congressional Committee that the Republican organization might use its machinery to their disadvantage, hundreds of women volunteered to watch the count.

In many dictricts a Hoover or a Bennett woman watcher was alone with an organization group of election district officials. There were few complaints that the election officials were doing their work unfairly.

An interesting feature of the Republican contest in the Nineteenth Congressional District was the vote in the Third Election District of the Thirteenth Assembly District. This is the home district of Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, a candidate for the Republican Presidential nomination. When the vote was counted it showed that Butler and Charles D. Hilles, the other Republican organization candidate, had received 119 votes, while Joseph Beihilf, who made a vigorous campaign, received only four votes. One reason ascribed for the heavy Butler majority in his home district was the fact that the woman leader in the district is Dr. Butler's daughter, Sarah S. Butler. She worked hard and succeeded in getting out the enrolled Republicans of the district.

Ex-Senator Bennett made a bad showing throughout the State. In practically every county he ran far behind the organization candidates and in a number of districts he did not receive a single vote. In Steuben County, however, he came near beating United States Senator Wadsworth, who carried the county by a small margin. Although a small vote was polled, many women apparently resented his position on the suffrage question.

There being no contests among the Democrats, that party's vote was proportionately smaller than the Republican vote.

John J. Daly, present leader of the Fifth Assembly District, was an easy winner in the only Democratic contest in the Bronx, electing 259 members of the County Committee, to 96 for Bernard I. Lipshay. In the Eighth Assembly District, Manhattan, Solomon Goldenkranz, the Tammany leader, was reelected a member of the Democratic State Committee by a majority of 1,020 over Meyer Greenberg.

RETURNS FROM UP-STATE.

River Counties Elect Organization Delegates by Big Margins.

ALBANY, April 6.—Early returns tonight from the primaries in Albany County indicate that the Republican "Big Four" would receive an overwhelming vote over William M. Bennett of New York, independent candidate for delegate, who would not average two votes to a district.

HUDSON—In a very light vote, Bennett practically was neglected here, and will not poll over 100 votes against 900 for the organization delegates.

CATSKILL—Less than two hundred votes were cast in Greene County today. It is indicated that Bennett will not receive over twenty-five.

MOUNT VERNON—About 4,850 votes were cast in Westchester and the four regular Republican candidates won over William Bennett by a ratio of over 6 to 1.

CORTLAND.—There was a light vote in Cortland County. The organization ticket won.

UTICA—William M. Bennett made a feeble showing in the primaries in Oneida County today. Republicans generally supported the "Big Four."

NEWBURGH—Partial returns from Orange County indicate the success of the regular Republican delegates at large by at least 2,000, Bennett having a comparatively small following. Indications show no attempt except in isolated instances of a concerted action to punish Wadsworth.

ELMIRA—In the lightest vote ever cast in the city under the primary system, William M. Bennett received only slight support in nearly every district.

SCHENECTADY—In all but one of the ninety-two election districts in Schenectady County, William M. Bennett was a poor fifth.

TROY—Primary returns show Bennett was given about 2,400 of the 14,500 Republican votes cast in Rensselaer County.

ITHACA—Bennett's candidacy had practically no effect on today's primary. In Tompkins County he got only a few votes.

DELHI—Returns from a few scattered districts indicate that only about 25 per cent. of the enrolled Republican vote was cast. Bennett received a very small proportion of this.

GLENS FALLS—Out of 3,800 votes cast William S. Bennett received about 200 in Warren County.

POUGHKEEPSIE—Voting was light in Poughkeepsie and throughout Dutchess County today. Although no figures are available it is believed the Republican "big four" will score an easy victory over William M. Bennett of New York.

BATH—Returns in a close contest between Wadsworth and Bennett for Republican delegate-at-large, concede Steuben County for Wadsworth by a very small vote.

RIVERHEAD—It was estimated tonight by Republican leaders of Suffolk County that Bennett would probably not receive over 200 votes for delegate-at-large. The women took little interest in the primaries.

MURPHY'S CHOICE IS BEATEN BY HINES

Tammany Leader in Eleventh Defeats Effort to Displace Him with Kaplan.

James J. Hines, Tammany leader of the Eleventh Assembly District, yesterday repelled successfully an attempt of the Fourteenth Street organization to displace him and defeated State Senator Abraham Kaplan for member of the Democratic State Committee by nearly four to one.

Mr. Hines was said to have incurred the displeasure of Charles F. Murphy, Tammany leader, by his affidavit in the litigation between Mr. Murphy and Louis N. Hartog over glucose contracts. Leading members of Tammany, including Thomas F. Smith, its Secretary, and John F. Galvin Commissioner of the Board of Water Supply, supported Senator Kaplan.

Mr. Hines quoted Mr. Murphy as having said that he must go, and declared that the result showed that Mr. Murphy must go. "They told me that Murphy said that I must get out," said Mr. Hines. "He did everything he could to defeat me, even to removing sixty Election Inspectors.

"The people voted and the result shows that Mr. Murphy was wrong. I say now what he said about me. He will have to get out."

An effigy of Charles F. Murphy in a coffin was carried in a parade of Mr. Hines's supporters, which started at 1 o'clock this morning, when practically complete returns showed that his majority over Senator Kaplan was 2,200. The procession formed in front of the Monongahela Club, 297 Manhattan Avenue, Mr. Hines's organization, and marched to the West Side Democratic Club, 235 West 150th Street, headquarters of the opposition. Mr. and Mrs. Hines headed the parade.

Returns from thirty-eight out of the forty-five election districts gave Mr. Hines 2,512 votes and Senator Kaplan 742. Mr. Hines claimed the election of 420 out of 450 members of the County Committee, insuring his retention as leader. The Fifth Election District, home of Assistant District Attorney Edwin P. Kilroe, mentioned as the organization choice to succeed Mr. Hines as leader, gave Hines seventy-five and Kaplan twenty-nine. Senator Kaplan's home election district, including the Ansonia Hotel, where he lives, gave Hines thirty-five and Kaplan thirteen.

The Tammany organization apparently suffered another setback in the Fourteenth Assembly District, where Alderman Thomas Farley was trying to get control of the county committee away from John V. Coggey and William H. Blaney, the present dual leaders. At the clubhouse of the Thomas Farley Association, it was said that Mr. Farley had 400 plurality over Mrs. Ella O'Donnell, the Coggey-Blaney candidate for member of the Democratic State Committee with six election districts missing, and had elected a majority of the county committee, which would insure his election as district leader.

At the Wyandotte Club, headquarters of Mr. Coggey, it was said that the vote was close and that the result would not be known definitely until this morning.

The Republican New York county organization defeated the only two State committee and leadership contests, which were made by negroes in the Nineteenth and Twenty-first Assembly Districts, both in Harlem. John J. Lyons won easily for State committeeman in the Nineteenth, defeating Joseph L. Pritchard, Secretary of the United Civic League, a negro organization. Robert S. Toney, another negro, was beaten for the State committee by Robert S. Conklin, who had a majority of more than 1,100, with six election districts missing. In neither district was the control of the local organization changed.

Mr. Conklin said that the Republicans of the two districts had supported the organization loyally and said that opposition was confined to a comparatively small section of each district.

There was apparently one organization upset among the Brooklyn Republicans. In the First Assembly District, D. Harry Ralston, who is opposed to the nomination of State Controller Eugene M. Travis for Governor and is against the county organization headed by Jacob A. Livingston, defeated Charles M. Hall, with a plurality of about 400 with six election districts missing.

In the Sixth Brooklyn District, Dr. Lester D. Volk, another anti-Travis man, was defeated by R. L. Gledhill, who was backed by the Livingston organization. Gledhill received 1,122 votes to 1,066 for Volk. John Henigin, the present leader, polled 513 votes.

In the other Brooklyn districts, where there were Republican contests for the State Committee, the organization candidates were successful. The winners included Marcus B. Campbell in the Second District, Richard H. Laimbeer, Jr., in the Third, John S. Gaynor in the Fourth, Jesse D. Moore in the Thirteenth, Warren G. Price in the Eighteenth, Jacob Bartscherer in the Nineteenth, William Schnitzpan in the Twentieth, Jacob A. Livingston in the Twenty-second and Walter D. Ludden in the Twenty-third.

In the Sixth Assembly District, the Bronx, John J. Knewitz, former Republican County Chairman, elected seventy-one out of seventy-four members of the County Committee, as district leader. In the Seventh Assembly District, of the Bronx, Michael J. Regan was elected to the Republican State Committee by a majority of 450 over Frank V. Barnes.

SWEET WILL NOT RUN AGAIN FOR ASSEMBLY

Speaker's Announcement Taken to Mean He Will Seek Nomination for Governor.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, April 6.—Speaker Sweet announced today that he would not again be a candidate for the Assembly. In well-informed circles this statement is regarded as merely preliminary to a later statement that he will be a candidate for the Republican nomination for Governor in the primaries next Fall.

Since the Speaker achieved his victory of ridding the Assembly of its Socialist members he has been assured by men of prominence and conservatism that he would have their support, moral and financial, as a candidate for Governor.

On the other hand, the Speaker has active opposition of the strongest kind, both among Republican leaders and the rank and file of the party in New York City, and in some industrial sections out of the city, and the politically wise are predicting that he would meet certain defeat in the primaries.

When asked whether he would become a candidate for the Governorship, Speaker Sweet said he did not care to say anything about that.

The Speaker added that the first person to ask him whether he expected to be a candidate for Speaker another year was Lieut. Col. Theodore Roosevelt. Colonel Roosevelt has been talked of as a candidate for Lieutenant Governor this Fall. In view of what the Speaker said, it is thought here that the Colonel will be a candidate for Speaker of the Assembly next year. Senator Charles M. Walton of Ulster is regarded as the most likely candidate for Lieutenant Governor on the Republican ticket.

VOTE IN MICHIGAN STIRS MIDDLE WEST

MAY START NEW TACTICS

CHICAGO, April 6.—The victory which Senator Hiram Johnson of California won in the Michigan primary election yesterday was admittedly a great surprise and shock to the supporters here of the other aspirants for the nomination for President on the Republican ticket.

Wood and Lowden leaders made little effort to conceal their discomfiture. There was talk in political circles tonight that if General Wood failed to gain a victory in the Illinois primaries on April 17 the situation might call for an entire reorganization of his fight. Most political observers here believe that Lowden, not Wood, will carry the primaries in Lowden's home State.

Reports received within the last ten days had made the Wood leaders confident that their candidate would win in Michigan, though perhaps by a narrow margin. It was expected that Johnson would obtain a heavy vote in Detroit. The strength he developed in other districts was the surprise.

Another surprise was the report that Johnson drew heavily on the woman vote, obtaining a considerably larger percentage than did any of the other candidates, not excluding Herbert Hoover.

Some observers here felt today that Governor Lowden had been practically eliminated from an important position in the Presidential race by the fact that he ran a bad third in Michigan, polling scarcely one-third of the vote. Defeat of Lowden in Illinois, it was declared, would put him out of the race.

The greatest danger to the Hoover cause seen in the Michigan result, where apparently he has somewhat less than one-third of the vote cast for Johnson, is that it gives the Johnson workers an opportunity to advertise the Michigan situation in California, where the real battle between Hoover and Johnson will be fought on May 4.

Leaders of the Progressive wing of the Republican Party here see in the result a notice served upon the old party leaders that entirely new political conditions are to be faced in the coming election, so far as the Middle West is concerned, and that old methods will not control the vote of the masses. The statement is heard on every side that the Michigan result is proof that the States of progressive tendencies will not support a Harding or a Lowden, and that a convention which "forces" a nomination not in accord with the times may see party lines swept away if a really progressive candidate appears in the field.

The labor vote in Michigan apparently went heavily to Johnson. The wage-earners appear to be in no mood to support a man of the conservative type. They liked the punch which Johnson put into his campaign. But the swing to Johnson of this class of voters was greater than any event the Johnson leaders had expected.

General Wood's cause undoubtedly was greatly harmed in Michigan by the charges of large expenditures made in his campaign. This was especially unfortunate for him, coming on the heels of the Newberry incident. Johnson and his chief supporters, including Senator Borah, played this feature of the campaign as a trump card.

All of these things are regarded as pointing to a reorganization of the Wood campaign in the event of defeat in Illinois.

The vote for preference on the Democratic ticket is regarded as significant. Contrary to all expectations, Attorney General Palmer polled a low vote, and it is generally believed here that the labor situation was the chief reason. In political circles of the Middle West it is asserted that the injunction proceedings brought in connection with the recent coal strike probably had much to do with Palmer's poor showing.

McAdoo, it is felt, obtained a sufficient vote in Michigan, despite his efforts to keep his name off the ballot, to help to make him a formidable factor in the race.

The fact that both Governor Edwards of New Jersey and William J. Bryan ran ahead of Palmer is discussed with interest here, but few of the leaders believe that either will be the nominee of the Democratic Party.

JOHNSON CALLS IT FIRST REAL TEST

Marvelous Victory, Says Senator, Who Rejoices with His Followers Here.

The winning of the Michigan primaries by United States Senator Hiram W. Johnson brought unrestrained rejoicing to his followers in this city yesterday, but corresponding gloom to the supporters of his rival candidates for the Republican Presidential nomination. While admitting that the Michigan result was a disappointment to them, the managers of the campaign of Major General Leonard Wood declared that it would have no effect upon the campaign in the other States or in the National Convention.

"It is a marvelous victory, and I am grateful to the good people of Michigan," said Senator Johnson with a pleased smile when he received the latest results, which showed that he was more than 40,000 votes in the lead. "We met there, as in other places, organized politics and organized exploited wealth in politics, and we have demonstrated that an American, with no other attributes than those God has given him, can meet the power and wealth which are accustomed to control politics and win before a free people.

"The Michigan fight was the first real test of popular strength. We have won there overwhelmingly. I am simply overflowing with gratitude to the people of that great commonwealth."

Encouraged by their success in Michigan, the Johnson forces will redouble their efforts in the other States where they are making a determined fight for delegates. The next State of importance to hold a primary election is Illinois, where fifty-eight delegates will be chosen next Tuesday. Governor Lowden is making a hard fight to hold his own State, but both Senator Johnson and General Wood expect to cut heavily into the delegation.

Senator Johnson is making the same kind of a fight in Illinois that he put up in Michigan, but the Wood forces are confident that the California candidate will not be able to repeat his performance of Monday. In his contest, Senator Johnson is paying more attention to General Wood than to his other rivals, on the theory that the General is the hardest man for him to beat.

The strength showed by Mr. Hoover in the Democratic primaries in Michigan was a complete surprise to the Hoover forces. It was explained that the Democrats of Michigan apparently are not aware that Mr. Hoover has declared himself a candidate only for the Republican Presidential nomination.

It was also pointed out that while the Hoover vote in Michigan may have satisfactory results in one way, it is bound to have an indirect result that may not be so pleasing, especially on the California situation. In that State much will depend upon the outcome of the fight between Hoover and Johnson for the delegates.

Bar Women from Indiana Primaries.

INDIANAPOLIS, April 6.—Women will not be permitted to vote in the primary elections in Indiana on May 4, according to a decision reached by the State Board of Election Commissioners after a conference with Governor James P. Goodrich late this afternoon.

WOMEN IN PRIMARY AMAZE POLITICIANS

Interest in First Presidential Contest They Have Voted in Proves Revelation.

Women turned out in large numbers in New York City yesterday to vote in the first Presidential primaries in which they have had the opportunity to participate in this State. They not only voted, but worked in many instances, and their enthusiasm in some cases was a revelation to the veteran male politicians. While the opportunity to vote for delegates to the respective party conventions was undoubtedly the impelling motive which brought most of the women to the polls, they seemed to take an active interest in the party organization conflicts and exercised a decided influence in the election of many State and county committeemen.

The most notable example of the participation of women was in the Seventeenth Congressional District, where Miss Mabel Choate and Julian S. Myrick ran as Hoover delegates against Herbert Parsons, Republican National Committeeman, and Albert J. Berwin, the organization candidates, who favored no pledges nor instructions. Miss Choate was active from the opening to the closing of the polls and visited many of the election districts.

Other women, active in the Hoover movement, appeared as active election district workers. Among these were Mrs. Oscar S. Straus and Mrs. F. Louis Slade, both of whom aided in getting out and checking the vote. Women favoring the organization candidates were also active.

Despite the pre-primary charges that fraud would be attempted, the election passed with a rather unexpected smoothness. A few complaints of electioneering in the polling places were received at the headquarters of the Hoover Committe in the Hotel Manhatan, but these were adjusted without arrests.

Some surprise was caused by the extent of the Hoover organization. There was at least one watcher and two workers in practically every election district. An emergency force was kept at headquarters and a system of telephone calls and automobile service was used to get all those who had pledged themselves to vote for the Hoover candidates to the polls.

Because of possible irregularities the Board of Elections held a special meeting and took steps to call the attention of Police Commissioner Enright to the necessity of having the police keep a close watch on election officials. The following resolution was adopted and sent to Commissioner Enright by John R. Voorhis, Chairman of the board:

"Resolved, In view of the apprehensions that have been communicated to this board that inspectors of election may not comply strictly with the provisions of the election law, that the attention of the Commissioner of Police be called thereto and that he be requested to instruct the members of the police force to insist upon a strict performance by the inspectors of election of their official duties and that arrests be promptly made of all persons who deliberately violate the election law during the primary election."

PEOPLE SUPPORT THE MOVE

By EDWIN L. JAMES.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, April 6.—French troops entered Frankfort and Darmstadt at 5 o'clock this morning. Four hours later these two cities, with Homburg, Hanau and Dieburg and the surrounding territory, had been occupied by the French Army of the Rhine under command of General Degoutte. The newly occupied territory includes the circles of Frankfort, Darmstadt, Offenbach, Höchst, Königstein and Dieburg.

German Reichswehr troops in the territory affected withdrew before the advancing French troops and it was stated at noon today that the occupation took place without clashes.

It was stated at the French Foreign Office tonight that by sundown all work of occupation should have been completed.

At the Foreign Office it was stated at 6 o'clock that no formal statement had come from the English or Italian Governments as to France's coup. It is reported, however, that a semi-official message from London to M. Millerand this afternoon said, "Not to worry."

General Degoutte has announced that his troops will be withdrawn as soon as the German Reichswehr troops evacuate completely the neutral zone of fifty kilometers on the right bank of the Rhine as laid down in the Peace Treaty. All the new territory occupied by the French is within the fifty kilometer zone which the Germans violated by sending Reichswehr into the Ruhr Basin.

Under the terms of Treaty Articles 42, 43 and 44 the Germans are forbidden to maintain any armed forces in the neutral zones. Last August Marshal Foch granted permission which expires April 10 and General Degoutte will remain in Frankfort and Darmstadt until after that date and until Marshal Foch shall have ruled that the treaty terms have been met.

Further Action Is Contemplated.

While the present French action is limited officially to the enforcement of Articles 42, 43 and 44 of the treaty, in case the Germans do not comply with it entirely it is possible Foch will take supplementary action to enforce other terms of the treaty, especially those relating to the disarmament of Germany.

French officialdom gave the impression yesterday that Foch was pausing. He was. He was engaged in verifying the figures on the number of the German Reichswehr troops which had penetrated into the Ruhr region. His agents had reported 40,000. The Germans claimed 17,000.

The Germans issued a statement today saying that in the Ruhr basin they had 13,500 troops and in the rest of the neutral zone 3,500, making a total of 17,000. Under the August protocol they were permitted to have 17,500 troops in the neutral zone.

The French War Office issued a statement saying the Germans had twenty-six battalions, nine squadrons, twenty-three batteries, four auxiliary companies, three armored trains, one squadron of airplanes and four automobile convoys in the Ruhr region. It was said these troops totaled 38,000, thus exceeding the number permitted.

It is the opinion here that the Reichswehr is not sincerely trying to clean up the Ruhr region. Official report says the German troops have had 129 killed, 259 wounded and 123 missing. This does not indicate heavy fighting.

At the same time, it appears the Red Workers are holding the Reichswehr advance with very mediocre forces. The workers have not been ousted from the canal north of Essen, where they have stood for thirty-six hours. One report from Berlin says awful fighting is going on, and a dispatch received the same hour says the whole Ruhr population is enthusiastic about the coming of the Reichswehr into the basin. No official attention is paid to these messages here.

One Army Corps Used.

Degoutte's troops began the march at midnight and entered Frankfort and Darmstadt simultaneously five hours later. It is stated he is using one army corps, the exact size of which is not stated. The French have half a million troops available if needed. The demobilization of the 1918 class, scheduled for the first week in April, has been indefinitely delayed.

Premier Millerand states that the Germans must pay the cost of the new occupation. In a statement this morning he said:

"Before the Chamber I made promises with regard to Germany's violating the treaty. All I desire to say is that I am fulfilling those promises."

In reply to a question as to who would pay the cost of the operation, he said: "Germany must pay, since she forced us to act."

M. Millerand last night sent to all the French Embassies throughout the world a statement to be handed to the different Governments explaining France's action. After reviewing what it regards as the hostile and unauthorized acts of Germany the statement says:

"Articles 42 and 44 constitute for France a safeguard so indispensable that the proposed Franco-Anglo-American treaty of guaranty regards as a casus foederis the eventuality where these guarantees would not suffice to assure our protection.

"The situation which has just been created by the brusque offensive of German troops in the Ruhr region obliges the French Government to undertake military measures the execution of which cannot be delayed. These measures have for their sole purpose to force Germany to respect the treaty. They are exclusively of a character of restraint and precaution."

Thus the attitude of France may be summed up by saying that she believes it is time some one forced Germany to realize that she must fulfill the treaty and that France is acting while she is stronger against the day when she may not be stronger than Germany.

General Degoutee's proclamation issued to the population of the occupied cities was written by Foch. It says:

"The Government of Berlin, giving way to the pressure of the military party, has started a brusque offensive of German troops against the working population of the basin of the Ruhr. It has thus violated one of the most imperative and most solemn of the stipulations of the Peace Treaty. In the negotiations up to today the French Government has made every effort to persuade the German Government not to take this military action, which a little wisdom would have enabled it to avoid. The troops of Reichswehr have nevertheless invaded the Ruhr Basin.

"The Government of the French Republic therefore considered itself obliged to take measures to force the German Government to respect its signature. That is why I have received the order to occupy immediately the cities of Frankfort, Homburg, Hanau, Darmstadt and Dieburg.

"In proceeding to this occupation I assure you that it implies no hostile intent toward the working population of this region. It is only to insure the execution of the treaty. It will end as soon as the troops of the Reichswehr have completely evacuated the neutral zone."

In orders posted prominently in the newly occupied territory Degoutte says:

"The French troops do not appear as conquerors, but as troops of occupation. No harm will be done to any one nor to any property, on condition that absolute good order reigns in the newly occupied territory."

Detailed orders then proclaim the state of siege, the German civil authorities are ordered to remain at their posts, movement of the population is prohibited between 9 o'clock at night and 5 in the morning, passage from the newly occupied zone to unoccupied territory is forbidden except by pass, all assemblages of more than five persons are forbidden, the newspapers are suspended, a censorship is established, all firearms must be given up except by the regular police. All infractions of rules will be tried by court-martial.

Popular Support for Occupation.

Judging from newspapers of all shades of opinion, the country is solid behind Millerand and Foch. Disregarding the calculations of the diplomats the opinion of the Frenchman on the street is simply this: Germany has 65,000,000 people and is increasing her population fast. France has 35,000,000 people and her population is not increasing. France is staggering under the burden of the last war, which calls for efforts for generations to come. The treaty protects France against a militant Germany and France, while she can, ought to see that the lid is kept on militarism in Germany.

Further than that there is an economic angle to the situation. The franc is one-third its normal value because France owes money. Germany owes France more than enough to pay every sou France owes. Germany will not pay unless she has to and if she does not France is ruined economically. Therefore, France should make Germany understand she must pay.

What man who knows what France did in the war and how dearly her victory was bought can help having some sympathy for this point of view?

Although many newspaper writers are bitter toward President Wilson for "taking sides with Germany," no responsible Government official has any complaint to make of any one of the allied or associated powers. One gets from all Government officials the calm statement that Germany is learning she cannot defy victorious France. There may be alarmist reports about a new war, but the other nations should be today disposed to take at their face value France's declarations that her action is limited.

M. Millerand's formal notification to Germany, handed to Herr Mayer, the German Chargé here, says:

"By my letter of April 2 I asked you to insist to your Government on the withdrawal of the German troops which unduly had penetrated the neutral zone fixed by Article 42 of the Treaty of Versailles.

"My request remaining without effect, I have the honor to inform you that the Commander in Chief of the army on the Rhine has received an order to occupy immediately the cities of Frankfort, Homburg, Hanau, Darmstadt and Dieburg.

"This occupation will end as soon as the German troops shall have completely evacuated the neutral zone."

Frankfort is the second city in importance in Germany. It has a population of 420,000 and is an important banking, transportation and trading centre. It was there that in 1871 was signed the treaty which took Alsace-Lorraine from the French. Darmstadt has a population of 100,000, being the capital of the Grand Duchy of Hesse. Hanau, noted as a centre of jewelry manufacture, has a population of 35,000. Homburg has 15,000 population and Dieburg is about the same size.

Much amusement was caused here by a dispatch from Berlin saying the German Government had interrupted a radio message from Moscow addressed to German Communists asking for information as to what was going on in the Rhur Basin and asking whether it was true that the Red army was in control. The reason this is funny is that for a week the German news agencies have been sending out stories about how Moscow planned the Ruhr revolt and was directing it by wireless to Essen.

PARIS, April 6 (Associated Press).—An official communication issued this evening says:

"The military operation contemplated against Frankfort and Darmstadt was begun today in the early hours. The troops of the 30th Corps took part in the operation and met with no resistance. The encircling of the two towns and the occupation of important points of the circle were completed at 11 o'clock by our cavalry, which in the afternoon occupied Hanau, previously evacuated by the German troops.

FRENCH MEET NO OPPOSITION

commanded by machine guns and auto cannon. Guns have been placed also at many strategic points outside the city, so that it is entirely in the power of the invading troops.

For every eventuality the French are prepared and vigilant. The operation, which was directed by Marshal Foch from Paris, was prepared at Mayence by General Degoutte, commander in chief of the Rhine army, and executed by General de Metz, commander of the force of occupation. The troops engaged belong to the Thirty-seventh Division, and those which occupy Frankfort are of the Third Algerian Regiment.

Many Germans who have watched the proceedings today seem to have been struck by the similarity of the whole business to their own operations on entering the towns of North France and Belgium in the early days of the war. The only remark which may be described as hostile came from an ex-soldier who after reading General Degutte's proclamation, ejaculated the German equivalent of "the same old junk."

Several airplanes have been flying over the city and the surrounding country during the day, and last night during the advance they were used as advance scouts. With colored lights they signaled to the advancing troops that no opposition was to be met.

Beyond Frankfort and in the other four occupied towns the procedure has been similar to that observed here. Homburg, a pleasant watering place, formerly patronized by the Kaiser, was occupied during the morning, and the troops pushed forward toward Hanau and Dieburg on the outskirts of the fifty-kilometer line.

At none of these places has any opposition been reported, and it seems that the German population is going to take the French occupation with the same philosophic calm as they did on the left bank in 1918.

It is understood that M. Tiraud, Chairman of the Interallied Rhineland Commission, will reach here tomorrow to consider the problems arising out of the situation.

FRANKFORT, April 6 (Associated Press).—After the entry of the French troops, the French Commander received the German authorities, and, after outlining to them the reason for occupation, told them he counted on them to maintain order.

Notwithstanding the proclamation of martial law, several newspapers made their appearance. They were not molested.

After being disarmed, the German Security police were interned in the Greisheim camp as prisoners of war.

A Few Shots at North Frankfort.

MAYENCE, April 6.—The only incident in the occupation of North Frankfort by the French consisted of a few shots fired. According to reports by aviators German gun detachments fired two or three shells on a French cavalry patrol before which detachments of the Reichswehr and the Security Police were retiring. The latter, although knowing yesterday that occupation had been decided on, refused to believe that it would be carried out, one of the officers saying that the British would not let the French come in.

At Darmstadt the reception of the French troops was almost cordial, and the population at Frankfort was inclined to be friendly to the French.

MUELLER ASSAILS 'GALLIC MILITARISM'

AIDS GERMAN SPARTACIDES

Charges a French Attempt to Destroy Germany by Seizing Gateways—Statement to Powers.

BERLIN, April 6 (Associated Press).—Chancellor Müller declared today that M. Millerand, the French Premier, at first formally consented to Germany's present military action in the Ruhr district, on the assumption that the operations would consume only two or three weeks, and alleged that, influenced by the French Generals, he had decided "to make political capital out of Germany's internal conditions." The Chancellor also asserted that the present French procedure was bound to give aid and comfort to the German Spartacides, who continue to flaunt their lawlessness wherever they have the opportunity.

"The occupation of Frankfort, Darmstadt, Hanau and other German places by the French," said the Chancellor, "is a fresh attempt of Gallic militarism on the peace of the world—peace only just restored after an era of misery. It will meet with the strongest condemnation by right thinking men and women everywhere.

"The French assertions that the German military measures in the so-called neutral zone against the lawless bands of the Ruhr constitute a violation of the Peace Treaty are but a flimsy pretext for wanton aggression.

"The material which the German Government has already published and that which is yet to appear will plainly show that our action amounts only to a temporary policing measure absolutely warranted by the complete state of anarchy prevailing there, and, far from being a violation of the treaty, was indispensable to enable Germany to live up to some of the treaty's most important provisions."

The Chancellor then made the charge that France had altered her decision, "obviously under the influence of the French Generals," and continued:

"The intentions of France, where militarism and imperialism seem again to be in the ascendency, are only too clear. By invading cities like Frankfort, Hanau and Darmstadt, which are the principal gateways between North and South Germany, France hopes to throttle the German empire and cause our political disintegration."

Herr Müller asserted that besides aiding the Spartacides the French action would certainly swell the numbers of those who declare that, since France is more than ever bent upon achieving Germany's complete annihilation, Germany will be compelled to prepare for the death struggle.

"If the allied Governments, if the decent opinion of mankind should placidly tolerate this act of French aggression," concluded the Chancellor, "then the occupation of Frankfort will mark the beginning of an era of international anarchy the like of which the world has never before witnessed."

Statement Issued to Powers.

The German note dealing with conditions in the Ruhr district, which was handed to the respective Chargés d'Affaires in Berlin, begins by stating that grave reports received of sanguinary fighting in the Rhenish-Westphalian region in the middle of March caused the German Government to request permission of the Allies to send a limited number of troops to the temporarily menaced zone. The German Government at the same time offered guarantees for the due withdrawal of these troops.

The French Government replied that it could comply only if allied troops occupied Frankfort, Hanau, Homburg, Dieburg and Darmstadt for the same period and in equal strength, as the German troops were in excess of the limit already permitted.

Setting aside the serious objections to further occupation of German territory, the German Government declared its readiness to consent to the allied troops entering the places named in the event that such German troops as were employed had not left the fifty-kilometer zone within a fixed period to be determined by the allied Governments.

It appeared from the negotiations conducted with the Allies on the subject by the German representatives, according to the note, that the allied Governments had declared they agreed in principle to this. The British Government and the French Premier made declarations to this effect, and the French Government then wanted proof that order could not be maintained in the fifty-kilometer zone without the entry of troops.

The note argues that the highly disquieting news, which had unceasingly arrived since, left no doubt that the speedy restoration of peace and order was impossible without temporary military intervention, and contends that the position was so critical that not only the welfare of the population in those regions, but the entire economic life of Germany, was seriously menaced. Communists and mobs terrorized the entire public life, made indiscriminate requisitions and plundered and threatened life and security.

The note further says that the agreements accepted by the newly-formed executive and central councils with a view to restoring law and order were useless because the insurgents who concluded them no longer had power to carry them out. The German Government is of the opinion that it proved to the allied Governments that the systematic restoration of law and order by the troops could not be delayed a single hour.

"The German Government," adds the note, "is responsible for the lives and liberties of its countrymen. It, therefore, believes that it should no longer await the formal consent of the allied Governments to the entry of German troops, nor further retard the advance of the troops.

"This is not an action against the working population, whose representatives have, on the contrary, urgently begged help, but a measure to combat the anarchical elements. The German Government does not doubt that the allied Governments in these circumstances and having regard for the position in which Germany finds herself will give their consent, which the German Government hereby requests.

"It repeats most emphatically its previous offer to give every conceivable guarantee for the immediate withdrawal of the troops after the restoration of order. It would especially be prepared to agree to the dispatch of an inter-allied commission, which could convince itself on the spot up to what date the presence of troops is justified by the situation.

"The German Government hopes that the Allied Governments will not fail to recognize that Germany is forced [to take this action] by a situation imperatively demanding intervention in districts under its jurisdiction and in which every hour of delay may involve irreparable disaster. It also considers that it is not acting contrary to the spirit of the Peace Treaty, whose stipulations have the purpose of promoting the peace of the world and are surely not opposed to a temporary measure of protection, which has no aggressive tendencies.

"The German Government continues firmly resolved loyally to respect its engagements, but for this purpose the speedy restoration of a state of authority is required in a region where law and order are fundamental and antecedent to conditions for the execution of the most important stipulations of the Peace Treaty."

The French action in sending troops to the Ruhr district came as a complete surprise, according to German official circles, as it had been hoped that the manner in which the Government troops were executing police duties in that region would convince the Entente that the Government was not contemplating violation of the Peace Treaty.

An official communication says that the attitude of the other allied Governments toward French occupation is not known, as Germany only received a note from France on the matter.

"The German Government will most energetically protest against this measure, which renders all possibility of establishing a modus vivendi between France and Germany hopeless," says the communiqué, "and can only strengthen those elements in Germany which are entirely opposed to the execution of the Peace Treaty.

"We hope, however, that the rapid and smooth progress of the measures taken in the Ruhr region will shorten the martyrdom of the occupied towns. But there can be no room for doubt that the French action, which is justified by no real interest and which is contrary even to French interests, again endangers the Republic and sets us months back in the establishment of orderly conditions."

WITHDREW OUR SUPPORT.

American Representative at Coblenz Gave Notice Several Days Ago.

COBLENZ, April 6 (Associated Press).—It was learned today at the office of Pierpont B. Noyes, American Rhineland Commissioner and representative of the State Department in the American occupied area, that several days ago Mr. Noyes formally disassociated himself from any action the High Commission might take, involving it directly or indirectly in a possible French advance into unoccupied territory.

It was also stated at the office that Mr. Noyes had notified Washington of his action.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 6.—The American Government will not express any opinion with regard to the action of France in the occupation of Frankfort, Darmstadt, Homburg and Hanau until after there has been opportunity to clear up a confusion which at present exists concerning the understanding of the facts which have dictated the French course.

While it is understood that the attitude of Italy and Great Britain, with that of the United States, remains unchanged in the opinion that the request of the German Government that German troops be permitted to enter the Ruhr district to restore order was legitimate and did not constitute a military menace to France warranting the occupation of more German territory by the Allies, it was said today that there exists a confusion with regard to the facts in the case, which must be clarified before further judgment can fairly be made.

While the Allies, with the exception of France, considered the German request as legitimate, the feeling exists that the Germans have injured their cause by sending into the Ruhr district a military force vastly in excess of the number actually needed to accomplish the purposes for which their permission to enter the neutral zone was made.

their announced intention to seek French protection should be approved.

The women of the poorest Berlin districts are especially enthused over the French action, having been told by unscrupulous agitators that if the French were in authority the hoardings of the rich, which the present Government has not dared to touch, would be divided among them.

The Lokal-Anzeiger publishes an interview with the modern Robin Hood, Hölz, of the Vogtland, who condemns the Government's police operation in the Ruhr district in the severest terms, praising French interference and says:

"If the Government should dare to send troops to the Vogtland I shall declare a most ruthless general strike and if necessary burn down the private mansions and public buildings. As in the Ruhr district, so in Saxony it is necessary to destroy in order to reconstruct."

"I am laughing at the price of 30,000 marks the Government has put on my head," Hölz told a large open air meeting yesterday. "Who among you would earn that money? We laugh at the Berlin Government that will soon crumble under French fists unless it ceases at once to persecute the people of Saxony and the Ruhr district."

Hölz then forbade his followers to call him Mister or Mister President, as there were no Misters and Presidents among free people, but only comrades.

Radical Organ Blames Reactionaries.

The Freiheit this afternoon puts the blame for the occupation on the reactionary bureaucrats of the Foreign Office who had informed Chancellor Müller incorrectly that the French Government had given up objection to the German expedition to the neutral district, hoping thus to entangle the German republic in grave difficulties, paving the way for another and more successful reactionary "putsch."

The Freiheit still believes the restoration of order should have been entirely left to the armed workmen and urges immediate withdrawal of the troops, threatening otherwise that the Red army would be justified in seeking French protection.

BRITISH VIEW ADVANCE WITH SOME MISGIVING

Press Generally Voices the Opinion That the Nation Must Stand by France.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, April 7.—A good deal of misgiving is shown here at the French occupation of Frankfort. Coming as it does at the close of the Easter holidays, when for five days London was without any official news, there is little information as to the steps that led up to it, but it appears clear that England has been acting as a moderating force and has been slow to admit the necessity of drastic action.

Inquiries in well-informed quarters show that there is good ground for believing that the trouble in the Ruhr Valley is settling itself and that reports of extensive sabotage are without foundation. There would, in fact, have been a disposition here to let Germany settle her own troubles and to turn a blind eye to any technical breach of the treaty she might commit in so doing, but now the British Government is confronted with a fait accompli. France has acted, and however clear may be the impression that her policy betrays undue nervousness and her action is premature, the cardinal feature of the situation is that the two countries must act together.

The Westminster Gazette in discussing the matter emphasizes the fact that France has acted alone and says:

"Frankly, we dislike this separate action, both on its own merits and because, whether justified or not, it signalizes the failure of the Allies jointly to solve a problem which is likely to arise in many forms before Europe settles down."

Nevertheless Great Britain is certain in any diplomatic representations she makes not to emphasize this point too much and to be very careful not to offend French susceptibilities, for there have been recently too many attacks in the Paris press on British disinterestedness to be pleasant and there are in the Near and Middle East problems and too many opportunities for differences between the two countries for England to desire to show any backwardness in supporting France on this question.

There is, moreover, a clear recognition here of the peculiar interest France has on account of her geographical position in checking any militaristic revival in Germany, and two such divers authorities as The London Times and the Socialistic Daily Herald agree for once in declaring that the Ruhr Valley disorder is being exploited in Germany in the interests of the old junker faction.

Some apprehension is expressed by The Evening Standard as to the effect the French advance will have on Germany, and the suggestion is made that it may either lead to the fall of the Berlin Government or may "so crystallize the warring elements in Germany as to create the most serious menace to France since the signing of the armistice."

The Westminster Gazette sees danger of the forward move leading to unwelcome additional commitments and expresses the hope that "it is not too late to settle the Ruhr question in a more sensible manner. Let Germans withdraw the Reichswehr from the Ruhr and on their withdrawal let the French retire from Frankfort and Darmstadt. If force is needed to keep order in Ruhr let it be an allied force, or let the allied contingent be joined to the German force as a guarantee that the latter is doing what it professes to be doing and no more."

Meanwhile, complete reticence is shown as to the policy the British Government will assume and inquiries in official quarters produce nothing but assurances that the matter can be easily handled by diplomacy and the Council of Ambassadors will soon straighten it out.

The Daily Telegraph says:

"To condone what has now been done in the Ruhr district would be merely to advertise that the enforcement of the treaty is not the firm requirement of allied policy. This is the substance of the French attitude, and we are bound to say that it is in our opinion justified, but it has been made sufficiently clear that the Allies of France do not go all the way with her in the policy which she has felt it necessary to initiate. Where so much is obscure and the conflict of evidence so marked there has been reluctance to support an action so decisive as that of the French Government.

"To speak of disagreement would be an exaggeration, but unless we are misinformed our own Government, for example, would have preferred to take the German plea at its face value and defer action until plainer evidence of bad faith was forthcoming. As for the United States Government, it lost no time in making what is described as a vigorous protest against the French action. But the United States is in the unique position of being still at war with Germany and its Government's opinion as to the right method of securing the observance of the peace treaty will not, we are afraid, be felt by the French to be better than their own. So far as British opinion is concerned, we are convinced that it is more nearly unanimous in approving French action—strictly limited as it is by the French Government's definite pledges—than upon almost any other public question of the hour."

The Daily Mail says today:

"The Germans have no excuse. Had their conduct been tolerated they would have proceeded to fresh violations of the treaty and more tricks. As it is, they now discover that the Allies cannot safely be defied.

"British public feeling warmly supports the French action, regarding the alliance with France as the sheet anchor of British foreign policy. Millerand's confidence that 'all will end well' is thoroughly justified, as this country would never pardon a Government which quarreled with our faithful comrade in war."

The Morning Post says:

"There cannot be a shadow of doubt that the advance of General von Watter's force into the neutral zone was a deliberate essay to test the practical value of the treaty. Had the provocation been overlooked it would have been taken throughout Germany as a signal that there was nothing in the treaty that could not safely be disregarded and in due time set aside."

Supporting France's action, The Morning Post continues: "If our own frontier ran coterminously with that of Germany and our own interests were as deeply involved in the integrity of the Ruhr Valley, we could wish for nothing better than that our Government and people might show the same coolness and moderation in a like emergency. We do not know what induced the Germans to choose this time and method for trying the strength of the treaty, but it is probable that in all such tentatives the main prospect of success lies in the hope of sowing differences in the Allies' ranks."

BORDEN MILK SHOWS GAIN FOR THE YEAR

$17.81 a Share Available for Common Dividend, Against 5-Year Average of $14.72.

Company, in Its First Statement of Earnings, Reports a Net Income of $4,284,602.

The Borden Company, which controls Borden Farm Products, Inc., yesterday issued the first earnings statement that has been put out since the organization of the company in 1857. It shows that last year the gross sales amounted to $122,284,195 and that the net income available for dividends, after providing for interest and estimated Federal taxes, was $4,284,602. This represents 3½ per cent. profit on the gross turnover. After preferred dividends the amount available for the common stock was $17.81 a share, as compared with an average of $14.72 a share for the common during the last five years.

The change in policy regarding the issuing of an earnings statement is said to be due to the increasing participation in the ownership of the company by the investment public. Henceforth the Directors have decided to issue annual financial statements to shareholders.

*Net operating profit	5,299,079
Interest	290,160
Federal taxes, estimated	724,317
Net income	4,284,602
Dividends	2,186,679
Surplus	2,095,923
Profit and loss surplus	6,856,051

*After deducting all operating charges, including depreciation, insurance and property taxes.

The balance sheet shows that plant and equipment are valued at $21,961,530. Among the assets are $2,186,840 in cash and $907,027 in Liberty bonds. Finished goods are valued at $7,968,890, raw materials and supplies at $6,496,585 and trade marks, patents and good-will are placed at $5,960,490. The report indicates that current assets at the close of the year amounted to $2.42 for every dollar of current liabilities.

With regard to operations, President Milburn states that the fresh milk business of the company, conducted by one of its subsidiaries, has been subjected to trying conditions which have contributed to unsatisfactory results in that branch.

In a general survey of conditions Mr. Milburn has this to say of the milk business:

"The needs of the allied armies and the civilian population of Europe during the war period made necessary a large expansion in the production of canned milks, most of which, because of the war devastation, was developed in this country. While final statistics are not yet available, the indicated total production of canned milks in the United States by all manufacturers was 150 per cent. greater in 1919 than in 1914. It is obvious that domestic consumption cannot immediately absorb such increased productive capacity. Naturally manufacturers are endeavoring to increase their domestic distribution and find profitable outlet in export markets."

DENIKIN RESIGNS; HIS CHIEF AID SLIAN

Wrangel to Take Command of the Anti-Bolshevist Forces in Crimea.

CONSTANTINOPLE, April 5 (Associated Press).—General Wrangel, commander of the volunteer army of Russia, has been appointed by the anti-Bolshevist leaders to relieve General Denikin as commander of the anti-Bolshevist forces in the south of Russia.

Denikin's former Chief of Staff, General Romanovsky, who had resigned, was murdered tonight in the Russian Embassy here shortly after his arrival in Constantinople. There is no clue to the murderers. General Mokrov has succeeded him. General Ichilling has resigned as commander of the Crimean troops.

General Wrangel is of Norwegian blood and is such a forceful character that the Russians fighting against the Reds are said to believe he can reorganize the shattered volunteer and Cossack forces better than the Generals who participated at Odessa and Novorossisk, where the volunteers showed no desire to fight.

Volunteer troops are to occupy Simferopol and Sebastopol. General Alexieff's division is to occupy Kertch. Don and Kuban Cossacks are at Eupatoria, on the western coast of the Crimea.

The Bolsheviki are not yet making any headway in the Crimea. In the Caucasus they are advancing rapidly toward Azerbaijan and Georgia. From Petrovsk on the Caspian Sea they have reached Derbent on the Baku Railroad. They also are moving speedily along the railroad from Armavir to Tuapie, the next important port on the Black Sea south of Novorossisk. The Don and Kuban Cossacks fighting in that section are being forced into Taupie, from which place it is probable that the women and children will be evacuated to Theodosia. The Bolsheviki are only about thirty miles from Tuapie.

erned economically, businesslike and decently, and under his instructions I am now and for some time have been engaged in the investigation of police conditions in the City of New York, particularly as to vice and graft, with a view to holding the police and other officials who may be responsible for any violation of law.

"From the press of yesterday and today, it appears that you, Sir, in a 'make-up,' and accompanied by two young men, 'competent helpers,' who, as you say, 'knew the ropes' and 'gave the double wink,' had visited certain dance halls and restaurants in the Fourth Police Inspection District, of which Inspector Henry is the commander, and are alleged to have found dancers indulging in the 'Hootchie-Kootchie,' the 'Shimmy-shake' and the 'Cheek-to-Cheek' dances and other questionable practices.

"I am forced to confess my ignorance of these dances, but am willing to be informed about them. However, if you found them objectionable and found other conditions to condemn, that is enough for me, and justifies my making a thorough investigation into the matter.

"May I not call upon you to assist me in this work, and therefore suggest that you kindly call at my office with the young men who accompanied you on these investigating tours and give me such information as you may have concerning the morals and vices of the community?"

Dr. Straton said yesterday that Peter's restaurant, the place exposed by him on Sunday night and raided over the head of Inspector Dominick Henry on Monday night, was not the worst of the places he had visited.

"It was one of the worst," said Dr. Straton, "but there were one or two others where conditions were even more shocking."

Inspector McDonald of the Headquarters Squad, under whose authority the raid on Peter's was made, is one of the police officials who is held in high esteem at the District Attorney's office.

Henry Breaks Silence.

Police Inspector Henry, who has been persistently silent in the face of a variety of charges since he made his sensational affidavits ten days ago, broke his silence after the charges of Dr. Straton and the raid on Peter's Restaurant. His statement follows:

"The enforcement of the Eighteenth Amendment is entirely under the jurisdiction and control of the Federal authorities. The Police Department only steps in when requested to do so by the Federal authorities. I make this explanation so that the public may know that the enforcement of the liquor tax law no longer is up to the Police Department."

Inspector Henry was asked if he had any comment to make on the raid on Peter's Restaurant by Inspector McDonald's Special Service Squad on Monday night. He answered:

"'I had three of my men observing conditions in Peter's Restaurant at the same time that Inspector McDonald's men were there. Inspector McDonald's men made the arrest because they were fortunate enough to have been served first. I have also under observation Healey's Restaurant, St. Nicholas Dance Hall and the other places mentioned by Dr. Straton in his sermon on Sunday night. I have yet to get one report against these places. They are visited by a mixed class, but are well managed and controlled. Nightly they are patronized by between 4,000 and 5,000 persons. In a big city such as New York, when so great a number congregate in one place during a short period of time, it is certain to be made up of persons representing all classes in the city.

"'As to the "undress" of the ladies visiting these place I have nothing to say. I know nothing about these supposed "getters" to which Dr. Straton refers. Maybe he does, and if so it is his duty as a good citizen to lay such facts as he may have before the Grand Jury.'"

Resorts Warned, She Declared.

Mrs. Ellen O'Grady, Fifth Deputy Police Commissioner, admitted in an interview that she was not satisfied with conditions in dance halls and said that the news that detectives were headed toward given resorts seemed to travel with mysterious speed, with the result that such places were generally conducted in a model manner when detectives were present.

"I have twenty women detectives and eight matrons," Mrs. O'Grady said. "Three months ago my department made an investigation and I came to the conclusion that there was much to be improved in some of them."

Mrs. O'Grady said that immodest dancing was extremely difficult to prove, no matter how shocking it might appear to the immediate witness.

$7,500 FOR TOWN HALL FUND

J. P. Day Has Doors Locked at Economic Club Meeting.

More than 1,000 persons who attended the fifty-second annual dinner of the Economi Club of New York at the Hotel Astor last night were thrown into consternation when Joseph P. Day, real estate operator, who had succeeded in raising $7,500 by calling for subscriptions first at $5,000 and finally at $250, asserted that the door swere locked, and then made a motion that all those present should subscribe $100 each toward the fund for constructing the New York Town Meeting Hall in West Forty-third Street. The hall is to be the home of the Economic Club and the League for Political Education. A motion was finally adopted which made it voluntary for the members to subscribe $100 or any other amount within their means.

Frank I. Cobb, editor of The New York World, and Glenn Frank, associate editor of The Century Magazine, speaking to the subject of the evening, "Free Speech, Its Value and Perils," were agreed in the belief that one of the worst perils of free speech lay in movements toward repression. Job E. Hedges, the last speaker, approved the ousting of the Socialists from the New York Legislature.

Keeps Them Quiet

No grinding, squeaking, grumbling gears when you're using Dixon's. It's the one lubricant you can depend on to keep them quiet.

Dixon's obliterates the roughness that exists on all gear and bearing surfaces. It works into those tiny depressions and builds up a smooth, oily veneer that successfully wards off friction.

Dixon's 677 is unequalled for transmission and differential. Also try Dixon's famous Cup Grease and other Dixon lubricants. All in handy red cans.

DIXON'S Gear LUBRICANT

With your transmission and differential running in Dixon's, you can rest assured your gears are friction-free. For Dixon's doesn't 'squeeze out'' under pressure. Nor is it affected by heat or cold like plain oil and grease.

Year around it means smoother, sweeter action—less noise—more power,—and it helps keep down gas and repair bills.

Try it and see. Your dealer has it.

"BOILED COAL"

Coffee was first drunk in Abyssinia.

It was called "boiled coal" because at that time it was roasted black.

Later, the Koran condemned the use of the "coal", and the brown roast came into favor.

It is the brown roast that is so popular today—375 tons a year are used in the CHILDS restaurants alone.

Golden brown and mellow, with an aroma so enticing that it frequently calls for another cup—CHILDS coffee.

BELFAST'S SHOW GUNS REMOVED BY POLICE

Bitter Feeling Grows Throughout Ireland—Court Penalizes "Republican" Bonds Subscriber.

BELFAST, April 6.—The police visited the Belfast Museum today and removed the trench mortars, machine guns and other war trophies on exhibition there.

DUBLIN, April 6.—Subscribing to the Sinn Fein loan in Ireland is an offense against the law, according to a ruling of two Magistrates in County Wexford, who in a recent case held that such action was an "attempt to overturn the King's Government."

A wealthy farmer who had bought Irish republic bonds worth £25 was brought into court and, as he refused to give bail for good behavior, was sent to jail for three months.

Some Catholic Bishops have subscribed for these bonds, but they have done so by sending their money to America.

Opposition to the Government never has been so general throughout Ireland as it is today. Some critics protest against the severity of the military régime, but their attacks are met by demands from others, who assert that the steps taken have not been sufficiently drastic, and that measures intended to be coercive have failed of their object.

The bitterness of feeling dividing the people of Ireland into two main sections extends even to learned societies, the Royal Irish Academy, the most learned body in Ireland, having just refused to readmit Professor John MacNeill to its membership. He was formerly a member, and the society published in its transactions many of his contributions to the study of early Irish history, in which he is an acknowledged expert.

After the rebellion of 1916 he was expelled on being sentenced to twenty years' penal servitude. He was long since released from prison and restored to his professorship in the National University of Ireland. His friends thought he should get back to the Royal Irish Academy, but his readmission was contested and defeated.

ROME, April 6.—The Vatican authorities state positively that, contrary to recent reports, Pope Benedict will not allude to the Irish question on the occasion of the beatification of Oliver Plunkett, Primate of Ireland in the seventeenth century.

SINN FEINERS RIOT IN MOUNTJOY PRISON

Offenders Manacled with Hands Behind Their Backs—Many on Hunger Strike.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

DUBLIN, April 6.—Eighty prisoners in Mountjoy prison, including some in the hospital, have refused food since Sunday night. Some of them are said to have been under arrest for six weeks without any charge having been preferred against them, while others who were convicted under the Defence of the Realm act are demanding treatment as political offenders.

Hunger strikes have been frequent in the prison, and a few of the prisoners have already participated in five, and are still weak from their previous experiences.

For two or three nights before they decided upon a policy of passive rather than active protest the prisoners were responsible for several violent scenes in the prison, causing damage computed at £600. Partitions more than a foot in thickness between the cells were broken through and the men roamed noisily about the corridors. Guards and sentries were increased and a machine gun was trained on the hospital windows. The most troublesome of the prisoners were placed in irons, with their hands manacled behind their backs, but then still continued to create an uproar. The manacles were removed so that they might attend mass on Sunday, but they were replaced afterward, but the men are still in handcuffs and irons.

CALDER ASSAILS LEAGUE.

Senator Says France's Action Brings Home Our Responsibility.

Speaking before about 500 members and guests of the Society of Old Brooklynites last night at Grant Post Hall, 489 Washington Avenue, Brooklyn, United States Senator William M. Calder attacked the League of Nations.

"The inevitable has happened," said the Senator. "France has seen fit to send her army into Germany to protect herself from any possible attack. Her action brings home to us clearly what our responsibility would be under the League of Nations as submitted.

"I am certain that the people of America are not in favor of the League of Nations, which would send our boys overseas to settle boundary disputes. Germany long has been a nightmare to France. What France really wanted was the United States and Great Britain to protect her boundaries. We long owed a debt to France because she was chiefly responsible for our independence, but that debt has been paid by our sacrifices in the World War."

State Controller Eugene M. Travis warned of the peril of Bolshevism, which, he said, was stronger in this country than generally believed.

Pillows soft and downy for tired heads. Mattress light and yielding to the body—yet buoyant in the extreme. Spring firm but resilient as rubber. Bedstead rigid, graceful in design, exquisite in color and finish. These are the quality marks of Hall products.

Navajo Rugs

For the Summer Home

THESE beautiful wool rugs embody the marvelous features of an ancient art developed by the Indians of our own Southwest—the Navajos. Extraordinary indeed are the symbolic designs portraying lightning, clouds, rain, and other natural phenomena, so skilfully woven into the appealing scheme of the rug on a primitive hand loom which was in use when the Spanish Conquistadores occupied that portion of the country.

The art—the rug—everything about it is thoroughly Navajo. The wool is obtained from their own sheep and they card and spin it themselves. The designs, the color scheme in the various blacks, whites, grays, browns, reds and other colors are unique with this strange Indian tribe.

Originally woven as blankets, they are now of considerably heavier texture—an excellent rug for the Summer home, in living room, bedroom, or porch; also make splendid couch covers or wall decorations for the den.

They are alike on both sides, and like hand-made Oriental rugs, they improve in appearance with age.

And the strange thing about it all is the fact that the price is insignificant compared with the value obtained.

WOOD WARNS PARTY AGAINST RADICALS

Declares There Is No Room in Republican Ranks for Un-American Groups.

SPEAKS IN ILLINOIS TOWNS

Special to The New York Times.

CAIRO, Ill., April 6.—Major Gen. Leonard Wood, candidate for the Republican nomination, arrived here at 8 o'clock tonight at the end of one of the fastest railway journeys ever known in this part of the country. In order that he might keep his speaking engagement here the Illinois Central Railroad and the Southern Railroad, over which lines the General traveled from East St. Louis, had to make 191 miles in less than that number of minutes and at the same time give the General time to fill engagements in Belleville, Centralia, Duquoin and Carbondale.

General Wood's train was three hours late when the Southern Railway took charge of it at East St. Louis at 3 o'clock this afternoon. It then seemed impossible for General Wood to reach Cairo before 11 o'clock tonight, and a plan to call off the Cairo meeting was being discussed when an official of the Southern informed the General that might be possible for him to keep his Cairo engagement after all.

He left East St. Louis soon afterward and at 4 o'clock his train rolled into Belleville and General Wood spoke to 2,000 persons. At 5 o'clock the train pulled into Centralia, 86 miles from East St. Louis. General Wood spoke to a large audience in the Opera House at Centralia and at 5:30 o'clock the train started for Cairo.

John Heyduck, a veteran engineer, was at the throttle and within ten minutes the train was making seventy to seventy-five miles an hour.

The train arrived at Duquoin only an hour behind time. General Wood spent twenty-five minutes talking to the people there and the train was one hour and ten minutes late when it started for Carbondale, a short distance from Duquoin. It left that place just an hour late. On one twenty-mile stretch between Carbondale and Cairo the train averaged a mile every forty-eight seconds, and it was on time to the minute when it slowed up at Cairo Junction, just outside the city limits, where it was held up by a block for fifteen minutes.

General Wood was scheduled to begin his speech in the Cairo Auditorium at 8:30 P. M. It was 8:25 P. M. when he entered the hall, which was packed to its capacity with an enthusiastic audience.

The General paid his respects in his speech today to what he termed certain discordant elements seeking to gain a foothold in the Republican Party organization. There could be no room, the General declared, in the Republican Party for the Bolshevik, the Anarchist, the Radical Socialists, or other groups, some of them aliens, which advocated the overthrow of the institutions which had made the United States the nation they were today.

General Wood mentioned no names, but it was recalled that in South Dakota the pro-Germans voted against him almost as a unit, while in Detroit radical elements, principally of alien origin, were among those who bitterly opposed his candidacy. The leaders of the Non-Partisan League also opposed him in the Dakotas.

"I have," said General Wood, "nothing but sympathy for the honest but misled farmers who have affiliated with the Non-Partisan League. My complaint as regards them is directed against the unprincipled leaders of whom they are the dupes."

General Wood left Springfield, where he addressed more than 3,000 persons last night, at 7:30 o'clock this morning. A snowstorm prevailed as his train got under way, but the storm soon spent itself and the weather became perfect.

As the train pulled into Alton more than 2,000 persons were at the station. General Wood spoke to them from the rear end of his train, and nowhere did he receive a greater welcome. In Alton, and again in East St. Louis, General Wood made his references to the efforts of the ultra-radical groups to gain a foothold in the Republican Party.

"In all our large cities," said the General, "you will notice the alien vote. They vote in racial groups, and the agitator and faker do not appeal for their votes because they are Americans, but for something which is absolutely un-American, something we cannot stand for—people who are against our Constitution.

"Today in many instances we have the evidence that some of these un-American elements are seeking to gain a foothold in the ranks of the Republican Party. They are seeking to bring it about by what the loyal American laboring man knows as the 'boring from within' tactics of the I. W. W. The I. W. W. tried to gain ascendancy in the American Federation of Labor by boring from within. We may all be thankful that it failed.

"The unprincipled leaders of the honest rank and file of the Non-Partisan League recently tried in our great Central Western States. In all but one they failed. We must see to it that those who seek to spread their false doctrines, which call for the overthrow of American institutions, do not attain their purpose.

"One of the ways to check this menace is for all good citizens, Democrats as well as Republicans, to go to the polls on Election Day and vote for candidates whose Americanism cannot be challenged."

Knows Who Kept Him from War.

CAIRO, Ill., April 6 (Associated Press).—While General Wood was speaking from his train at Jerseyville, one of his hearers asked, "Who kept us out of war?"

"I can't answer that question," General Wood said, "but I know who kept me out of war."

DANISH POLICE BAR CROWDS FROM PALACE

Syndicalists and Left Socialists Talk of Soviet Republic at Meetings in Copenhagen.

COPENHAGEN, April 6.—The police were out again in full force last night and special measures were taken to keep crowds away from the neighborhood of the royal palace.

Syndicalists and Left Socialist agitators held meetings before the Town Hall at which there was much talk of a Soviet republic and other revolutionary measures. Large gangs of roughs were out for mischief, but the police precautions restricted this to the breaking of various windows and the plundering of one or two shop fronts.

The calling off of the general strike seems to have been followed virtually all along the line and life was almost normal this morning. The only exceptions are the seamen, journeymen bakers and possibly the dockers.

The jubilation of the Moderate Social Democrats at the success of their action is tempered by the advantage that brandishing of the strike weapon is considered in many quarters to have given the Syndicalists and Socialists, who are loudly proclaiming their dissatisfaction at the results achieved.

The new Ministry, whose members were yesterday presented to the King, the Queen and Prince Waldemar, has been well received by the press of all parties, which expresses recognition of its administrative abilities. Both houses of Parliament are scheduled to meet today to deal with the electoral bill and pave the way for the new elections.

Railroad Managers Tell the Public Why Harbor Men Went on Strike

The Association of General Managers of the railroads involved in the New York Harbor strike, makes the following statement—

1. No question of wages is involved in the strike.

2. No question of working conditions is involved in the strike.

3. The reason for the strike is the refusal of the railroad companies to accede to the demand of the Marine Workers' Association that the railroad companies stop the delivery of freight to the United Fruit Company's piers, where a strike of the United Fruit Company's longshoremen is in effect.

4. To force the United Fruit Company to employ none but union men on its piers, leaders undertook to compel the railroads to discontinue handling the United Fruit Company's shipments. Under the law the railroads are obliged to handle this business. They are common carriers and cannot discriminate.

5. The strike is in violation of the Transportation Act of 1920. (See Sec. 301).

6. The FICTITIOUS reason for the strike as given by the leaders is the sale by the Erie Railroad Company of a few of its tugs to the Phoenox Transit Company.

7. The 8-hour day is in no wise threatened by any of the railroads involved in the strike, and the public must not be misled by an eleventh-hour alarm sounded by labor leaders, who, realizing that their strike is weak and illegal, sought another reason as a defense. All of the railroads are obeying the 8-hour law.

8. Outside towing concerns have always done a portion of the towing for all the railroads involved in this strike.

9. The United Fruit Company is contending against a closed shop. For this reason men who have been ordered out in four strikes in Greater New York harbor in the past year, and who have been given several substantial increases in pay, are trying to tie up New York commerce. The Erie's sale of a few tugs is dragged in to bolster up a lost cause. No other tugs are offered for sale, nor has this question been considered by any of the railroads involved in the strike.

10. In a nutshell: The strike is illegal and unwarranted; an attempt to force the railroads to violate the law as common carriers; involves no question of wages or working conditions; is a hindrance to traffic and travel, and cannot be successfully defended in law or equity.

$1.15 SMALL STEAK MAKES HIM SAVAGE

INVESTIGATORS TO TRY IT

Wallace & Keeney Fined $500 for Having Spanish Mackerel Unfit to Eat.

Shaking in anger and his voice trembling with "righteous indignation," a man who had been a diner in a restaurant in the vicinity of Fifth Avenue and Twenty-third Street burst into the office of the "Flying Squadron," Room 555 Federal Building, yesterday afternoon Under his arm he carried a small package. He threw his burden on a long table that occupies one side of the room, exposing to view five small French fried potatoes and a small steak, such as might be bought in many restaurants for 40 to 60 cents.

"See here, Mr. Investigator," turning to H. L. Van Sickler, in charge of the office in the absence of A. W. Riley, "this is what I paid $1.15 for," naming the restaurant.

"When I protested," he continued, "the proprietor of the place merely laughed at me. I put what was intended for my meal into this paper and brought it here for you gentlemen to see first hand just how the people of this city are being imposed upon in the restaurants. They didn't even give me coffee with the order."

The investigator, who said the man was in a savage mood, promised that the complaint would be looked into immediately, and it was hinted at the office of the Squadron that during the next few days patrons of the place will include agents of the Department of Justice, who have been detailed to gather further evidence of alleged profiteering.

Complaints continued to come in yesterday from consumers, but the investigators say they would welcome a great many more than they are receiving. So far no complaints have been lodged against the large stores, although in other cities the agents say such protests were frequent.

The squadron does not depend entirely upon the complaints from the consumers and will begin today to visit a number of stores, including department stores, where they not only will observe shoppers making purchases, in order to get a line on the prices charged, but also will make some purchases, especially where they have reason to believe a case of profiteering may lie. This policy will be followed from now on, it was said, but they hope there will be no abatement of complaints from the public, if there is any reason for them.

On complaint of Edward Borneman, an inspector of the Health Department, who said that on January 26 he found 8,200 pounds of Spanish mackerl "unfit for human consumption" on the premises of Wallace & Keney, fish dealers of 10 Fulton Fish Market, the firm was yesterday fined $500 by Magistrate Alexander Brough in the Municipal Term of the City Magistrate's Court. The firm agreed to pay the fine today.

LEAGUE UNION APPEALS FOR £1,000,000 FUND

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, April 6.—An appeal has been issued by the League of Nations Union for a national fund of £1,000,000 to support the League and thus maintain the world peace it is designed to insure. The appeal, which is signed by Lord Grey, Lloyd George, Earl Beatty, former Premier Asquith, Lord Robert Cecil and J. R. Clydes, says:

"In the long and bitter years of the war which we fought for truth and honorable dealing, millions sacrificed themselves in order that the world might be cleaner and freer and that there might be no more war. Do not let us in these early days of peace already forget our ideals and their sacrifices. If the world should be allowed to relapse into the antagonisms and ambitions which led up to and culminated in the war, it would be the greatest triumph of evil in all ages.

"The League of Nations was called into being in a flood of idealism and self-denial, caused by the agony of the later stages of the war. It was created in the heartfelt desire of every soul who fought to have done for all time with the abomination of modern war.

"Whatever of selfish nationalism may have crept into the life of the world since the armistice was signed, it was those higher ideals which transcend selfish nationalism which inspired the League, and those are the ideals which must give it life.

"The League of Nations can only be what the people of the world choose to make it.

"The League itself—that is to say, the Council, the Assembly and the Secretary—is just a piece of machinery, and it will achieve good, or fail, or possibly even do evil, according to the spirit in which it is used. That spirit must come from the people, and that is the reason for the League of Nations Union.

"Our primary object is to keep fresh in the minds of the people of this country the spirit and ideals which underly the covenant of the League. To do this, the union must undertake a very extensive educational campaign. * * * To do the work effectively we need something in the neighborhood of a million pounds and that necessitates a national campaign for funds. The sum named sounds like a large one, but it is indeed the bare cost of four hours of the late war.

"Viewed in this way it is not a great deal to provide as insurance against another war, for if Great Britain does not support the League with all her might and resources (and this depends solely upon the will of the people) the League itself will assuredly wither and die, and if the League should die God help our children, for no human agency can save them from calamities to which the late war will appear as the merest trifle."

SOCIALISTS SEEK SPECIAL ELECTION

Expelled Assemblymen Decide to Appeal at Once to Governor Smith.

TO FIGHT SWEET AT HOME

In Meantime Question of Contest in the Courts Remains in Abeyance.

At 1 o'clock this morning, after prolonged deliberation at Socialist headquarters. at 7 East Fifteenth Street, the Socialist Assemblymen expelled from the New York State Legislature decided, through the legal sub-committee of their Committee of Eight, to appeal at once to Governor Smith for a special election to fill the vacancies in five Assembly districts created by the Assembly's action.

The Socialists explained that thus they hoped to submit their case to "the court of popular opinion," or, in other words, to get an expression upon their fitness to serve as legislators by the voters in the affected districts who, they said, "for the time being have been disenfranchised" by the action of the Assembly in expelling chosen representatives of those districts.

Charles Solomon, Brooklyn Socialist who is among the mei expelled, in making a statement late last night as to the decision of the sub-committee, which then was still in session, declared that the purpose of the men, as agreed on finally, was to rest their case entrely on this popular referendum and not to make any appeal to the courts for reinstatement. When the meeting adjourned, however, S. John Block, in giving an account of the proceedings, said that Mr. Solomon had erred in his earlier statement.

"This (decision to ask a special election) will not exclude taking legal action in the courts," Mr. Block said. "The question whether the Socialists will go to court, although given much discussion at 'tonight's' meeting was not definitely decided."

"We regard the expulsion of our Assemblymen primarily a question for the people and not for the court to decide. We may, however, decide to submit one phase of the question to the court. This will be decided upon by the committee in a few days.

"There are some very important matters to come up shortly, and the present Legislature is expected to adjourn in about ten days. In all probability Governor Smith will be forced to call a special session of that body to consider these questions."

It was learned after the meeting that the Socialists plan an excursion into Speaker Thaddeus C. Sweet's own political baliwick, Oswego County. Several of the Socialist orators who are well known here will, it is expected, be sent into the city and County of Oswego and the case of the Socialists against Speaker Sweet will be given first-hand to his constituents.

Among those at the meeting were William Karlin, Walter Nelles, Gilbert E. Roe, Morris Hillquit and Justice Jacob Panken, Mr. Block and Mr. Solomon.

In the letter to Governor Smith which Mr. Block sad he would send today, asking the special session, Mr. Block said he would point out that the action taken against the Socialists in the Assembly in the forenoon of April 1 was taken by the Assembly in the legislative day of March 31, which continued through the night of March 31 and into the forenoon of April 1 without adjournment.

"In addition to that," said Mr. Block, "if the Governor should not accept the suggestion we make he is still under a legal duty to call such a special election in these five districts, if he should decide to call a special session of the Legislature after the present Legislature adjourns."

The Committee of Eight held that Governor Smith undoubtedly would acquiesce in the request for a special election. They said that he would do so on the ground that the seats of the Socialist Assemblymen actually were declared vacant before April 1, the legal members of the Standing Committee contending that the last session of the Assembly did not reach over until April 1, but was actually a continuation of the March 31 session, and that therefore the five districts which the Socialists represented weer not represented as they should have been.

Asked if he knew of any way the Socialists could guard against a repetition of expulsion of their Assemblymen in the future, providing a special election would find the now expelled Assemblymen re-elected or other Socialists in their places, Mr. Block said he knew of no way to block similar action again being taken by the Assembly.

The State Constitution (Article III., Section 10) says of the powers of the Legislature:: "Each house shall determine the rules of its own proceedings, and be the judge of the elections, returns and qualifications of its own members."

"Kitty MacKay" Plus Music.

Lily	Miriam Collins
Mrs. McNab	Louie Emery
Winkie	Colin O'Moore
Sandy	Ralph Nairn
Jean MacGregor	Alma Mara
MacGregor	Percival Vivian
Meg Duncan	Molly Pearson
Kitty MacKay	Tessa Kosta
Lieutenant the Hon. David Graham	Roland Bottomley
Philip Grayson	Carl Hyson
Lady Gwendolyn Spencer-Hill	Dorothy Dickson
Lord Inglehart	David Glassford
Mrs. Grayson	Ada Sinclair
Robbins	Robert Smythe

With the enchanting music of "Lassie" still lingering in the mind and the memory still fresh of all its daintiness and humor and charm, it is practically obligatory to report that the piece which made its first appearance in Manhattan last evening at the Nora Bayes Theatre is far and away the gayest and sweetest of all the new ventures in musical comedy and comic opera which the season has witnessed. It is our old friend "Kitty MacKay," prettily remounted, embellished with a delightful score that is the work of a real musician and fortified by people who can really sing. Tuneful, characterful, infectious and richly orchestrated, Hugo Felix's music has taken a passable comedy of a by-gone season and turned it into a joyous and beguiling entertainment.

It is all so well done—from the sweet singing of Colin O'Moore to the tonic comedy of Molly Pearson, from the dainty measures tread by the well-drilled chorus to the fetching costumes worn by the same. "Lassie" has been lucky all the way through—and it was not the least of its good fortunes that Edward Royce directed the staging of it. It was he who put on the musical comedies in the pleasant sequence that once made the Princess famous and it was he who staged "Irene." He has surpassed himself in "Lassie."

This sentimental story of a little hieland Cinderella must be fairly familiar to the present generation of theatregoers, for "Kitty Mackay" had an interminable run and much of its original quality has survived the adaptation. You may be sure that that hilarious adventure in scriptural exegesis by Kitty and Meg Duncan has not been much tampered with. Do you remember how Meg decided to rewrite the Bible to suit herself and planned to begin by leaving out the chapter containing the "brazen begats"? Here is where Molly Pearson comes in—the strongly burred Miss Pearson, who came to us with "Bunty" and belongs in every Scotch comedy that wants to thrive in our town.

Tessa Costa is the Kitty—a trifle saccharine in speech, but a very pleasing person to behold and one who sings the Felix melodies very prettily. Colin O'Moore or James Harrod (he sings under both names) has an excellent voice which he knows how to use, and he uses it with great success in his farewell ballad, "Kitty of Juniper Green." This and "Lassie," which is capitally sung by Roland Bottomley, are likely to assail your ears very often in the next few years. There are other numbers even more seductive which are less surely destined to be rubbed in. This is true of the tinkling music of "Fairy Whispers" and of a spry and diverting sextette number, which picks out in xylophonic accompaniment (by the tap-tap-tapping of silver on china) the refrain about "a tiny, shiny teacup and a spoon."

Once or twice the music slips to a lower level—especially in one number that sounds as if it had been tucked in to allow of more dancing by Dorothy Dickson and Carl Hyson, those triumphant survivors of the once numerous clan of ballroom dancers. It would perhaps be ungrateful captiousness to wish out loud that they just danced and did nothing else. Miss Dickson is rather by way of being a vision to behold and she dances with her winsome shoulders as surely as Mrs. Fiske acts with hers.

DUNCAN DANCERS CHARM.

Win Popular Success in All-Schubert Program at Metropolitan.

Evidently there is a public prejudice in favor of dancing to dance music. The unmistakable popular success of the all-Schubert program of the Isadora Duncan dancers at the Metropolitan Opera House last night proves it—and points the finger of odious comparison at other Tuesday night special programs of other dancers in face of the same big houseful. For the audiences at all the performances were curiously the same.

To be sure the Isadora Duncan dancers have the advantage of a rare combination of youth and grace and training. They are young women lovely to look at in motion or poised for motion. But what counts for as much or more is the fact that their moving is done to music written for the rhythm of motion—specifically the motion of young human bodies. Whatever one's private taste in music may be and whatever one's personal opinion of dancing as an art allied to music there is no denying that Schubert's music is dance music.

The combination of that music with the Isadora Duncan dancers produces a lovely, gracious and harmonious whole—a something so provocative of pleasure in people not insensible to simple beauty that it must not be too severely criticised by those who elevate art—their own particular art—to a position above mere beauty and somewhere between science and religion.

Anna, Lisa, Erica, Irma, Margot, Therese—or all but one of them, for one was missing—moved charmingly through tragic and solemn measures, gaily and lightly through waltzes and leaping and tripping harmonies and triumphantly through the Marche Militaire. The applause they won was well earned, and the symphony orchestra under Edward Falck's baton played as music should be played for such dancers. If that be treason make the most of it.

GEST ENGAGES DELYSIA.

Contracts to Give French Singer Champagne Daily in America.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, April 6.—Morris Gest signed a contract today to bring Alice Delysia, a French singer, to New York in October in "Afgar," with the complete London production.

"The most serious part of my contract," said Gest, "is that I had to make a gentleman's agreement with Delysia to supply her with a bottle of champagne daily during the American tour. I don't know how I'll manage it."

DENIES ARMY POLICE TALE.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 6.—Brig. Gen. W. W. Harts, who was in command of the American military forces in the Paris district during the war, and is now chief of staff of the American forces in Germany, appeared before a special committee of the House today and defended the conduct of the military police in Paris. He was ordered home to explain conditions in Paris while the war was on, as the result of charges of extreme cruelty to American soldiers in military prisons in and near Paris.

General Harts said he had no defense to make.

"I am proud of my administration," he said. "Everything done by me in Paris was creditable."

The General denied that "strong-armed, 'hard boiled,' bloodthirsty police companies 'swept the streets of Paris making wholesale arrests of American soldiers.'"

MUSIC

By Richard Aldrich

"Elijah" at the Music Festival.

The much announced festival of the Oratorio Society began last evening in the Armory of the Seventy-first Regiment at Park Avenue and Thirty-fourth Street, and with every prospect of success. The vast spaces of this fortress were almost completely filled, on the floor and in the gallery. A stage had been erected on the Thirty-fourth Street side of the building to accommodate the chorus, whose numbers were given as 1,500, and the New York Symphony Orchestra, augmented to a number put at 150. The festival is to consist of five performances, all conducted by Mr. Walter Damrosch. The first performance, last evening, was devoted to Mendelssohn's "Elijah."

There were festivals of the same sort given in New York under Dr. Leopold Damrosch in 1881, and under Theodore Thomas in 1882. The 7th Regiment Armory was used, and similar vast numbers of executants took part. Much might be said as to the musical value of these monster occasions; as to whether there is a real reason for them and a real need for them in such a musical centre as New York; as to whether there is an artistic gain in giving "Elijah" or any other of the works that are on the present festival program with 1,500 singers in a vast edifice built for military evolutions, rather than with 200 or 300 in a hall intended and adapted for music.

There are choral compositions projected for such numbers and such surroundings; as the gigantic works of Berlioz, who dreamed of stupendous performances that he delighted to call "Babylonian-Ninevite" and by other extravagant adjectives, fitting the extravagances of his imagination. The English have taken pleasure in giving Handel's works in a similar fashion.

Enormous size, however, is not a necessary quality of a "music festival." Many of the most significant of such festivals, here and in other countries, have been the result of a development that had no connection with great numbers. Worcester, Bethlehem, Cincinnati, Norfolk have meant something else. And if the two occasions in New York of 1881 and 1882 and the two Boston "Peace Jubilees" of a few years earlier were notable first of all for their monstrosity, it cannot be said that the American idea of a festival is inseparably connected with that quality.

Perhaps the idea of vastness in the present music festival was conceived with the purpose of reviving interest in choral singing in New York. For whatever reason—and much might also be said on this score—that interest has been dwindling. The thrilling quality of the sound of a great chorus undoubtedly strikes a responsive chord that vibrates in many cases more feebly to choral singing that relies solely on more purely artistic qualities.

It is the only reason for giving such music as is to be performed this week on such a scale as prevails in the Seventy-first Regiment's Armory.

It was heard unmistakably in the choruses of "Elijah" last evening. The body of tone was not only big—it had beauty. The chorus sounded well balanced; if the male voices were inferior in numbers, the men were banked so high in the back that their tone was projected vividly forward, sometimes over and above that of the women.

For so large a body the singing was of unusual finish. The attack was firm, sometimes quite stunning in its power. The choral shading was well developed and denoted careful training. If Mr. Damrosch's tempo was sometimes rather deliberate it was a necessity from the size of the forces he was handling. Yet the effect was not that of unwieldiness. Thus the choruses in the episode of the fire were delivered with energy as well as with imposing volume, and there was a similar spirit throughout the performance.

The solo singers included Mme. Frieda Hempel, Mrs. Rachel Morton Harris, Mrs. Merle Alcock, Edward Johnson and Louis Graveure. Mr. Graveure was highly artistic and impressive in his singing of the music of Elijah, fitting it with various and pointed dramatic significance, the fervor, devotion, irony, prophetic vision and resignation of the Man of God. There was needed only a greater weight and power of voice; no greater clearness of diction or comprehensibility could be asked for.

Mme. Hempel surprised some of her admirers by the excellence of her English, as well as by the command she showed of the style. Her voice showed the well remembered beauty of quality and delivery. Mrs. Alcock's voice, likewise beautiful, was admirably used, and Edward Johnson, last heard here in music depicting a very different scene, in "Aphrodite," sang in fine voice and fervid style.

The acoustics of the armory are no doubt different to listeners seated in different parts of it. In the middle of the hall they seemed of surprising excellence, advantageous to the choir and as little destructive to the efforts of the solo singers as might well be.

The audience was appreciative as well as large, and indicated enjoyment of the performance.

Play Dances' Aid Smith College Fund

Ruth Cramer and Janet Jackson gave a Spring program of "play dances" at the Fulton Theatre yesterday afternoon for the benefit of the Smith College Fund, assisted by Rosalind Fuller in folksongs and ballads, and by the pianist, Lillian Jackson, a graduate of the college in 1913. A house filled by Smith graduates, many accompanied by their children, applauded the Misses Cramer and Janet Jackson in their popular dances and pantomimes, to which they added several novelties, "In an Irish Jaunting Car," by Katharine Thomas Whitfield, and "The Little Visitor," by Pirani.

Marie M. Du Carp Makes Debut.

Marie Magdeleine Du Carp, a French pianist and former prize winner of both the Lille and Paris Conservatoires, gave a matinée recital yesterday at Aeolian Hall, a "first" appearance justified by sincere and ripe musicianship. She played a Bach-Tausig toccata and fugue, Schumann's "Etudes Symphoniques" and one of Liszt's "St. Francis" legends with imaginative delicacy and charm. The same qualities were clearly revealed in lighter studies of Chopin, Debussy's "Cathedral," Ravel's "Jeux d'Eau" and the novel "Sand Flies" by Philipp.

Joseph Schlisky in Song Recital.

Joseph Schlisky, a young cantor of this city, who made an Aeolian début as a concert tenor last year, gave his second recital of the present season at Carnegie Hall last night, assisted by the Russian cellist, Max Gegna. Mr. Schlisky was heard in operatic selections from Mozart and Puccini, as well is in Jewish folksongs and traditional airs.

MUSIC NOTES.

Hugo Riesenfeld, first violin of the Manhattan Opera years ago, is to play at the Hippodrome concert on May 2 for the Oscar Hammerstein Memorial Fund.

Jascha Heifetz, the violinist, is making another of his last appearances in America for a season or two at the Newark Academy this evening.

OPERA BENEFIT MONDAY.

Scenes from Four Works for Fund —Next Week's Repertoire.

Nine performances are planned at the Metropolitan next week, the twenty-second and last week but one of the season. At Sunday's concert the stars are Mischa Elman, Rosalie Miller and Clarence Whitehill. A special Monday matinée for the company's fund engages Farrar, Barrientos, Ponselle, Harrold, Martinelli, Scotti, De Luca, Mardones and others in scenes from "Forza del Destino," "Rigoletto," "Tosca" and "Samson." Another special matinée, on Friday of next week, will be the eighth and last of "The Blue Bird," led by its composer, while "Zaza" reaches a seventh hearing at the popular Saturday night, with Martinelli.

The subscription operas are: Monday, "Pagliacci," sung by Caruso, Muzio and Amato, preceded by "L'Oracolo" with Sundelius, Arden, Althouse, Scotti and Didur; Wednesday, "Madame Butterfly," Farrar, Lazaro and Scotti; Thursday, "The Prophet," Caruso, Easton, Matzenauer, Rothier, Mardones; Friday evening, "Eugene Onègin," Muzio, Martinelli, De Luca, and Saturday matinée, "Lucia," Barrientos, Lazaro, De Luca and Mardonès.

Jan Chiapusso, Pianist, Reappears.

Jan Chiapusso, a pianist of ability, twice heard last year, reappeared at Aeolian Hall last evening in a program of many novelties, though including such works as the B minor Sontana of Liszt and waltzes of Brahms. Of interest to his audience were Hahn's "Revery of Prince Eglantine," a "Molto Allegro" by Johann Schobert, "Erotana," by Albeniz, and "Portrait of Johann Strauss," Godowsky.

THEATRICAL NOTES.

The entire production of "Abraham Lincoln" will be taken to New Haven on Sunday afternoon for a performance in aid of the Bryn Mawr Endowment Fund. The proceeds will go to the New Haven Committee of Bryn Mawr Alumnae.

Next Monday will mark the fifteenth anniversary of the opening of the Hippodrome. The customary parade will be omitted this year.

A. L. Erlanger and Florenz Ziegfeld, Jr., will produce a revue next season with Eddie Cantor as its star.

Julia Bruns has been engaged for a play which the Shuberts will soon place in rehearsal.

A new one-act play entitled "Laughing Harry," with Frank Morgan and Clarence Derwent in the cast, will be presented at the New Amsterdam Sunday night on the program for the S. Rankin Drew Post.

Richard Ordynski, who sailed on Saturday to produce plays in Poland, was presented by Booth Tarkington with all Polish rights to "Clarence."

THE TRACTION FARES BILL.

The notion that a five-cent fare is a "psychological necessity," in Secretary Baker's phrase, because real estate values depend upon it, has been superseded by the discovery that the existence of the companies is a superior necessity, and a better safeguard of real estate values than the collapse of the companies because of starvation on nickel fares. As a matter of fact, fifty-nine cities were paying 10 cents some months ago, and the number is larger now. The nickel fare has been increased in 413 cities, in all States but three, by a population over 33,000,000; over 70 per cent. of the population of the nation if interurban companies be included with the city companies. There were seventy-five rates of traction fares months ago.

The nickel fares, with or without paid-for transfers, come higher than when two or three rides could be had for one payment. Oftentimes walking is compulsory when the nickel fares fail to sustain the companies, or is uncomfortable when extemporized services are substituted with four miles the longest for a nickel. When the energetic New York City officials invited bids for bus services on longer routes there were no offers, and buses are scarce outside of the crowded hours. Of extension of bus service into undeveloped territory in hope of future profits, such as was expected and received from the trolley companies, and exacted from the dual subway, there is not the faintest hope. Whoever is accessible to reason must admit that there is reason behind the movement for some orderly settlement of the difficulty in this city and State.

The measure now pending is permissive, not mandatory, and follows the plan which has been approved by experience where it has been tried. The cost-of-service plan, or sliding-fare plan, is a rational substitute for the plan which has failed because of its inflexibility, of fares on the one hand, and on the other hand of will to agree to modifications of contract on the part of the authorities. Both difficulties are met by the plan of not substituting another inflexible contract for the one which has caused the trouble, and of substituting those charged with the responsibility of fare regulation for those trustees of city interests who are so true to their trusts that they defeat the object of their trusteeship. Even they are still to have another opportunity to agree upon the plan, which is no novelty, but has been approved by other officials in like conditions.

The plan proposes a budget for the traction companies, with features bearing a general resemblance to the steam railway plan which the country has approved. The maximum of 10 per cent. on investment is named, but not fixed, for the entire plan is subject to agreement. Above that there is to be a division of the excess among the local authorities, the corporation and a fund for the reduction of fare when reduction is justified by conditions. Reservation is made of the rapid transit act affecting this city, and provision is made in general terms applying to this city by description whereby the failure of the local authorities to start negotiations enables application to be made to the Public Service Commission for a determination of a substitute contract according to decision after hearings.

Nothing human is above criticism, but here at least is a balance of merit and an opportunity to prevent bad conditions from becoming worse as the result of ill-considered attempts to better them by indirection and duress. What is needed is some means of passing over the war crisis, without which there would have been no need of action. If the War Labor Board had not ordered that wages should be raised, and neglected to order that fares should be raised, there would have been no trouble. The contracts and franchises are not defective in themselves, and when the war emergency has passed all may become as it was before, unless the new agreements may prove themselves preferable with their hopes of less than a nickel fare. That has been the result in some other cases, and there is nothing impossible about such a happy ending here. A settlement by agreement, which is the first alternative of the proposal, is in all ways better than a settlement by bankruptcies, or by statute, or by mandate of an official committed inflexibly to any adjustment which has been proved a misfit by facts beyond his control. There are no profits, pecuniary or political, in quarrels, particularly for the party on the wrong side of the dispute.

FIFTH AVENUE WEEK.

Long before the advent of Blasco Ibanez it was patent to the cosmopolitan eye that Fifth Avenue is "the "most splendid thoroughfare in the "world." For one thing, no other metropolis focuses in a single street so much of its life and color. It is the centre of fashionable residence, of club life, of hotel life, of shopping of all sorts, from linens and laces to antique rugs, rare furniture and old masters. It is our Bond Street, our Piccadilly and our Park Lane rolled into one. The Rue de la Paix and Champs Elysées, Unter den Linden and Friedrichstrasse, the Kohlmarkt and the Ringstrasse may each have its pride of light and of color, but they are stray [illegible] of glass, not the full kaleidoscope. That, however, is largely a result of accident in civic development; the true distinction of Fifth Avenue is in its native character.

Though we are not reputed an expressive, a dramatic people, our foremost avenue is conscious in its appeal to the eye as is no other street in the world. For almost two centuries we had the church parade of a Sunday, and traces of it still struggle against the surging throngs of the twentieth century. As piety ceased to be demonstrative, commerce in its different way took up the rôle. Fifth Avenue is many things that are picturesque and pleasing; but today it is primarily the street of shop windows. In London or Paris, if you are seeking the ultra-magnificent necklace or tiara, the rarest etching or the most famous old painting, you pass through a noncommittal shop front and are led into a chamber, dim and remote, where the treasure is revealed amid rites almost religious. In that there is salesmanship, and no doubt of the highest order. But it is not our manner. Each shop front aims at distinction. The windows are often conceived as theatric stages, curtained and lighted as such. The rarest treasures are, it is true, usually held in reserve; to see them is the privilege of the knowing few. But in the display arranged for the passerby beauty abounds and treasures won from the five continents, the seven seas. The spirit is that of the Oriental bazaar, of the markets glorious forever in the Arabian Nights.

This week Fifth Avenue is putting its best foot forward. It is a week of Spring, or it should be, and many guests are here from far regions of the West and the South. The fame of Fifth Avenue Week has spread throughout the country; and even while other cities are deploring current revelations as to Broadway, many of them cannot refrain from kind words for the Avenue of Shop Windows.

THE RESULT IN MICHIGAN.

The Michigan result is one of the most curious things in the preconvention campaign. Johnson's large plurality over Wood is something that Johnson's own supporters would have been sanguine indeed to expect. Equally unexpected was Hoover's vote in both parties. The part that the weather played is something no one can estimate; the dispatches say that the great storm blocked the country roads to an extent that made many of them impassable. It was in the country districts that Wood was supposed to be strongest, it being a foregone conclusion that the radical elements in the cities, especially Detroit, would be more likely to express their preference for Johnson. The Upper Peninsula, a Roosevelt section, went for Wood.

Michigan of late years has been an eccentric State politically as a result of its rapid industrialization and the increase of radical sentiment in the cities. The Socialist Party there went over to the I. W. W. and was cast out of the national organization in a body. There have been reports that prohibition was working havoc among the laboring element there. Four years ago the State instructed for Henry Ford as the Republican candidate for President, and this again was done by Detroit and other cities. Where the conditions are similar a like result is to be expected; but radicalism is not so strong in other States, and even where it is highly influential in the cities there is not much likelihood of its being able to overcome the country vote. In Ohio, for example, the industrialization of the State has made the old political calculations undependable without throwing it into the hands of the radicals.

The deplorable condition of the Democratic Party in Michigan was never better shown than by the half-pathetic, half-ludicrous showing it made in the primaries. At the head of the poll stands Hoover, who has announced that he does not want the Democratic nomination and is running as a Republican. Closely second to him is Governor Edwards of New Jersey, who represents nothing except a protest against the prohibition amendment and the Volstead law and is not to be regarded as a candidate in any true sense of the word. Behind Edwards come McAdoo, Palmer and Bryan.

Mr. Johnson's victory proves that a radical candidate can carry a radical constituency, and that, since Henry Ford revolutionized the industrial situation in Detroit, is what Michigan has become. It was as a radical, not as an opponent of the League of Nations, that he was voted for. There is not much evidence in the voting that issues were much considered; it appears more likely that men were considered instead.

It was a distressing day for the Republicans of the Old Guard. They view Johnson with alarm, Wood with distrust, Hoover with resentment for his impudence and his presumption. Yet these three, in the order named, lead the poll; while Governor Lowden, who is supposed to be favored by the Republican old-timers, takes the fourth place, polling only a little more than one-tenth of Johnson's vote. Such things are terribly upsetting, but when it is noted that on the day of these primaries the City of Detroit voted 89,285 to 51,093 in favor of a bond issue of $15,000,000 for the building of a municipally owned street railway, to compete with and doubtless destroy the Detroit United Railway system, it becomes plain that radicalism rather than politics determined the result in Michigan.

THE DEATH OF KOLCHAK.

Our times are too spacious and too complex to allow to individuals the dominant position that they have often held, despite a certain school of historians, in great crises of the past; and yet the epic and the essay on economics do not fully cover current history. There is still a place, if a minor one, for the drama of the individual, the action of the hero who, though subordinated to the chorus and the orchestra, still has his few lines to speak. And some of those lines are well and bravely spoken.

From Siberia has come at last the story of the end of Admiral Kolchak. When his armies gave way before the Reds and his Government fled eastward along the Siberian Railroad revolution broke out everywhere; in place of Kolchak's own officials, whose merit seems as a rule to have consisted principally in the possession of good intentions, and not always even in that much, rose up improvised governments of Social Revolutionaries. Overnight Kolchak's Government had collapsed, and he took refuge with some of the Czech troops that were slowly evacuating a country which they had so long protected.

The Czechs, as we knew, surrendered him to the Bolsheviki under threat that if they continued to protect him they would never be allowed to reach the sea. It is a stain upon an army whose record in other respects is one of the most brilliant and honorable in modern history; yet if there is no excuse for their act there are explanations; they and they alone had upheld Kolchak for months when he would have fallen without them; they had been disgusted with the incompetence of his Government, they had finally refused any longer to uphold a war whose issues had passed out of their hands, they were needed at home. Those students of history who do not ignore everything that happened before their own time will be reminded of the betrayal of Eumenes of Cardia by the Macedonian Regiment of Silver Shields; Eumenes was a better soldier and statesman than Kolchak, but Kolchak was able to improve on Eumenes in the difficult art, no longer so much admired as it deserves, of dying like a gentleman.

As in the case of the Czar, there was a rumor that rescue was at hand. Cossacks near Irkutsk were suspected of continuing loyalty to Kolchak, and the Bolsheviki, as usual, decided to take no chances. According to the report sent to The Globe by Mr. Forrest Stuart, based on the narrative of two American officers who were in Irkutsk at the time:

> At 3 o'clock on the morning of Feb. 7 the Admiral was awakened and told that he would be shot at 5. He arose, dressed himself in full uniform, drank a cup of tea, and wrote two letters. At 5 o'clock he was taken out into the jail yard, where he was stripped to the waist. Asked if he wished to be blindfolded, he answered "No"; snapped to attention, and faced his executioners—twenty riflemen. At the command they pulled their triggers and Kolchak fell to the ground, pierced by twenty bullets. The executioners were then told whom they had killed, and they cheered.

By contrast with this, Pepelayeff, head of Kolchak's last Ministry, who was shot immediately afterward, dropped on his knees and begged for mercy, offering to serve in the Bolshevist army as a common soldier if his life were spared. It was not.

Kolchak was an unsuccessful civil administrator, and not very successful as an organizer of war; yet much of the blame in each case must be put upon his material. His soldiers would not fight; that was not his fault, and only partly that of the men about him. His civil government in Siberia was a failure, and in some places worse; but no credible witness who was on the spot has impugned the integrity or the good purpose of Kolchak himself. Most of his subordinates were incompetent and some of them tyrannical; but as a rule they were the best he could get from the material at hand. He did his best for Russia, and that will be remembered in the future unless those who would confine history to select incidents illustrating their own dogma should turn out to be the heirs of the ages.

PICKETING THE EMBASSY.

The women who have been "picketing" the British Embassy at Washington, first from the street and now from airplanes laden with propaganda literature, may know more about what is going on in Ireland than anybody else, and they may sympathize deeply with the rebels, but they seem to be unfamiliar with the first principles of diplomatic intercourse between friendly nations as established by international law. Envoys, that is to say Ambassadors, Ministers and Consuls, must be protected by the States to which they are accredited. This means not only protection from assault but protection from persecution and annoyance, which, says an authority on the subject, "must find its "expression not only in the necessary police measures for the prevention of offenses, but also in specially severe punishment to be inflicted upon offenders."

It is held that "diplomatic envoys "are just as sacrosanct as heads of "States." Representatives would never be sent to any State to occupy a legation unless the Government recognized its obligation to protect the premises and guard the inmates from molestation, invasions of their privacy, ridicule and insult. They are official guests of the nation and cannot be expected to swear out warrants and find a policeman, like a private citizen, when their privileges are disregarded and their rights are flouted.

The British Embassy has made no complaint to the State Department about the "picketing" of its grounds by petticoated friends of Irish independence, who assumed that, because they were women, they would be allowed to do what would not be permitted to men by the authorities. Some women have not yet learned that political equality means equality before the law, that they enjoy no privileges and exemptions which men cannot claim, that they cannot expect immunity from the penalty of their transgressions against even a minor statute. So when the Government was informed that the misguided volunteers were posted with accusing and obnoxious banners before the British Embassy and that their purpose was to annoy the official representative of Great Britain, it became the duty of the authorities, without complaint or appeal, to afford the necessary protection and to abate the nuisance. What can be done in the way of furnishing an air patrol against the latest form of the attack remains to be seen.

It was not necessary to hunt up an ancient Federal statute to keep the police in countenance. Friends of Irish independence in this country are not limited in their action and procedure, except that they must let British diplomatic officers alone. They may agitate lawfully as much as they please, but they must respect the obligation of the United States Government to protect the embassy in Washington, or consular quarters anywhere.

THESE PIPING TIMES.

In Jerusalem, holy city of three great religions, the greatest festival of two of those religions was distinguished by a riot in which there were 188 casualties. The military are now in control.

In Buenos Aires some medical students attempted to take their examinations despite a students' strike then in progress to obtain certain reforms in the university. One of the scab students was killed and the police made 130 arrests.

In New York an Italian tenement district was terrified by an explosion which wrecked a store, but which turned out to be no work of the Black Hand, but merely the result of too potent fermentation in a barrel of something or other that an industrious householder was making with yeast and raisins. And about the same time Federal officials were making investigation of a restaurant accused of profiteering in that it purveyed prunes at the price of five cents a prune.

The war is over, but these days of peace are not yet so tame that they cannot furnish some "moral equivalents" for most of its phenomena.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

An Aviator Lands on a Warship.

In the news that an airplane has not only started its flight from the deck of a British warship, but has returned to and landed on that warship after completing its flight, there is almost reason for concluding that some inventor has solved the problem of giving to airplanes the ability which every bird possesses—the ability to stop in the air its motion through the air at the moment before reaching the ground or whatever other termination of flight it has selected.

This the bird does presumably, or necessarily rather, by a skillful shifting of its wings, changing them from a position nearly horizontal to one nearly vertical. By that sort of wing adjustment a sparrow or a robin can land on a telegraph wire without any sign of shock to itself or to the wire, and if the aviator could do the same thing the perils of his art would be reduced to such an extent that the airplane would be a vehicle as safe as almost any other—quite as safe, for instance, as the automobile.

But to give the airman as much control of his wings as the bird has involves a further complication of his machine and so much would increase its liability to breakage or refusal to function that even the boldest of airplane manufacturers have hesitated to attempt it. There is difficulty, however, in believing that an airplane with rigid and immovable wings could be brought to a stop on a landing place as small as the part of a warship's deck that could be offered to it.

At least one landing has been made by a French aviator on the flat roof of a large building, but the feat evidently was considered too perilous for repetition. Yet there is no danger in prophesying that some day every achievement of the birds will be equaled—or bettered—by the operators of airplanes.

Everybody Thought Them Crazy.

Possibly the British aviator had a machine of the helicopter type and not one with wings movable on a longitudinal axis. Much thought has been given to such machines in the past by a few inventors, and theoretically they would work. In practice they have not been successful, but that is no proof that they never will be. Indeed, mechanical flight itself by any means was attained only after innumerable failures—after so many failures that most of us can remember when the man who tried to build a flying machine was classed by all possessors of what is called common sense with him who wasted his time in seeking perpetual motion or to square the circle. Nobody liked to have such a person as a relative, and in the opinion of the charitable he was at best a harmless lunatic.

Now anybody with tools and the skill to use them can make a flying machine that will fly, and the mystery has come to be, not the present performance of the once impossible task, but why it was not performed long ago. The too simple explanation of what the Wrights achieved is the existence of the gasoline engine. That did have something to do with it, but their own genius and persistence in the realization of the ancient dream counted for more.

Seemingly a Task for Experts.

That the public is going to be better served by the automatic telephones soon to be installed than by the present system is the confident assurance of the company's officials, and what they say we long ago were taught to believe. Yet the announcement of the change will excite some apprehension, for the process of establishing a "connection" between any two of thousands and thousands of transmitters and receivers seems to be a somewhat puzzling one, as described, and if "Central," with all her skill and training, makes mistakes as often as she does now, what is going to happen when the amateur telephonist has to manipulate dials and get a lot of letters and numbers into an exactly predetermined relation with each other?

Some of us do something like that now, with the simpler automatic equipment with which a few large buildings are provided for their private use, but it will take experience to convince most of us that we can deal in the same way with a whole big city and "long distance" as well. For the operation of machinery does not "come natural" to everybody, and to not a few it ever remains difficult or impossible.

That the income taxes have forced us all to become bookkeepers has been a sore trial to those whose talents or tastes do not lie in that direction, and now there is to come this automatic telephone to impose upon us all responsibility for mistakes we hitherto could and did ascribe to some young woman, invisible and remote, and therefore, safely scoldable and scornable. Thus, daily, does life lose its joys and grow more complicated!

A Strike Against a City.

"Before the week is up," declares the hopeful Vice President of the Marine Workers' Affiliation, "the cars will be backed up for miles. That applies to supplies of all kinds."

This optimistic person evidently has but a single aim—the success of the striking boatmen, and any means to that end he is ready to use. If it occurs to him that keeping all supplies from this city would mean in a few days hunger, and in a few more starvation, for a good many millions of people, he probably regards those indisputable facts as causes of rejoicing, since they increase the chances that the demands of the strikers will be granted.

Yet this is the use of a decidedly ferocious method for the attainment of success—one a good deal like the generally reprehended method by which the Germans protected their own interests in Belgium at the beginning of the war. These boatmen, in truth, are striking, not against their employers, but against all of the city's inhabitants, and the pressure they bring to bear is the threat of painful death if resistance is much prolonged.

This is war, certainly, but it is not exactly magnificent or generous.

Trebizond.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In a note to the Peace Conference President Wilson has expressed a wish that Trebisond be given to Armenia. The entire Pontus has practically no Armenian population and a very small Turkish one. The great majority of the people are Greeks. Armenia can have no serious claim to the territory, and the Armenians have admitted it to be Greek beyond question. It is rumored also that two harbors, Hopa and Atina, situated between Batum and Rizeh, be given to Armenia, and the Pontian Greeks in all countries protest against this most energetically. President Wilson's suggestion is fraught with serious danger, and I hope that Americans will help us Greeks to avert it.

Good Advice from Mr. Schwab.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Your publication of the speech of Charles M. Schwab to the students of Princeton University on Tuesday last, is worthy of preservation. In these days, when the customs of "high finance" and the "captains" thereof (with their motto of "Get there, no matter how, but keep within the law") smells to heaven, how refreshing and hopeful it is to read such a speech from a man whose record is one of deeds, delivered to a student body soon to embark on life's career. Such an address, teeming with good advice and highmindedness, should not be lost.

VERITAS.

GREEK OR BULGAR.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The recent note of our President in which Adrianople and Kirk-Kilisseh are declared "clearly Bulgarian in population" demonstrates very clearly how utterly misinformed our Government is about actual conditions in the Balkans. For, knowing how undeviating our President is from the path of justice, as it is given to a human being to see justice, we cannot explain otherwise his amazing statement about Adrianople and Kirk-Kilisseh than by imagining that those who advised him on the subject have given him incorrect information.

The report of the Interallied Commission on Thrace, appointed by the Peace Conference, that is, by President Wilson himself, states:

"The commission agrees unanimously that the claims of Greece to that part of Turkish Thrace which might be left outside of the separate zone of Constantinople are justified. The American, British and French delegations are of the opinion that the frontier should be fixed as indicated on Map 2." (The map is that one submitted by Mr. Venizelos.)

The scientific world would value much the statement of the sources of information which have led our President to the conclusion that the Turkish statistics were faked in favor of the hated Greeks, that the commission in which there was an American expert appointed by the President deliberately falsified facts in favor of Greece, and that the 225 American professors who, two months ago, signed a petition to the President, advising him of the complete justice of the claims of Mr. Venizelos on Thrace, know less geography, less history and fewer facts about racial distributions than the mysterious sources of information to the President.

REVISING OUR TEXT BOOKS.

For More Emphasis on the Maritime History of the Country.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Let me suggest another respect in which American histories might be rewritten to advantage in fairness of treatment of particular phases of our national development, in addition to what Professor Herbert Adams Gibbons proposes in Saturday's issue. I refer especially to the almost total ignoring of our maritime achievements throughout the record as presented in our school and college text books. Some months ago I examined two college text books on United States history, obviously written expressly for college undergraduate classes. What did I find? Both books were fully 500 pages in size. But in one I found a paragraph on shipping or navigation and in the other a page or two.

Now, the fact is that at the time of the Crimean war, as Richard Cobden stated in the House of Commons, our ocean-going tonnage actually exceeded that of Great Britain. Meanwhile, the decline and dwindling of our maritime prestige is equally ignored, as to causes and conditions contributing thereto, by our historians. Nor is our actual achievement in shipping on the Great Lakes noted with any due regard to the economic import of the stupendous achievement as a factor in making of this country the first power in iron and steel production.

I do not wish to discredit our writers of text books, because the work is difficult and does not pay the authors for their trouble; but the fact is that they are written too much from the viewpoint of the library and not enough from that of the perspective of a progressive national life.

JOHN FRANKLIN CROWELL.

Hungary and Rumania.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In your issue of March 5, 1920, in the editorial columns, "Hungary's Turn," you say: "Why should we reward those who fought against us [meaning Hungary] merely because they demand it and punish those who fought for us [meaning Rumania] merely because they did us a service?"

Hungary never fought against America. When Hungary declared war she had not the slightest intention of fighting against the United States. America declared war on Hungary because Hungary was an ally to Germany.

Rumania never fought for the United States, as Rumania did not enter the war with the intention of fighting for America, as America entered the war later.

An Appeal from Hongkong.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Would you please help me through your paper to find my two brothers, making it known that I, Edgar Charles Bell, former Sergeant in the Royal Engineers, late of Eddington, Warwickshire, England, and Green Island, Macao, China, would like to communicate with them. The last I heard of them, William Joseph Bell was in Newark, N. J., and George Edward Bell was in Toledo, Ohio.

KNIGHTS.

Came the Marquis de Lafayette.
The chimes rang out and the town was gay,
Bold in his youth he rode away,
Away to the West, and there he met—
Soldiers of France, brave Jouquerin,
Pelletier and his gallant crew,
Every one a fighting man—
Every one a man who knew
That life is brief and love is long
And liberty's all of a freeman's song.

Out to the struggling West he came,
Noble Marquis of Lafayette!
Out to the West he brought the flame,
The flame of France. His magic name
Caught men's hearts in its magic net.
The flame of France to a darkened land,
On and on in the struggle it went;
The flame of France to a stumbling band,
Ragged and worn and all but spent.
It gave new zeal to the freemen's fight
Till the whole world shone in its glorious light.

Back to Metz from the wondrous West,
Hail to the Marquis of Lafayette!
Back with bays from a chivalrous quest—
Write his name with the nation's best,
The names Columbia can't forget.
In the heart of Metz, there let him stand—
In America's heart his niche is made—
Facing the West, his sword in hand—
Glorious, young and unafraid!
Knight of France in a hundred fights,
Take this tribute from New World Knights.

HOPE FOR SHIP DEAL.

By Wireless to The New York Times.

BERLIN, April 6.—The proposal of certain American shipping concerns to invest money in the Hamburg-American Line is causing the liveliest interest in Hamburg, Bremen and Berlin.

It is believed that the Hamburg-American Line will place its extensive organization all over the world, its docks, warehouses and agencies in the service of these Americans, who have more ships than use for them, and that thus all or at least most of the sixty different lines which before the war operated under the name Hapag will be resuscitated with great benefit both to America and Germany.

GENERAL SIBERT RESIGNS.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 6.—Major Gen. William L. Sibert has been placed on the retired list of the army on his own application.

On March 1 General Sibert was detached from duty as Chief of the Chemical Warfare Service of the army and assigned to command the Fifth Division at Camp Gordon, Georgia. It was said at the War Department, in explanation of General Sibert's voluntary retirement, that he was dissatisfied with the military post life after having been the head of the Chemical Warfare Service, in which he took a deep pride and interest.

Friends of General Sibert have indicated that his dissatisfaction arose from the belief that he had not been fairly treated. Shortly before his assignment to Camp Gordon he went before the House Committee on Military Affairs to plead for the retention of the Chemical Warfare Service as a separate branch of the military establishment and so impressed the members of the committee that they were understood to be out of sympathy with the effort of the War Department to subordinate the work of which General Sibert was in charge.

The fact that General Sibert was detached shortly after his testimony was given and the service placed in charge of a Lieutenant Colonel was construed by General Sibert's friends as meaning that the department was dissatisfied with his opposition to its views concerning the importance of the chemical warfare work.

COURT ORDER ENDS STRIKE.

Toledo Company and Men Sign Agreement Following Decision.

TOLEDO, Ohio, April 6.—With a working agreement between the Toledo Railways and Light Company and its car operators signed, service, which has been suspended by a strike since last Saturday morning, will be resumed tomorrow morning at 5 o'clock.

The announcement was made by Frank R. Coates, President of the Traction Company, following an order in the United States District Court which provided for resumption of service as soon as the men could be notified.

Judge John M. Killits fixed the rate of fare at 7 cents and 2 cents for transfers, and the wage scale, as demanded by the men, at 54, 56, and 60 cents with the proviso that either the city or the company may ask for modification. No date was set for a hearing for either faction.

The carmen who struck when the City Council failed to ratify an agreement entered into by the men, the company and Mayor Schreiber will receive pay for the time they were idle under the advanced scale.

PUSH WELFARE BILLS.

Women's League Asks That They Be Not Smothered in Committee.

Declaring that some members of the Legislature "through a perverted sense of party loyalty follow the dictates of the machine in violation of their own consciences in regard to such measures as the women's welfare bills," the Executive Board of the New York State League of Women Voters adopted resolutions yesterday demanding a "square deal" for these bills and asserting that they should not be permitted to be smothered in committee.

The resolutions mentioned specifically the Lowman-Simpson 48-hour week bill and the Cotillo-Roosevelt minimum wage bill, and asked Speaker Thaddeus C. Sweet to give them a fair chance in the Rules Committee of the Assembly, of which he is Chairman, and which failed to report similar bills last year.

Mrs. Gordon Norrie, Acting Chairman in the absence of Mrs. Frank A. Vanderlip, termed the political situation in the Legislature "distressing" to all believers in representative government.

"There is conclusive evidence," she said, "that, if such measures as the prohibition enforcement, teachers' pay and our own measures, the minimum wage and eight-hour day bills, were permitted to reach the floor of the Assembly and be voted upon, they would now be law. The action of the opposition in preventing the Labor and Industries Committee from reporting these bills out is in itself proof of this. It seems entirely wrong that a small, industrially insensible group should be able to block legislation which public opinion demands as a safeguard for over-worked, underpaid women."

BEGIN CHALONS HOSPITAL.

Maternity Institution Gift of Members of Society of Friends.

CHALONS-SUR-MARNE, April 6.—Work has been started on the 1,000,000-franc maternity hospital here, the funds for which were raised by the Society of Friends unit of the American Red Cross.

Some of the money came from the sale of supplies to the inhabitants at cost and some from donations direct by English Quaker girls who have participating in work which they describe as "a venture in international friendship."

The hospital is designed to replace temporary dispensaries and baby clinics which sprang up in the devastated regions in wooden barracks provided by the American Red Cross. Two English nurses will be placed in charge, and there will be about sixty endowed beds set aside for the free use of Chalons and neighboring villages.

PASSES RURAL HOMES BILL.

Senate Accepts Smoot's Measure to Acquire Private Lands.

WASHINGTON, April 6.—Senator Smoot's bill designed to give persons an opportunity to acquire rural homes was passed today by the Senate and sent to the House.

Under its provisions the Secretary of the Interior would be authorized to develop through the reclamation service privately owned lands at the expense of the owner and dispose of them in farms "in such manner and upon such terms as to him shall be deemed most feasible and practicable."

PRIZE WORKS OF NATIONAL ACADEMY

'THE RAPIDS,' BY SCHOFIELD

A Painting in Which Anatomy of the Subject Is Profoundly Studied—Robert Spencer's "Green River."

The National Academy of Design unquestionably has made an effort. It is many years since so strong and diversified an exhibition as that now open at the Brooklyn Museum has been achieved. As it approaches its centenary the academy flaunts gayety, force and freshness in the face of those who venture to call it antiquated.

The fire in the Fine Arts Building that forced a change in the exhibition quarters proved not to be so disastrous as for the moment it seemed. The courtesy of the Brooklyn Museum was extended to the homeless society and the amplitude of wall space and light in the museum galleries adds greatly to the admirable effect of the exhibition as a whole. It was hung in a space of three days—over 800 exhibits—and it is almost well hung, which is quite the most one can say for any large exhibition of diversified character. It seems practically to be impossible to secure breathing space for the individual examples. The division of the galleries into small rooms and cubicles gives an opportunity of which, no doubt, more could have been made for bringing together companionable groups.

Mr. Blashfield's large decorative "Angel with the Flaming Sword," in the section which may be assumed to correspond to the old Vanderbilt Gallery of the Fine Arts Building, is the only thing approaching a focal point, but agreeable and accomplished painting is everywhere along the line. The "Angel with the Flaming Sword" is not only a focal point, it is a touchstone for quality in color. It dates back to 1891 in its original condition. Mr. Blashfield has repainted many parts of the composition; there are dashing sorties of blue and orange into the originally grave color scheme that look as though these colors had arrived fresh from the tubes, but they are disposed with such skill that nothing is thrown out of key by them. And the carrying power of the great panel, its dignity and good draughtsmanship and simple, manly color, hold their own with the younger paintings on the wall without reservation at any point.

The Hanging Committee had confidence enough to place it among pictures keyed up to the dizzier heights of the modern palette, and it has stood the test nobly.

The prize winners represent widely separated methods of painting and ways of seeing. James Hopkins takes the Thomas B. Clarke prize with his "Mountain Courtship," a picture that was shown a year or so ago in the Pennsylvania Academy and one of the most ingratiating of the artist's idyls of mountaineer life. Good painting and sound story-telling interest are brought together without sacrifice of either. The public of the east side and the west side of Brooklyn, Manhattan, the Bronx, Flatbush, can read with one accord the rustic love story told lucidly and with the grace of humor; and the painters have seen the virtues of the workmanship.

The Julius Hallgarten prizes are taken by Armin Hanson's "Boy with a Cod," Kentaro Kato's sensitive "Portrait of a Young Woman," and John E. Costigan's "Gossip." Anna Hyatt's "Joan of Arc" takes the Saltus Medal. The Altman Prize of $1,000 goes to "The Rapids" by W. Elmer Schofield, a painting in which the anatomy of the subject is profoundly studied.

The weight and motion of the water in the broken rhythms of its fall over the rocks are given their significance with an authority that discards all the superficial trappings of the scene. The award is an honor to the jury responsible for it. The Altman prize of $500 goes to Robert Spencer's "The Green River," one of the best the artist has done, showing more than his usual breadth and variety in the rich embroidery of the surface.

Henry R. Rittenberg's portrait of Elliott Daingerfield takes the Isaac N. Maynard prize. It has conspicuous merits, but falls rather easily into the class of portraits made for public places as a mark of respect to the subject. There is a sympathetic reading of character, but the studio environment in which the sitter appropriately is placed is confused and slightly distracting.

The presence of a roomful of etchings and drawings is a happy departure from precedent, and the work selected is of a very high order. The exhibition will be reviewed in detail at a later date.

NATION'S HEROES HONORED.

Gold Star Mothers Guests at Harlem Patriotic League Exercises.

Exercises commemorating the founding of the Grand Army of the Republic on April 6, 1868, and the third anniversary of the declaration of a state of war between the United States and Germany were held yesterday afternoon in Mount Morris Park under the auspices of the Harlem Patriotic League. A large delegation of school children, representatives of several Grand Army posts, the Woman's Relief Corps, the Sons of Veterans, and other patriotic societies, were present. The U. S. Naval Recruiting Band played.

A feature of the occasion was the presentation of a large American flag to Mrs. Laura B. Prisk, President of the Harlem Patriotic League, and known as the "Mother of Flag Day," to be placed in Mount Morris Park. The flag was given by the Department of Parks and dedicated to the "Defenders of our country in the Civil War and all other wars."

Among the guests of honor were a number of mothers of American soldiers who were killed in the World War.

APPEAL FROM CZAR'S SISTER

Grand Duchess Asks American Aid for Refugees in Siberia.

Grand Duchess Olga Alexandrovna, sister of former Czar Nicholas, has sent from Belgrade where she is in exile, an appeal on behalf of the refugee Russians in Siberia, to the National Lutheran Council, 437 Fifth Avenue. Her cabled appeal has been received simultaneously with a report from Dr. J. A. Morehead, European representative of this organization, saying that in the Balkans particularly the need of relief and church reconstruction is enormous. The cable from the Grand Duchess reads:

"Having met Professor Morehead and heard from him of the relief work his commission has done and is doing in various countries of Europe, I can only find hope that this good work can be extended to Russian refugees in Siberia and elsewhere. May I also express with all my heart the hope after these trying years that the Christians of America may at the earliest practicable moment come to the aid of my suffering countrymen in Russia."

WILL AVENGE WIFE, CROKER WARNS KIN

Traducers "Had Better Look Out for Penitentiary," Says Tammany Ex-Chief.

MAKES LIGHT OF FORTUNE

"Will Sell Everything I Own for $2,500,000," His Reply to $10,000,000 Estimate.

Special to The New York Times.

PALM BEACH, Fla., April 6.—Richard Croker said today, as regards the case set forth against him by his children through affidavits in connection with their suit, that he would like to have as much publicity as possible given to the following denial of some of their claims: First, that he possesses no such great fortune as they have attributed to him; second, that he has already divided a considerable fortune among his children as a free gift, and, third, that there is no foundation for the insinuations made concerning his wife's character, which insinuations he so resents that the rest of the suit is of small importance to him in comparison.

"I also wish you would state," said Mr. Croker, "that I warn those who are guilty of making or of spreading these false reports about my wife that I will make demands for retribution which I will follow to the end. Some of them had better look out for the penitentiary. You might state that I am astonished that any respectable lawyers would attempt to make out such a case."

"Better leave the lawyers out of it," suggested his counsel.

"No, I will leave nobody out of it," Mr. Croker replied. "If my children and others had confined their remarks to myself I would have paid no attention to them, but I think that bringing my wife into this matter in the way they have done it, and without any basis whatever in fact for their charges, is the most outrageous thing I ever knew of. They have done everything by insinuation. Mrs. Croker will go on the witness stand, and she will show a proper accounting for every cent of mine she ever had anything to do with and go into whatever other matters are raised."

"Will you take the stand?" Mr. Croker was asked.

Ready to Take Stand.

"Certainly I will take the stand, if they want me to," he replied.

It was said by Harold Nathan, counsel for the defense, that in much of the matter he had seen published it was made to appear that Mr. Croker had given his children little if anything of his fortune. He said they had received approximately $720,000 from him in three accounts and Mr. Croker said that in addition to these accounts he had always been giving on occasions when they asked for it. Mr. Nathan said Mr. Croker had set his son Richard up in business three times and that this account had run up to not less than $300,000. Mr. Nathan further said:

"There was in addition their mother's estate, which the children received and all of which came from their father. Richard, Jr., says that his share of his mother's estate was $80,000, and as they inherited equally, this accounts for $320,000. The mother also left them her home, which sold for $70,000 and was divided among the children, and in addition to this Mr. Croker had created a trust fund of $100,000 which he finally turned over to his children outright. In addition to this I believe that Mr. Croker also gave his son Howard considerable sums of money."

Tells of Gifts to Howard.

"Yes," said Mr. Croker, "I gave Howard lots of money. The boys were always asking for it. I did my best to make something out of them in business, but it was no use."

"I have seen it published that W. F. McCombs has been stating in connection with this suit," Mr. Croker said, laughing, "that my fortune has been estimated at $10,000,000, or thereabouts. Here's an offer I will make: Anybody can have it all tomorrow, everything that I own, all my stocks, bonds, real estate, personal property, everything, for $2,500,000 in cash. That's a pretty good offer, isn't it? I am worth $10,000,000 and I will sell out for one-quarter that amount. This will be no surprise to Richard. He knows I am worth no such sum of money as is being claimed.

"This is all being put out to make it appear to the public that I have not taken care of my family the way I should have. I have always taken care of them and done everything for them I could. In addition to what I have given them I have gone to lots of trouble to throw business in the way of the boys, and out of this they should have made a good deal of money. I know that Richard has. Since Richard has been fighting me I have even looked after him in this way through my friends, without myself appearing in the matter. Furthermore, all of my children are married to people of independent means, although they may want some more, still they have had plenty.

Wanted Boys in War.

"The trouble with my boys is that they won't get out and fight for a living. They wouldn't even go to war. I wrote my son from Ireland when the war was on that I thought it had gone far enough without Richard and Howard getting into it. I said if I were ten years younger I would be in it myself, would go then if they could find me anything I could do, and that I wanted to see my sons in it. The letter I got back from Richard made me sick. The only thing I could get out of it was that they were afraid to go. At any rate they didn't go, did they?"

Both Mr. and Mrs. Croker are now receiving mail from all over the country from people offering support. Mrs. Croker has many letters from friends of her youth. A letter today to Mr. Croker from Arthur Brisbane states he had just been talking the matter over with Nathan Straus in Augusta, after reading a published statement from a court document, claiming that Mr. Croker at the time of his marriage was, through lack of mentality and for other reasons, incapable of reaching a sound decision or knowing his own mind. Mr. Brisbane says:

"I remember well being at Nathan Straus's house at a luncheon following your wedding and, if you wish it, I would be glad to testify as to your mental condition at that time. I think I could convince a jury that you were then, as you are today, thoroughly in possession of all your faculties."

Gerard Praises Croker.

James W. Gerard, in an affidavit filed today, says that he has known Mr. Croker since 1893, that about a week ago, before suit was brought alleging him to be mentally incompetent, he had a conversation with him lasting an hour and a quarter, and continues:

"If I have noticed any change in him up to date it is that he is more alert and more cheerful and more agreeable than he used to be. I know many of his old friends have during my stay here had ready access to him at all times."

Mrs. Frederick Edey of Bellport, L. I., filed an affidavit today saying she has known Mr. Croker for more than five years during which time she has had a winter home in Palm Beach, that she recently called on him to discuss women's suffrage, in which she is interested, and that she never saw him in better condition, physically or mentally.

Norman E. Mack's Tribute.

One of the affidavits filed today was that of Norman E. Mack, formerly Chairman of the National Democratic Committee. He states he has known Mr. Croker intimately for twenty years, and says:

"I see no difference in his mental condition now and twenty years ago. I have not seen the slightest thing here this Winter to suggest to me that his mind is less sound or alert than it was at the height of his career."

Describing a visit with him at the Hotel Breakers recently, Mr. Mack continues:

"We talked on general subjects and he showed the same shrewdness of mind and soundness of judgment as formerly. As to Mrs. Croker, I know her to be a woman of far more than average intelligence, well read, well equipped mentally, and in every way most charming and interesting. I know of no woman more sincerely solicitous for the comfort and happiness of her husband."

HEARS CROKER GAVE IRISH HOME TO WIFE

Sons' Counsel Tells of Transfer of Glencairn, Valued at $2,500,000.

A communication received yesterday from Ireland by McCombs & Ryan, counsel for three of Richard Croker's children in the Palm Beach injunction proceeding begun more than a week ago against their stepmother, Mrs. Bula E. Croker, revealed that Glencairn, the former Tammany chieftain's estate six miles from Dublin, was transferred by him to his wife some time ago. The estate has been variously estimated at from $2,000,000 to $2,500,000, but Mr. Croker has never publicly placed a value on it.

William F. McCombs, of the law firm, said the information was conveyed to him by a distinguished man in Dublin, who also stated that all the race horses owned by Mr. Croker, and which were in stables at Glencairn, had been duly transferred by him to his wife. The lawyer's informant also said that it was understood that Mrs. Croker, soon after she obtained possession of the race horses, placed them in charge of an Irish horse trainer named Grundy, who also has charge of the racing stable of several titled Irishmen whose estates are in the vicinity of Glencairn.

It was explained that Mrs. Croker, Sr., had leased Glencairn to a Mr. Myersgough for a period of two years, and that the lessee was residing on the estate. Much secrecy was maintained in connection with the conveyance of the estate, the letter explained. The conveyance of Glencairn and the race horses was accomplished in two deeds, it was declared, the originals of which now are in the possession of either Mr. Croker or his wife. Mr. Croker, before he deeded Glencairn to his wife, had leased a portion of the estate, and because of that fact one deed was filed in the office of the Land Commissioner in Dublin, so Mrs. Bula Croker might receive the rent for the part of Glencairn already leased. The other deed, a conveyance in fee simple, was recorded in the Register's office in Dublin, and conveys the rest of the estate. The race horses also turned over to Mrs. Croker are represented to be of considerable value.

Mr. Croker bought Glencairn in 1904. By the time his race horse Orby had won the English Derby in 1907 he had added to it until it consisted of 600 acres. Up to 1909, however, he used Wantage, his estate in England, for the training of Orby, and the animal's half brothers, Clonburn and Alabama, and the half sister, Rhodora, which won the Thousand Guineas' Stakes at Newmarket in 1908. In September, 1909, Mr. Croker retired from the English turf, and announced that henceforth he would devote his interest in race horses to breeding them on Glencairn.

PALM BEACH, Fla., April 6.—A statement given out in New York tonight by William F. McCombs that Richard Croker recently transferred Glencairn, his estate in Ireland, to his wife, was called to Mr. Croker's attention here tonight. Mr. Croker said: "It is true that I have given this property to my wife. It is not, however, worth $2,000,000. It cost $150,000 and could not be sold for $250,000 today. As usual, the value of my possessions is being heavily exaggerated. That is all I care to say about the matter at the present time."

Unexpected Thoughts
By DR. BERTHOLD A. BAER

The mere fact that you have learned to talk about a funeral in the spring of life, that you are looking at The Funeral Church as your institution, that you want the last rites for your dear ones conducted with as much beauty and comfort as possible, proves that Mr. Frank E. Campbell, founder of The Funeral Church, Broadway at 66th Street, has given expression to your innermost thoughts.

The individual who can think unexpected thoughts brings out of you the thought you never expected.

The charm of life lies in the unexpected.

Yet, you cannot arouse a thought unless that very thought lay dormant in you. Hence, the approval of the mission of The Funeral Church, the beauty of the last rites, the making of the last chapter of a life just closed commensurate with the life lived, is proof of beautiful thoughts in you which you are now glad to express.

We grow through expressions. © 1920

BUSH AND PENNOCK STRONG

Special to The New York Times.

WINSTON-SALEM, N. C., April 6.—Joe Bush and Herb Pennock turned the Giants back without a run today and the Red Sox finally managed to win another game, the score being 6 to 0. Bush, who was a flivver last year and who had not pitched an inning this Spring prior to today, was not favored by the weather, which was raw and cold. Despite that, he had a world of speed and a good jump on his fast ball and in only one of the four innings he pitched did he have any trouble at all. He allowed only two hits. Pennock also was in good form and let the Giants down with a brace of singles. The Red Sox had lost five straight games before winning today.

Jess Barnes, who started the game in the box for the Giants, did not have his accustomed amount of stuff on the ball and was wild in spots. Bill Ryan pitched the last four innings and did not do as well as he did at Mobile a few days back. He was very wild most of the time. Home runs by Hooper and Al Walters figured in the scoring.

Frank Snyder Injured.

The Giants sustained one casualty. Frank Snyder stopped a foul tip with the thumb of his right hand and was forced to retire from the game.

The Sox made four of their six runs in a bunch in the fifth inning. McInnis opened the frame with a single to centre and moved up on Foster's out. Scott beat out a tap down the third base line and Karr, batting for Devine, doubled to left, scoring McInnis and putting Scott on third. Livingston, batting for Bush, hit to Frisch, who threw Scott out at the plate, but Hooper slugged the ball over the centre field fence, scoring Karr and Livingston ahead of him.

The two other runs were hung up by the Sox in the ninth at the expense of Ryan. Hiller, first up, drew a base on balls, and Walters hit the ball over the left field fence.

The Giants got only one man as far as third base. That was in the third inning when they loaded the sacks with two out only to have Fletcher fan. Kelly, who was first up, struck out, but Gonzales got a scratch hit down the third base line and Barnes singled to left. Burns fouled to McInnis, but Young walked and the sacks were loaded. Fletcher then did his imitation of Casey at the bat.

Fine Catch by Hooper.

In only two other innings did the Giants get men on the bases. In the fifth inning Statz singled with two out, but remained stranded when Hooper made a splendid running catch of a long drive from Burns's bat. In the ninth, again with two out, Sicking singled to centre, but Hubbell, who batted for Ryan, was an easy victim and the game was at an end.

Tomorrow, which is the birthday of John McGraw, the Giants will play the Rochester Club of the International League in Rocky Mount, while the Sox are mingling with the Buffalo Club in Raleigh.

REDS TO CONTINUE TRIP.

Will Conclude Series with Griffmen in Cincinnati Sunday.

Special to The New York Times.

CINCINNATI, April 6.—When Manager Pat Moran of the world champion Reds decided to send several of his pitchers home from Richmond yesterday the report gained currency that the training trip of the champs and the Washington Americans had come to an end.

This report was unauthentic, as later developments showed, when the team managements decided to continue the jaunt through Virginia, winding up the exhibition series in Cincinnati next Sunday.

Moran today wired President Herrmann that the team was in good shape.

TO INVADE THE ORIENT.

University of Chicago Baseball Team Leaves for Tour of Japan.

CHICAGO, April 6.—The University of Chicago baseball team left tonight for its third invasion of Japan. On the previous trips, in 1910 and 1913, twenty-two consecutive games were taken from the Japanese University players. However, the Maroon invasions heretofore were after hard "Big Ten" conference seasons and in recent years the Japanese players have had expert coaching. Fred Merrifield, who was captain of the Chicago team in 1899, is leading the expedition. He coached in Japan three years since the Maroons last were there.

MISS STIRLING INJURED.

Golf Champion Painfully Cut in an Automobile Collision.

ATLANTA, Ga., April 6.—Miss Alexa Stirling, national women's golf champion, was painfully hurt last night while driving home in an automobile, which was struck by an alleged bootlegger's car, fleeing from the police. Physicians said today she was cut and bruised about the face, jaw and knee, but was not seriously injured.

The machine that hit Miss Stirling's car carried twenty gallons of liquor, the police said.

RESOLUTE TRIAL PLANS.

Cup Race Candidate to be Launched on April 19.

BRISTOL, R. I., April 6.—Robert W. Emmons 2d, managing owner of the sloop Resolute, candidate for the defense of the America's Cup, announced today that the Resolute would be put into the water from the Herreshoff yards here on April 19. He said that it was expected the sloop would have her first trial spin early in May.

Lipton to Ask Substitution If Old Boat Proves Faster

SOUTHAMPTON, England, April 6.—The 23-meter Shamrock, Sir Thomas Lipton's "trial horse" for the Shamrock IV., which is to sail against the American defender the coming Summer for the America's Cup, was given a trial spin today preparatory to proceeding to New York. Sir Thomas Lipton was on board.

Sir Thomas said that in the event the Shamrock III. should prove a speedier boat than the Shamrock IV. he would ask the New York Yacht Club to permit him to substitute the new boat for the old in the cup races.

Colonel O'Neill, who will represent Sir Thomas in the United States, will sail for New York next Wednesday on the Adriatic, which also will carry Shamrock IV.'s racing spars.

ROBINS PROFIT ON YANKEES' MISPLAYS

Score Five Runs in Ninth Inning and Defeat American Leaguers, 7 to 6.

Special to The New York Times.

GREENVILLE, S. C., April 6.—The Brooklyn Dodgers came from behind with a rush in the ninth inning here today, and before either Mogridge or the Yankees could right themselves put over five runs with the aid of six hits and some poor outfielding by Ruth and Gleich and won out, 7 to 6. It was the Dodgers' seventh victory out of ten starts, but it was a victory unearned and unsung. The Yanks played a poor game all afternoon, but managed to reserve the major portion of their bad baseball until the final inning.

Taylor, a recruit, opened the ninth with an easy fly to right, but Gleich lost the ball in the sun and it went for a double. Krueger, batting for Mamaux, singled and Olson did likewise, Taylor scoring. Then Gleich again came into prominence with a misjudgment of Neis's short fly, filling the bases. They didn't remain in that condition long, however. Johnston singled to centre, and Ruth, attempting to cut down a run at the plate, missed the ball entirely, three runs scoring and Johnston going to third, while Ruth engaged in a leisurely pursuit of the ball to the fence.

At this juncture Mogridge pulled himself together and fanned Wheat. Myers's tap to Peck eliminated Johnston on a rundown between the bases, Myers going to second meantime. Konetchy walked, the fourth ball being purposely wide, and Ward drove in the winning run with a single out of Ruth's reach.

Crowns Misspent Afternoon.

It was a crowning finale to a misspent afternoon. Into the ninth, the Yanks were one run to the good and thereup added three more, but in the light of ultimate events they weren't enough. A fit of wildness by Mamaux, following Ward's opening hit, set the stage for the rally. Ruel was passed and Mogridge defeated an infield hit, filling the bases, and then Mamaux forced over a run with another pass to Gleich while Peck's sacrifice fly and infield hits by Pipp and Ruth scored two more.

Lewis hit enthusiastically to Johnston but the latter made a great stop and throw to Olson, forcing Pipp and when Lewis loafed down to first a double-play resulted, depriving the Yanks of a very valuable run that had already crossed the plate when Lewis stopped running.

This bit of mental blindness was only one of the many the Yankees managed to perpetrate at one time or another. Two doubles, an error and a home run came in the fourth inning, but the best the Yankees could show for their trouble was two runs. Pipp was the main instigator of this particular bit of infamy. He doubled to start the inning and, after Ruth grounded out, took third on Ward's wild throw of Lewis's smash. The ball rolled a few feet away from Konetchy, but Pipp made a light-headed cut for the plate. He was out by the width of the Grand Canyon, more or less. Meusel then hit a home run among the pine trees behind the centre field fence, two runs scoring, and Aaron Ward continued the bombardment of Clarence Mitchell, who was pitching at the moment, with a double to centre, but Ruel flied out.

Ward Caught at Second.

Ward was the villain of the cast in the second inning. He attempted to go down to second as Neis was throwing to third to stop Meusel from advancing two bases on Aron's single, but the latter was just as easy a victim as was the vainglorious Pipp of the fourth.

Ruth and Lewis hit Mamaux in the sixth for successive singles, but Meusel and Ward fanned on six pitched balls and Olson came through with a fine one-hand stop of Ruel's smash for the third out. The Yanks, however, managed to break through in the eighth, hits by Ruth and Lewis and Olson's error combining to produce this comparative phenomenon.

The Dodgers got both of their early runs at the expense of Carl Mays. The first came in the fourth inning on singles by Wheat and Ward, interspersed with a pair of infield outs, and the other in the fifth as the result of Neis's double, which Gleich also managed to misjudge somewhat, and Johnston's subsequent single.

The Dodgers threatened in the seventh, but that was as far as they apparently cared to pursue the matter. Mamaux doubled to left centre and pulled up at third on Olsen's single, which was all right. He remained there, however, while Peck disposed of Neis at first, which wasn't all right, because the Yank was playing a fairly deep field at the time and any kind of running might have beaten the throw home. Be that as it may, Mogridge tightened up and fanned both Johnston and Wheat, the cleanup hitters.

HOLY CROSS SHUTS OUT JOHNS HOPKINS

Horan Allows Baltimoreans Only a Single Hit and Beats Them, 5 to 0.

Special to The New York Times.

BALTIMORE, April 6.—Some 500 persons braved the chilling winds to see the Johns Hopkins team defeated by Holy Cross this afternoon by the score of 5 to 0. The pitching of Horan for the visitors was noteworthy He set the heavy hitting Hopkins team down with one hit and retired eight by the strike-out route.

Love, one of the star twirlers of Coach Armstrong's aggregation, pitched sterling ball also, having four strikeouts to his credit, while he allowed but eight hits, which he kept scattered through eight innings, but eight errors kept him continually in hot water.

Barchet, who subbed for Sharrets at third base, was the fielding star of the game for the Black and Blue nine. Gagnon of Holy Cross showed up well in the field, especially on a slow hit ball in back of the pitcher, which he grabbed with one hand and got Egerton going to first.

CATHOLIC U. WINS EASILY.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 6.—The Lafayette College baseball team lost a weird contest to the Catholic University nine here this afternoon by the score of 14—4. The game was played under very adverse conditions, the cold weather making good baseball playing impossible.

Tierney started on the mound for Lafayette, but gave way to Seaman in the sixth inning after the home team hit him for eleven hits and eleven runs. In the sixth inning Tierney passed five men and made two wild pitches, which, with three solid hits, accounted for six runs. All the Catholic University players with the exception of Lyons made one or more hits.

AMHERST WINS IN 11TH.

Special to The New York Times.

CHARLOTTESVILLE, Va., April 6.—A cleverly placed bunt in the eleventh inning gave Amherst a well-earned victory over Virginia today, 4 to 2. After the Southerners had tied the score in the ninth, Maynard opened the eleventh for Amherst with an infield hit and Cowles was safe on Baughman's fumble. Both advanced on Brisk's sacrifice, Weber laid down a neat bunt, scoring Maynard, and Cowles registered on a passed ball.

MANOEUVRE SPRINGS SURPRISE AT BOWIE

Defeats Odds-On Favorite in Governor Ritchie Handicap—Big Day for Rodriguez.

BOWIE, Md., April 6.—J. F. Richardson's Manoeuvre, which scored a very easy victory against a field of selling platers last week, took a fling at a stake event here this afternoon and caused something of a mild sensation by capturing the Governor Ritchie Handicap and defeating the heavily played odds-on favorite, Slippery Elm. It was a surprise that the big gathering was hardly prepared for because Manoeuvre is usually listed with horses of the cheaper class and even a pull in the weights did not seem to give him a chance against a real stake horse. Manouevre won by only a head, while Slippery Elm was second eight lengths in front of Arrah Go On with Heroisme, the only other starter, bringing up the rear. Manoeuvre paid slightly less than 6 to 1 in the mutuels, while Slippery Elm had been sent to the post a 3 to 5 choice.

Small fields prevailed owing to the condition of the track and the feature had only four named for it. As the barrier was sprung Arrah Go On, with his usual early speed, dashed to the front and led for a quarter of a mile, while Slippery Elm was away slowly, as usual, and did not begin to be a real factor until conditions in the race had favored his rival. Roderiguez rated Manoeuvre nicely, and at the turn sneaked through an opening and gained the rail position. From that point he began to move up and soon was in front by two lengths, with Arrah Go On following.

Slippery Elm did not get into his stride and show any speed until he reached the head of the stretch and then Morris began to urge him. Morris saved some ground at the turn but Manoevre had gained a considerable lead by this time. Slippery Elm showed high speed once he was straightened out for home and made up ground very rapidly. He was more than four lengths back of the lead at the head of the stretch and he gained until Manoevre had but a head to spare at the finish and would have been defeated in a few more strides. The distance was a little less than Slippery Elm likes but a little more alertness at the start might have saved the winner's share for him anyway. Arrah Go On showed fine speed within a sixteenth from home when he weakened badly and was beaten off for second. Yet he had plenty to spare to hold third safely from Heroisme.

It was a big day for Jockey Rodriguez who rode four winners, his victory on Manoevre being the third in a row. In the second race he won very easily with Cobalt Lass in a six and a half furlong sprint, gaining the decision over Who Cares by three lengths by a great rush in the stretch. Mose was third. Cobalt Lass was kept close to Mose, which set the early pace, and when let down at the head of the stretch moved into the lead, raced neck and neck with Who Cares for a few strides and then drew away to win very easily. Mose tired and dropped back to third as he neared the finish.

BUYS BELMONT YEARLINGS.

McClelland Acquires Fine Collection of Well-Bred Youngsters.

BALTIMORE, April 6.—That the entire yearling output of the stud of Major August Belmont has been purchased by James McClelland was definitely announced by the latter today. All of these two-year-olds of 1921, which otserwise would have carried the silks of the Chairman of the Jockey Club, will thus be raced by Mr. McClelland and in the interests of himself, Edward F. Simms and Henry Oliver.

Among the most promising of these yearlings is Good Time, a bay, and son of Negofol and Hour Glass II., hence a full brother of Hourless, the John R. McLean Memorial winner of 1917. Another, My Play, a bay son of Fair Play and Mahubah, is an own brother of Man o' War, the juvenile hero of the season of 1919 and the prospective favorite in the Kentucky Derby of 1920.

Prelude, a daughter of Fair Play and St. Priscilla, is an own sister of Stromboli and a half sister of Priscillian. The others are all well connected.

These yearlings will put in the Summer at Edward F. Simms's Xalapa Farm. They will be broken and trained at Havre de Grace.

The total number of entries for the stakes, 1,171, was the greatest ever received by the Metropolitan Jockey Club and gives assurance of high-class sport for the local curtain-raiser.

JINX IS AT WORK ON TIGER OARSMEN

Spaeth's Squad Has Hard Luck in Illness and Bad Weather—Two Boatings Tried.

Special to The New York Times.

PRINCETON, N. J., April 6.—With the Harvard race less than a month distant, the rowing outlook at Princeton is far from bright. Dr. Spaeth has been forced to alter his training program because of a combination of circumstances, chief of which are the inclement weather which has prevailed here since last Friday and the absence of several of his star oarsmen through illness.

Bull Bryan has been out of his usual seat because of sickness, and Captain Lamont's injured kneee has not come around sufficiently yet to permit him to row. It is extremely doubtful if Lamont will be able to stroke the Tiger 'Varsity at Cambridge on May 1, for his knee, which he dislocated in an interclub basket ball game a month ago, is still bothering him a great deal.

The junior 'Varsity oarsmen, stroked by Campbell, are in such great shape that Dr. Spaeth has given them a short rest, rather than take a chance of having them stale. Benny McAlpin at bow and Campbell are among those now rowing in this boat who are most likely to receive a tryout in the 'Varsity shell in the near future.

Princeton's 150-pound crew is now seated as follows: Bow, Ransom; No. 2, Maxwell or Clark; 3, Pitney; 4, Thompson; 5, Strong; 6, Walsh; 7, Haines; stroke, Roberts.

This eight is regarded as an unusually strong one. Its personnel includes a number of 'Varsity candidates who have been handicapped by their lack of weight. It will row at the American Henley on April 29, and possibly against a Yale crew on May 15.

COLUMBIA VICTOR IN FENCING BOUTS

Defeats French Y. M. C. A. Foilsmen by a Count of 7 to 5—Twyeffort Stars.

Columbia University's fencing team defeated the French Y. M. C. A. representatives last night in their dual competition on the Y. M. C. A. strips by a count of 7 bouts to 5. The Blue and White collegians scored most heavily in the foils, gaining an advantage in this branch of the competition which proved an insurmountable hurdle for the Y. M. C. A. fencers. In foils the Morningside Heights lads captured 6 bouts to their rivals' 3. The épée or duelling swords bouts went to the Y. M. C. A., but in the sabre competition H. Reaves, with expert use of the weapon, scored over Paul Rosier by 10 to 8, and swung the balance in Columbia's favor.

The work of Herbert Twyeffort of the French Y. M. C. A. team was the individual feature. Alone Twyeffort accounted for his team's string of five successes. In the foils he was the only Y. M. C. A. fencer to come through unscathed, taking all three of his bouts. With the épée Twyeffort again showed supremacy, scoring a brace of victories, while the other contenders battled through bouts which produced double touches.

Dennis Bencoe, G. Farley and H. W. Forster each scored a brace of victories for Columbia in the foils, the victims in each case being Paul Rosier and S. Romineski.

The contestants were:

Columbia University—D. Bencoe, G. Farley, H. W. Forster, H. Reaves and R. Stelle. French Y. M. C. A.—Paul Rosier, S. Romineski and Herbert Twyeffort.

The summaries:

Foils—Bencoe defeated Romineski 8—2 and Rosier 9—7; Forster defeated Rosier 8—6 and Romineski 7—5; Farley defeated Rosier 8—6 and Romineski 10—6; Twyeffort defeated Farley 6—0, Bencoe 9—6 and Forster 9—6.

Eppe—Twyeffort defeated Forster and Stelle.

Sabre—Reaves defeated Rosier 10—8.

Total score—Columbia University won 7 bouts; French Y. M. C. A. won 5 bouts.

Inconspicuously Correct

Correctness in clothing as well groomed New Yorkers understand and express it, is a matter of reserve.

There are no novelties, fads or whims—but rather, a respectful regard for the fact that extremes are never a part of a gentleman's attire.

These stores understand those intuitive distinctions precisely—our models express the knowledge. Spring exhibits, now nearly complete, provide further evidence of the fact.

OUIMET TAKES NORTH AND SOUTH AMATEUR GOLF TITLE, BEATING GRAHAM HANDILY IN FINAL

NORTH AND SOUTH TITLE FOR OUIMET

BOTH IN SPLENDID FORM

Loser Offers Unexpectedly Keen Competition—Winner Completes Two Rounds in 145.

Special to The New York Times.

PINEHURST, N. C., April 6.—Francis Ouimet of the Woodland Golf Club, Boston, won the North and South amateur championship title at Pinehurst today at the thirty-second hole of his 36-hole final contest with S. J. Graham of the Greenwich Country Club, Greenwich, Conn. Ouimet played the two rounds in 72—73—145 and won by 5 up and 4 to play.

This is the first time the Boston golfer has won the North and South amateur event. His list of past and present championship titles includes the Boston Interscholastic, Massachusetts amateur, which he has won four times; the French amateur, Western amateur, Natoinal amateur, National open, and the North and South amateur.

Ouimet went around in 36—36—72 in the first half of today's final and was five up at the eighteenth hole. In the afternoon round Graham played some mighty good golf of his own and led the Boston golfer down to the initial five-hole advantage.

Pinehurst, largely speaking, took the final result for granted, spent the afternoon at the horse show, and missed one of the best rounds played here this season. Ouimet finished in 35—38—73 this afternoon and Graham, with some careless playing on the bye-holes, went around in 36—40—76.

Graham Always on Defensive.

Ouimet's fine round of 72 this morning was even better than it looks, for it was decidedly chilly and windy when the play began. Incidentally, the figures included a stroke lost through a stymie. Graham's 78 also included one lost by a stymie and one or two strokes lost in desperate efforts to join Ouimet on the green from more or less impossible situations. Ouimet had the better of it on the long game all the way around, and although Graham did the better work on the greens, he was suffering from the disadvantage of being on the defensive right along.

Ouimet started out by taking the first hole with a birdie four. Driving for the second, Graham's ball rolled to the foot of a railway post on which he had to drape himself for his second shot. Despite this trifling disadvantage, Graham managed to halve the hole and came mighty near winning it with a four. A birdie three on the third hole put Ouimet two up, but he slipped back to one up when Graham sank a 25-footer for a birdie four on the fifth which gave the Greenwich golfer his first and last win in the entire round.

Graham lost the long seventh and it was a hard pole to lose. He drove into a trap, recovered 200 yards with a spoon, got well on in three, just missed going down in four, a stroke under par, and ran up against a stymie which gave the hole to Ouimet in par five to Graham's six.

Ouimet was 36 to the turn and three up. Coming in he won the eleventh in par four, the fourteenth with a birdie four, which included a stroke deliberately used in playing around a stymie, and finished his winnings for the morning round by driving to the green at the seventeenth and going down in three to Graham's four.

The cards, first round:

Out—
Ouimet	4	5	3	4	5	3	5	4	3—36		2 up
Graham	5	5	5	4	4	3	6	4	3—39
In—
Ouimet	4	4	4	4	4	4	4	3	5—36—72		5 up
Graham	4	5	4	4	5	4	4	4	5—39—78

Six Up at Turn.

Starting out in the afternoon, Ouimet just missed an eagle 3 on the first green, where his ball hit the cup, but stayed out. The hole was halved in a stroke under par.

Ouimet registered his second winning birdie of the day on the third hole and at the fifth, which Graham won under par in the morning round, the Boston player gathered in a winning birdie 3 of his own and made himself seven up. Graham saved himself at the seventh with a ten-foot putt and won the ninth in 3, when Ouimet missed a short one. This left Ouimet 6 up at the turn, where he arrived in 35 to Graham's 36.

Playing for the tenth, Ouimet was trapped on his second, but played a great out to the green and ran down a twenty-foot putt for a winning four. This win, which put Ouimet at 7 up again, was the last one that went to him. Graham sliced into the woods going to the eleventh, but finally won the hole and followed this up by taking the twelfth where Ouimet's shot found a trap.

The thirteenth was halved and Graham was then five down with only five to go. The fourteenth, the final hole of the match, provided a fighting end to a great match. Graham followed a remarkably fine drive with an equally fine brassie shot which left him on the edge of the green with a birdie four in plain view. Ouimet hooked into the woods and played his second straight into the yawning jaws of one of the worst traps on the course.

Then Ouimet played a magnificent out, the ball going a mile high and holding the green on its descent, stopping within five feet of the pin and leaving Ouimet a relatively easy putt for the half, both registering birdies on the hole. Here the match ended with Ouimet 5 up and 4 to go.

The cards—Second round:

Ouimet—Out	4	5	3	4	4	3	5	3	4—35
(6 up)
Graham—Out	4	5	4	4	5	3	5	3	3—36
Ouimet—In	4	6	5	4	4	3	4	3	5—38—73
(5 up at 32d).
Graham—In	5	5	4	4	4	4	5	4	5—40—76

Victory for Scofield.

E. L. Scofield of the Woodway Club, Stamford, Conn., was 3 down to J. D. Standish, Jr., of Detroit at the seventh hole of their final match for the consolation trophy, but won out in the end by 2 and 1.

One of the best rounds of the tournament was played in the second sixteen, where Franklin Gates of Moore County won the Governor's trophy by a 5 and 4 victory over John D. Chapman of Greenwich. Gates came along with a four for 70, but but took a six on the last hole and wound up with a 72.

Resolute, Cup Race Candidate, to Take the Water April 19

BRISTOL, R. I., April 6.—Robert W. Emmons 2d, managing owner of the sloop Resolute, candidate for the defense of the America's Cup, announced today that the Resolute would be put into the water from the Herreshoff yards here on April 19. He said that it was expected the sloop would have her first trial spin early in May.

EAGAN OUTPOINTED IN BOXING TOURNEY

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, April 6.—Visiting boxers captured most of the titles in the National Amateur Championships, the semi-finals and finals of which were decided last night in Mechanics Hall.

The early elimination of Jimmy Manning of South Boston, the lone entry left to battle for a crown in the 108-pound class, cast gloom over local fans who were hopeful before the start that Manning would come through and gave him all the encouragement possible. He fought A. J. De Viro, of the Paulist A. C. of New York, and was outpointed in each of the three rounds.

Henry C. Boblin of Brockton, in the 145-pound class, was the next New Englander to be eliminated. Roy Helton of Kansas City had to fight four hard rounds before he was awarded the verdict. Twice the judges disagreed, but John Brassil, who refereed the bout, could not have done otherwise but give Helton the decision. The fight was hard from start to finish. Boblin fought bravely to carry the bout, but the boy from the Wheat Belt went him one better for everything he had. At the end of the fourth round the boxers were barely able to lift their arms. Their contest stood out as being one of the best in the tourney, with perhaps the single exception of Eddie Eagan's defeat by John Burke, principals in the first bout of the 175-pound class.

Eagan Fights Gamely.

Fighting with the bulldog spirit for which old Yale is noted, Eagan struggled hard to carry the Blue to victory. Just when victory appeared within his reach, Burke came through with a right that dropped the Yale man and lost him whatever chance he had of winning. Eagan was sent to the mat in the first round from a well-delivered right that ended the round.

In the succeeding round Eagan put it all over his man, but, although he had him in distress a number of times, was unable to score a knockdown. He did, however, carry the round by a wide margin.

The fans were carried to a high pitch of interest and excitement as the men stepped to the centre in the third round. Eagan opened with a volley of jabs and rights to the face and body. He backed Burke to all four corners of the ring and was fighting at a winning gait.

But fate was against the Yale man. Burke, virtually beaten, reached out with a long, hard right that found a resting place on the Eli's jaw. The shock was too much for Eddie to survive, and, although he weathered the round out, he was defeated for the award in one of the fastest bouts on the program.

Brock Furnishes Surprise.

There was cause for great surprise when Brock of Cleveland defeated Ashton Donza, the New Orleans bantamweight, in the first semi-final bout in the 115 class. Donza's defeat eliminated the Southern entrants as contenders for a title. Brock made his win good by almost tipping the former national titleholder over in the final round.

To John Burke of Pittsburgh belongs the distinction of first title winner. Burke's fighting in the tournament won him popular favorite with the fans, and when the Smoky City man won in the 175-pound class, disposing of Rudolph Peterson of San Francisco in three rounds, it was one of the most popular victories of the night.

A. J. Devito and William Cohen of New York met for the title in the 108-pound class. They fought as though they were enemies, and never ceased in their efforts to end the contest as soon as possible.

Frank Grayber of Pittsburgh and Sam Laogonia of New York came together in the final bout for the 158-pound title. Laogonia was too fast, and outfought the Pittsburgher in three rounds. Laogonia's win makes it three for New York boxers, the best in the tournament. Philadelphia, Pittsburgh, Kansas City, Milwaukee and Boston representatives divided the remaining crowns between them.

The summaries:

STEINBUGLER WINS IN TILT WITH CUE

STANDING IN POGGENBERG CUP TOURNEY.

Player	W.	L.	H.R.	P.C.
R. Steinbugler	3	0	27	1000
G. Spear	3	1	21	.750
F. S. Appleby	2	1	28	.667
F. W. Boyd	2	1	20	.667
C. E. White	1	1	26	.500
J. M. Shea	0	3	16	.000
J. Low	0	4	19	.000

Robert Steinbugler made a runaway affair last night of his match with James M. Shea in the 18.2 balkline billiard handicap tournament for the Poggenburg Cup held at the Rational Recreation Academy in Brooklyn. This was the only match played in the tournament yesterday, and the result gives Steinbugler a stronger grasp on the lead. He has won three games and lost none. Steinbugler's victory was scored at 115 to 44. Both he and Shea are Class C players, and hence played even, with 115 points as their goal.

Steinbugler started off in the lead and was never headed during the match. When ten of the seventeen innings had been completed, he had an advantage of 53 to 16, and he grew better as he went along. A run of 20 buttons in his seventh turn at the table and of 27, seven innings later, did much to put the final outcome beyond doubt.

Steinbugler was in his best stroke and had little difficulty in gathering the balls together at any stage of the encounter. His play was notable for its consistency and he drew but two blanks during the whole evening. Even when he missed it was by the narrowest of margins. Shea, on the contrary, never did get well started, and his stroke was not characterized by that delicacy of which he is capable when at his best.

The general excellence of the winner's performance is reflected in his average of 6 7-18. Besides his high runs of 20 and 27, he had another unfinished run of 13, which rounded out the match impressively.

Steinbugler—4 8 8 1 1 0 20 3 6 2 3 0 11 27 2 6 13. Total, 115. Average, 6 7-18. High run, 27.

Shea—0 3 1 2 1 1 4 1 0 0 3 0 4 4 0 3 7 0. Total, 44. Average, 2 8-18. High run, 8.

NORTH AND SOUTH TENNIS.

Tilden to Defend Title Against Impressive Array of Experts.

One of the important lawn tennis events of the outdoor season begins tomorrow in the United North and South tournament at Pinehurst. Although this championship was established only last year, it has drawn an impressive list of the leading tennis players of America including William T. Tilden, 2d., the present holder of the title, who will play through in its defense.

Among Tilden's strongest opponents will be Vincent Richards, who was recently dethroned by Tilden from the national indoor championship; S. Howard Voshell, twice a winner of the indoor title and present metropolitan champion; Ichiya Kumagae, the New York State champion; Harold Throckmorton, New Jersey State champion; Charles S. Garland, Captain of the Yale team; Beals Wright, former national champion; Fred C. Baggs, Samuel Hardy, J. D. E. Jones, Alfred H. Chapin, Jr., Raymond Bidwell, and perhaps Richard Harte.

In the women's event there will be an even more representative list to play for the Challenge Cup now held by Miss Marion Zinderstein of Boston, including the champion herself, Miss Florence Ballin, Miss Helene Pollak, the indoor champion; Miss Helen Gilleaudeau, New York State champion; Mrs. Barger-Wallach, former national champion; Miss Edith Sigourney, Miss Leslie Bancroft, Miss Gertrude Della Torre and other women stars.

KUNERT WINS MAT TITLE.

First of 175-Pounders at Birmingham—New York Wrestler Loses.

CLASS R SLOOPS FOR INTERCITY RUN

Indian Harbor Yacht Club Picks Two Entries for Contests Off Marblehead.

Arrangements have just been completed which insure the Indian Harbor Yacht Club of Greenwich, Conn., being represented by two craft in the intercity contests for the Class R, or Greenwich, Championship Trophy, to take place this Summer off Marblehead, Mass., the challenge having been sent to the Corinthian Yacht Club of that place and accepted.

A syndicate of Indian Harbor Yacht Club members, headed by Commodore Graham Smythe, has purchased the Class R sloop Rogue from Charles E. Adams of Boston, and she will be one of the yachts with which the Connecticut Corinthians will invade Massachusetts waters. The Rogue, according to Lloyd's Register, was designed by John G. Alden and built by W. B. Calderwood of Manchester, Mass., in 1917. Her dimensions are given as 38 feet over all, 25 feet on the water line, 7 feet 6 inches extreme beam and 5 feet 7 inches draught.

Others in the syndicate with Commodore Smythe include Richard Monks, John Lewis, Clifford D. Mallory and Frederic Doremus, all well-known Long Island Sound Corinthians.

Addison G. Hanan has designed and, along with former Commodore William H. Childs, is having built another Class R sloop, which is expected to be the sailing mate of the Rogue in the contests for the Greenwich Cup. Mr. Hanan's previous success as a designer of yachts for Class P, including the Josephine and the Nahma, cause many to believe that the new Class R creation will prove to be unusually speedy.

R Class championship events and those in Class P for the Manhasset Bay Challenge Cup have attained great importance as intercity yachting events and occasion the keenest of rivalry, so much so, in fact, that on more than one occasion they have come near causing serious breaches between New York and Massachusetts yachting circles, and any events of an intercity nature in either Class P or R attract widespread interest in yachting circles not only throughout this country but in Canada as well.

The Greenwich Cup was put up for competition in 1914, and on July 7 and 8 of that year was raced for off Greenwich on Long Island Sound. The Sally XII., owned by Lawrence F. Percival of the Corinthian Yacht Club of Marblehead, met the Margaret, owned by Clifford D. Mallory of the Indian Harbor Yacht Club, and the Joyetta, owned by Messrs. Draper and Childs, representing the Stamford Yacht Club, and defeated both on successive days, taking the trophy to Eastern waters.

DEFAULTS IN COURT TENNIS.

Leading Contenders for Gould's Title Decline Competition.

Although two matches were scheduled yesterday at the Racquet and Tennis Club in the amateur court tennis championship of the United States, there was no play, as both contests went by default. Joshua Crane of Boston defaulted the morning encounter to J. Gordon Douglas of New York, while Payne Whitney failed to appear for his afternoon match with C. Suydam Cutting, and, therefore, automatically dropped out of the tournament.

It was announced also that Joseph W. Wear of Philadelphia, who holds the national racquets doubles title with Jay Gould, would not contest his bracket with Philip Stockton, his clubmate, in one of the second round encounters scheduled for today. Thus three of the ten contenders for the right to challenge Jay Gould for his championship are already out of the event without the striking of an actual blow with the racquet.

Today's revised schedule, in which all the contestants are expected to appear, is as follows:

Another Offer for Carpentier.

NEW ORLEANS, April 6.—John M. Abrams, local promoter, today telegraphed to Francois Descamps an offer of $20,000 for Georges Carpentier to meet Bill Brennan here for a fifteen-round heavyweight bout. A $5,000 guarantee is offered for a six-round match.

AMERICA'S SKATING TEAM SAILS TODAY

Olympic Hockey Players and Figure Experts Will Be Managed by Fellowes.

Cornelius Fellowes, President of the International Skating Union and one of the strongest advocates of the participation of an American team in the Olympic Games hockey competitions, will manage the team of skaters which will wear the Old Glory shield in the classic Olympics at Antwerp, Belgium, April 20 to 30. The selection of Mr. Fellowes was announced yesterday by Gustavus T. Kirby, President of the American Olympic Committee. The I. S. U. President replaces Roy D. Schooley of Pittsburgh, who had been previously selected as manager and director for the team, but who was prevented from accompanying the team abroad because of illness in his family.

The entire team of ice sport exponents who will represent Uncle Sam in the Olympic hockey and figure skating tests was assembled in this city yesterday making final preparations before sailing for Belgium on the Red Star liner Finland this afternoon. The delegation comprised eleven hockeyists, two figure skaters and Mr. Fellowes. The athletic contingent is scheduled to board this athletically historic ship about noon, for it is planned to free the Finland of her restraining lines at the foot of West Seventeenth Street about 1 o'clock.

For almost three hours yesterday the hockey players gave their attention to getting in some final practice before boarding ship. Shortly before 12:30 o'clock the contingent took the ice at the 181st Street Ice Palace and without let-up the players continued in preparatory work until after 3 o'clock. The speed, accurate stick work, capable defensive playing and all-around ability of the skaters gave foundation to the belief that the American players will furnish stiff contention for Olympic supremacy.

Nathaniel W. Niles and Miss Theresa Weld of Boston, national doubles champions at figure skating, also were on the ice training for the last time before leaving American soil. Throughout the practice session moving pictures recorded the activities of hockeyites and skaters. These pictures will probably be shown in the campaign to raise funds for the expenses of the Olympic competitors. In the evening the members of the party were guests of the New York A. C. at an informal farewell celebration in the Mercury Foot clubhouse.

The entire party, which will board the Finland this noon, consists of eleven hockey players, Mr. Fellowes, Mr. Niles and Miss Weld, and Mrs. Fellowes and Mrs. Niles.

Thirty-nine Motor Cars in one City block. Traffic delays on every MAIN street and high road are largely due to the wide difference in performance ability among the cars that crowd it

Who Makes the Best Time

AMERICA owned 6,300,000 passenger cars at the end of 1919. A quarter of a million in and around New York. Over a hundred thousand in Chicago. Philadelphia, Boston, St. Louis, San Francisco—every city has a like congestion.

With everybody depending on his car for business purposes, the faculty of ordinary cars for getting in one another's way becomes a serious matter—and the striking ability of the Packard to run around and through traffic is doubly worth thinking about.

THE Packard Company speaks with high authority when it says that performance of the Packard kind cannot be "assembled" into a car and cannot be "tuned" into it.

The Packard Twin-six engine, with its steady flow of flexible power. Throttled down to two miles an hour on high in the jam, and picking up to thirty miles or more in half a block.

The Packard brakes—designed by Packard, with large, long-wearing braking surfaces; equalized, with even, positive braking action on each wheel; easily applied, sure to hold.

The Packard dry disc clutch, positive and velvety in action—and the Packard forged, heat-treated gears, with their exceptional strength and long life.

The Packard steering gear and other parts controlling the car, quick and positive in action, easy to handle, tough and reliable.

YOU often hear people say that they "get there so much quicker" in a Packard.

He has less gear-shifting to do, less strain on his attention—and he can use the flexible power of his Packard to advantage every yard of the way.

CLOTHING TRADE ACTION

To Advance Seasons and Stop Sales to Commissary Departments.

Through action taken by the Executive Committee of the National Association of Clothiers, announced yesterday, the matter of advancing the selling seasons in the clothing industry so that prices may be stabilized and production costs lowered will be placed before the joint committee of the clothiers and the woolen manufacturers to obtain the co-operation of the mills. The meeting to consider the question will be called before May 1. Through advancing the selling seasons, the manufacturing clothiers hope to avoid cancellations, as well as labor and delivery difficulties that have come as a result of crowding too much production into too brief a period. The support of the retailers' organization has already been enlisted in the movement.

Denies Dry Law Aids Perfume Sale.

The sale of perfumes has not increased since the prohibition amendment went into effect, according to A. M. Spiehler, President of the Perfume Manufacturers' Association, which has been meeting at the Biltmore Hotel. "There are some isolated cases where degenerates take anything from eau de quinine to shellac, but they are very few," he said yesterday. ⁂

Gray Goods Have Fair Day.

Gray goods had a pretty fair day here yesterday. April-May business was done in 38½-inch 64-60 printcloths at 25 cents, and 39-inch 80-squares sold for the same deliveries at 33 cents. Buyers paid 16¼ cents for April shipments of 27-inch 64-60s. Among the sheetings sales were May-July deliveries of 56-60, 4-yard goods at 26 cents. Forty-two cents was paid for April-May 39-inch 64-104, 4.20-yard sateens during the day.

British Toys Cheap.

Prices quoted on different makes of toys from British manufacturers just received here by the Bush Terminal Sales Company were considered quite surprising yesterday by Mr. Taylor in charge of the house furnishings and toy departments. He stated that on lead soldiers, for instance, one English set of thirty-four pieces would be sold for less than what the American makers have been selling a dozen pieces for. Stuffed Chenille dolls five and six inches high, he said, are quoted at a little over 3 shillings a dozen. The same low prices run through all ranges in the nine different lines received.

⁂

Velvet Pattern on Loom.

Among the new lines introduced by one of the leading makers of silk upholstery fabrics is a material on which a pattern is carried out in velvet. This would be described as a cut velvet, only the design is carried out by a power process. The true cut velvet, it seems, is one in which all the pile is removed except that which goes to make the pattern. The method hitherto used, it was explained, has been to pick out the pile by hand, which took quite some time and consequently made the material quite expensive. The power process by which the design is woven into the material produces the effect sought at a saving of time and expense.

Some Reorders Received.

Now that a better feeling has come over buyers and sellers in the woolen piece goods market, some reorders are following cancellations that were given a short while back. In one instance related, a buyer bought five styles at the opening and when he got home cancelled the whole order. Last week he must have changed his mind about the outlook, because he reordered five of the styles selected formerly and, in addition, made purchases of four additional styles. While cases of this kind are not heard on every side in the market, and cancellations are still cropping up, the mill representatives quite generally believe they have come to the "turn in the road."

In spite of the fact that the chilly weather of the last several days drove many women back to wool hose for wear with low shoes, it apparently had no effect whatever on the demand for women's fine silk hose at retail, nor on the resultant attempts of buyers to get additional merchandise from the mills in a hurry. To the dismay of many of them the latter are finding that the manufacturers have not been camouflaging about the bare conditions of the stockrooms. As matters stood yesterday all the merchandise in first hands for prompt delivery, whether first or seconds, apparently could be trundled on a wheelbarrow by the average office boy. In the case of silk half-hose the situation is not so "tight."

Financing a Difficult Task.

In the clothing trade, it is said, the problem of financing for those concerns not plentifully supplied with their own money is a serious problem at the present time. Even under normal conditions, according to those in close touch with the situation, the task would not be an easy one since the banks have become so conservative. Conditions are harder for the manufacturers, because of the amount of goods they are receiving and the new terms imposed by sellers. The tangled-up state of transportation has created a situation where the clothiers are getting goods, in many cases, representing the purchases of three seasons, namely the last heavyweight, the Spring and the new Fall periods. To make matters worse, invoices calling for settlement in thirty days net are frequently received before the goods.

Higher Shirt Prices in View.

Little comfort is to be found by the "man in the street" in the new prices that have been made on percale shirtings for the new Fall season, in spite of the fact that the advances are regarded in the trade as very fair in proportion to the present cost of the goods in the gray or unfinished state. With the price of 4-4, 64-60, percales at 30 cents for light grounds and 32 for darks, the fabric costs alone in shirts made from them will be 90 and 96 cents, respectively. In the case of shirts made of 4-4, 68-72s, at the new prices, the fabric costs will be 99 cents for light grounds and $1.05 for darks. At the figures given, it was said yesterday, shirts containing the 64-60 percales cannot be retailed under $3. Increased labor costs and general "overhead," together with the legitimate profits of maker and seller, will take care of the difference between that figure and the fabric cost.

Competition on Dyes.

Ammunition in the shape of cases where domestic dyes have been found to succumb to tests of fastness has already been supplied to the opponents of dye legislation which would restrict imports of foreign dye materials. On the desk of one man who has appeared before Congressional committees to argue against the dye bill are two samples. One is a piece of woolen material before it was tested, and another the same fabric after being exposed to the sun in a test for fastness. A heliotrope shade introduced into the pattern faded under the sun's rays. The buyer of the material stated he could get the same goods from England, and emphasized the fact that he could be sure the dyes used in the imported goods were fast. His statement was considered to support the argument of the domestic makers of woolens who contend they will be at a disadvantage in competing with foreign goods if obstacles are put in the path of their getting fast dyes.

Will Give Two Luncheons.

Luncheons will be given today and tomorrow at 12:30 at the Waldorf-Astoria by the Retail Millinery Association of America as part of the campaign that is being carried on in that industry for four seasons a year. About forty-five advertising men from leading department stores in this city, Boston, Philadelphia and Newark will be the association's guests today, and they will be addressed on the subject in question by Arthur Freeman, Managing Director of the group of retail stores in which R. Sadowsky of this city has an important interest. At tomorrow's luncheon eighty-six resident buyers for leading stores all over the country will be made acquainted with the movement and its objects. This information, it is expected, will then be disseminated among the stores represented. The speakers will include J. L. Amberg, H. P. Gould and Lew Hahn. Present plans of the association call for the simultaneous showing of Summer hats throughout the United States during the week beginning May 3.

Consumer Pays for "Water."

One of the worst things about the increased cost of making various kinds of merchandise these days is that it makes the consumer pay for a lot of water in the form of "overhead." In other words, the retail price not only contains any increase there may have been in the general expenses of the retailer, but those of the jobber and the manufacturer as well. What makes it bad for the consumer is that the "overhead" is pyramided under the present system of figuring costs and selling prices. In a case illustrated here yesterday the increase of the manufacturer's "overhead" on a certain article amounted to 25 cents. By the time this increase got to the consumer, via the jobber and the retailer, it had swelled to about 95 cents, yet nothing had been added to the article's actual value. In a similar manner the consumer pays for the pyramiding of gross profits based on the greater "overhead" of the manufacturer, although in the latter's case, as well as in the case of the jobber and retailer, the percentage of profit may not have increased over that of pre-war times.

MILK INQUIRY IS BEGUN.

Federal Attorneys Ask About Resolutiom ot Restrict Production.

The Federal Government yesterday began an investigation of a resolution adopted in March by the Jefferson County local of the Dairymen's League at Watertown, N. Y., advising its members to reduce the production of milk during April and May by restricting the feeding of their herds. C. A. Hadley, formerly President of the Jefferson County organization, and Brayton A. Field, A. C. Ryder, B. J. Ives and J. A. Kilburn, members of the local, were questioned by R. W. Joyce and Henry A. Guiler, Special Assistant United States Attorneys, in the Federal Building.

A copy of the resolution, which was published in a Syracuse newspaper, was shown to the dairymen, but no other information regarding the examination was given. The inquiry is to determine whether the adoption of the resolution was in violation of the Lever Food Conservation or Interstate Commerce acts.

BUSINESS NOTES.

A luncheon meeting of the sales staff and mill executives of the McCallum Hosiery Company will be held at the Hotel Biltmore on Friday. W. H. Johns of the George Batten Company will address the meeting on the value of advertising.

F. K. Rupprecht, who is well known in the dry goods trades as ranking member of Converse & Co. and as head of the Consolidated Textile Corporation, has been made a Director of the Mercantile Stores Corporation. The latter corporation some years ago took over the retail stores operated in conjunction with the former H. B. Claflin Company.

M. APPELBAUM WEDS A BOSTON SINGER

MET BRIDE AT RECITAL

Charmed by Her Voice, He Offered to be Her Manager, but Instead Signed for Life, He Says.

Misha Appelbaum, head of the Humanitarian Cult, for which he has stated in the past he has spent $650,000 of his own money, was married in the chambers of Supreme Court Justice Guy yesterday afternoon to Miss Helen Sherman Yorke, a singer, of Winter Hill, Boston, whom he met on March 24 last when she was presented by David Bispham at a recital.

Mr. Appelbaum was invited to attend the recital because of his interest in music as president of the Musical Bureau of America. He was introduced to Miss Yorke at that time and the thirteen-day courtship that resulted in the marriage ceremony yesterday followed.

After the couple had been married by Justice Guy in his chambers in the Emigrant Bank Building, Mr. Appelbaum said that as soon as he heard Miss Yorke sing he was "charmed" with her and offered to manage her concert engagements for five years.

"But we've signed up for life instead," said Mr. Appelbaum. The bridegroom said that he chose Justice Guy to perform the ceremony because Justice Guy signed the order on the application of the Humanitarian Cult that saved Charles F. Stielow from the electric chair after the Governor had refused to commute the sentence, and which stayed the execution until another man had confessed to the crime.

In discussing his marriage, which is his second, Mr. Appelbaum said:

"When a great happiness comes to a man—I mean when he is mature enough to appreciate it—words are entirely superfluous. My wife and I are going to follow our respective careers, and retain our individual aims. We are not going to have a wedding trip because we have no money to spend on it.

Mr. Appelbaum is President of a corporation dealing in precious metals. He was married to Miss Irma Coshland of Riverdale in 1906. She divorced him in Reno in 1917 on the ground of mental cruelty, alleging that he ridiculed her and humiliated her in public.

Divorce Was Granted F. L. Keating.

In the report of the marriage on April 1 of Miss Stella Hammerstein, youngest daughter of the late Oscar Hammerstein, and Charles Fyles Pope, a son of ex-Governor Pope of Florida and Mrs. Pope, which appeared in THE TIMES the following morning, it was stated that the bride divorced her first husband, Frederick L. Keating. THE TIMES was misinformed as to the true state of facts. According to John Ambrose Goodwin, who was counsel for Mr. Keating in the divorce action, Justice William P. Platt at White Plains granted a decree of absolute divorce in favor of Mr. Keating when the case was tried before him on Dec. 5, 1919, and the interlocutory decree became final on March 12, 1920.

MILK FUND BENEFIT.

Seats to "Fill My Bottle" Performance Bring $100 Apiece.

Many persons paid $100 for seats in the Globe Theatre yesterday afternoon at the "Fill My Bottle" benefit performance for the Milk for Children of America campaign. Clotilde and Alexander Sakharoff, the Russian dancers, and Margaret Romaine of the Metropolitan Opera House were the principal artists.

Mrs. Oliver Harriman, Chairman of Distribution for the Milk Committee, said that the committee was now raising fewer than 60,000 quarts of milk a day for American babies, but that its goal was 1,000,000 quarts a day. Mrs. Harriman said that she had learned of actual cases of children fainting in school for lack of proper nutrition. She said that the Milk Committee was going to continue its work until this evil had been overcome.

"Fibrotta" WARE

for offices, hotels and institutions

It is a waste of money to buy office equipment haphazardly. Pails, waste baskets, umbrella jars, cuspidors, fire pails, water coolers, etc., should be carefully chosen for durability, sanitary efficiency and harmony with their surroundings.

Better looking more durable and sanitary

"Fibrotta" ware means better looking offices and far more durable and sanitary equipment. Rich mahogany in color, it is made under tremendous hydraulic pressure, without seams or cracks to harbor dirt. It will not rust, swell, warp, leak or dent out of shape. Its hard, glasslike surface does not absorb moisture, grease or dirt, and is very easy to clean, so that it always looks new.

The contents of a "Fibrotta" waste basket cannot sift through and litter the floor. "Fibrotta" umbrella stands are very rich in appearance. Pails and fire pails of "Fibrotta" will outlast others two to one. They do not scale, rust, dry up, fall apart or become foul and ill smelling.

Fine for home use

For the home, too, "Fibrotta" pails are ideal, on account of their cleanliness and durability. "Fibrotta" keelers, serving as dish pans, will not chip china or glass ware like metal pans. "Fibrotta" baby baths are not cold to the tender skin of an infant, like that of metal or earthenware. Every home should have a "Fibrotta" pail.

"XXth CENTURY" COOLER

As a means of serving drinking water in all its original purity and at a greatly lessened expense for ice, the famous "XXth Century" Cooler represents the height of sanitary efficiency. No dirty or germ laden ice can come in contact with the water and contaminate it. The ice is held in a separate compartment of "Fibrotta," which is a non-conductor, keeping the heat out and the cold in, thus saving the price of the cooler in a short time, through this ice saving feature.

Water from the "XXth Century" is always served as cool as a mountain spring but never disagreeably and harmfully cold. And its patented, non-clogging "C & H" push faucet will never get foul or drip and wet the floor after pressure is released.

Many dealers sell the "XXth Century" Cooler and "Fibrotta" ware. Write us or call us by telephone if you cannot find these goods. We also manufacture a large line of sanitary dispensers for serving beverages.

HOUSE FIGHT OPENS ON PEACE QUESTION

CITES LAW AUTHORITIES

Venable Attacks the Plan as an Assault on the Constitution.

MONDELL DEFENDS METHOD

Flood to Present Minority Report Today—Forecasts Party Lineup.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 6.—Defending the joint resolution to declare war at an end, Representative Stephen G. Porter, Chairman of the House Committee on Foreign Affairs, in his report presented to the House today, declared that there had been a cessation of hostilities with sentiment long drifting to peace, which was one of he ways of effecting peace recognized by international law.

Mr. Porter indicated in his report that Congress intended to follow this, one of the three ways of ending war, the others being subjugation and a definitive treaty of peace. Congress, he said, was clearly within its constitutional rights when hostilities had ceased for a period of nearly seventeen months, with no intention of resumption, in recognizing and declaring that a condition of peace thereby existed and that the war with Germany was at an end.

In making his report Mr. Porter offered a rule to limit debate to nine hours when the resolution is considered on Thursday and prohibiting any amendment of the resolution.

Representative Flood, ranking Democrat of the committee, will present his report tomorrow. The Democrats, he said, intended to vote almost solidly against the adoption of the resolution on the ground that it trespassed on the President's prerogatives.

Charges Assault on Constitution.

The fight against the adoption of the joint resolution was staged in the House today in advance of its formal consideration. Representative Venable of Mississippi voiced the position of the friends of the Administration in a long speech in which he sought to show that Congress had no power in peace matters.

"The resolution will have no effect as far as legal efficacy is concerned, but it is an important assault on the Constitution," said Mr. Venable. "Surely the motive must be powerful to cause gentlemen to take this action.

"The resolution is in reality a treaty, and the House is excluded from its consideration. Nowhere in the Constitution is the right to make peace specifically granted."

Representative Little insisted that Congress had the right to end war because it had the power to start it.

"Under ordinary rules anybody who has started a fight has the right to stop it, particularly if he has the other fellow licked," he said.

In a discussion of alleged extravagances, Representative Mondell also touched upon the resolution, saying:

"Today we are having the popping of pickets. Thursday we will have the roar of artillery and then the passage of the peace resolution. The President, by refusing to yield to the majority of the Senate, makes it necessary for the House to take this action. I have few ideas on the constitutionality of the resolution, but I am certain that the whole spirit of the Constitution is against autocracy and for the rule by majority.

"The President's idea is that this great nation of the West should become one of a large family of nations and interfere every time there is a difference of opinion from Arabia to Cape Horn and from Vladivostok to the Rhine."

Mr. Mondell then declared that the position of the United States should be one of independence so that it would be free to interfere in international disputes only that justice might be done.

Report Asserts Congress Powers.

Chairman Porter says in his report:

"The authorities on international law agree that there are three ways of terminating war between belligerent States: First, by a treaty of peace; second, by the conquest and subjugation of one of the belligerents by the other; third, by the mere cessation of hostilities so long continued that it is evident that there is no intention of resuming them."

"The armistice was signed Nov. 11, 1918, nearly seventeen months ago, and while a treaty of peace between the Imperial German Government and the United States was signed at Versailles on June 28, 1919, it has not been ratified by the Senate of the United States, but, on the contrary, it has been returned to the President after an adverse vote upon the question of its ratification. The usual and normal method of terminating the war status having thus failed of accomplishment it becomes the plain duty of Congress to declare the admitted fact that the war is ended.

"Section 3 provides for the resumption of reciprocal trade relations between Germany and the United States for a period of forty-five days and further provides that such reciprocal trade relations shall be permanently established when the President has ascertained and announced that Germany has declared a termination of the war and has made the waivers and renouncements on behalf of itself and its nationals which are specified in said section.

"The placing of these conditions on the permanent resumption of trade with Germany is a reasonable exercise of the power vested in Congress by the Constitution 'to regulate commerce with foreign nations.' In making certain legislation contingent on a fact to be ascertained and announced by the President, this paragraph follows precedents established in previous acts of Congress and especially Section 3 of the Act of Oct. 1, 1890, (the McKinley Tariff Act), which was sustained by the Supreme Court in the case of Field v. Clark, 143 U. S. p. 649.

"Section 4 provides a penalty for violation of Section 3 whenever the prohibition provided by that section shall be in force."

Canada's Population 9,000,000.

OTTAWA, Ont., April 6.—The population of Canada for 1920 is estimated at 9,000,000, as compared with 7,000,000 in 1911, in a report made public today in the House of Commons by Secretary of State Sifton.

All South and Central America Now in the League of Nations

WASHINGTON, April 6.—All of South and Central America is now bound by the covenant of the League of Nations. Adhesion to the League by six more neutral States, including Venezuela, the last Latin American country to file its notification, was reported today.

The other neutrals filing notice of adhesion are the Netherlands, Salvador, Norway, Denmark and Switzerland.

In recording the decision of the Norwegian Government, King Haakon recited the declaration of the Storthing that, "in accordance with the traditions, it shapes the great idea on which the League is based, which in its eyes represents the most considerable effort made up to the present to develop the rule of justice among nations, and that the future of the League depends essentially upon a development based on the accession of all civilized nations, a general limitation of armaments and the obligation to settle peaceably all international disputes in order to avoid war."

NEWSPRINT CONTROL CEASES IN CANADA

Supreme Court Rejects Board of Commerce Contention That Paper Is Necessity.

UPHOLDS PLAINTIFF IN SUIT

Special to The New York Times.

OTTAWA, April 6.—By decision of the Supreme Court today, newsprint control in Canada ceases, for a time at least.

This control, through an order of the Board of Commerce, forced Canadian newsprint manufacturers to retain in Canada 15 per cent. of their output for home consumption at a fixed price of $80 a ton. The legality of this order was challenged by Price Brothers, and the Supreme Court today decided in their favor. The control was based on newsprint being a necessity of life. It was found otherwise by the court.

There is also pending before the Supreme Court a reference as to the legality of the Board of Commerce. Until this is decided the Government will take no further action in newsprint control.

The Government's authority to control is not challenged by today's decision, but the ground on which this control was exercised. The decision was given by four of the Supreme Court Judges, with Justice Mignault dissenting. The Chief Justice did not participate, as in the absence of the Governor he has been acting as Chief Executive, and as such could not act on an issue affecting the constitutionality of a Government measure.

The paper control arose as a war measure. Official peace in Canada is supposed to date from Jan. 1, 1920. Justice Mignault stood alone in maintaining that the war measures were operative until formal proclamation of peace. He was, however, fully persuaded that newsprint was not a necessity.

"I must also say that I fail to discover any possible connection between the requirements of human life and newsprint paper," he said. "It even appears an abuse of language to call it a necessity of life. Whatever place the newspaper may occupy in modern society—and no doubt it is a very important one—and however indispensable the newspaper may be for other like purposes, it certainly does not proximate or even remotely come within the class of things that can be used for the requirements of life. The board acted without jurisdiction in declaring it a necessity."

Justice Anglin "cannot conceive of any genus or category that would put newsprint with articles of food, clothing and fuel. The common knowledge possessed by every man of the street, of which a court of justice cannot divest itself, makes it impossible to believe the Governor has in his counsel, deemed it necessary for the security, defense, peace, order or welfare of Canada to confer upon the Board of Commerce such powers."

Justice Brodeur indicates that he has no support for the argument that would give the Board of Commerce law strength from the right to "regulate trade and commerce provided by the Constitution for the Federal power." Such control for him is general in character and "does not extend to a public trade."

Justice Duff said: "I adhere without any doubt whatever to the opinion expressed in the course of the argument that necessaries of life, within the meaning of the Fair Prices and Combines act, do not comprehend articles which are not necessary by reason of their being required for some purposes connected with the physical life of the individual."

ITALIAN TROOPS FIRE VOLLEY INTO CROWD

Copyright, 1920, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

MILAN, April 6.—The labor organization in Bologna has proclaimed a general strike as a consequence of yesterday's bloody riots in the province.

The casualties at a peasant demonstration at Decima include four men and one woman shot dead and three others dying, while many more were wounded. It appears that the conflict began with the hurling of mineral water siphons from a platform table at the head of a Police Commissioner who had interrupted one of the orators. At the sight of blood the carabineers fired a volley of forty shots into the crowd.

At a similar mass meeting near Forli a carabineer who had killed an agitator with a revolver was lynched by an infuriated mob.

This strife may have far-reaching consequences. The National Executive of the General Confederation of Labor is summoned here tonight to consider what action should be taken.

RYAN NAMES TERMS FOR STUTZ SHORTS

"INSULT," OFFICIAL REPLIES

"Don't Want to Hurt a Soul," Is Ryan's Comment on the Situation.

The first move to break the corner in Stutz Motor Car Company stock on the New York Stock Exchange was made last night by Allan A. Ryan, when he made public a plan under which the shorts in the issue could settle their differences with him. The provisions as outlined by Mr. Ryan, however, include no price at which a settlement can be made, this being left to a committee of the Stock Exchange, which shall act as intermediary between Mr. Ryan and the Stock Exchange houses which through their customers are short of Stutz stock.

In setting forth the basis of settlement Mr. Ryan said that the proposals already had been submitted to the Board of Governors of the Exchange, but that as yet no word had been received from that body as to whether it was willing to accept.

II.—Settlement must be made with Exchange Committee, not with the individual members who owe stock to Mr. Ryan.

III.—When settlement price is agreed between Mr. Ryan and Exchange Committee it must be binding on each and every Exchange member who has borrowed stock.

a. Also on those who fail to deliver on their Wednesday sales last week.

b. Exchange should clear all the loan transactions outstanding in the stock, giving Mr. Ryan check for balance and giving acquittance to each member who owes stock.

IV.—Mr. Ryan must have the right to make a public statement through the press, which he will show to the committee in advance.

V.—The Exchange shall not, after the settlement, either rule off the stock or deny it the privilege of free trading on the floor.

The foregoing statement by Mr. Ryan was read over the telephone last night to a member of the New York Stock Exchange who has been in close touch with the entire Stutz situation. At the close he said:

"I think it is the greatest insult and affront ever offered to the New York Stock Exchange, and its clientele. It is preposterous."

William H. Remick, President of the New York Stock Exchange, could not be reached last night, and neither could the Chairman of the Business Conduct Committee, which has been handling the Stutz difficulties. The member of the Exchange quoted above said that it was his understanding that the entire matter was now in the hands of the Business Conduct Committee and the Law Committee.

The present is Mr. Ryan's first public statement on the Stutz corner, and in comment upon it he disavows any intention of holding a whip hand such as would preclude any possibility of settlement. "I do not want to hurt the public, not a soul," said Mr. Ryan. Presuming this to be true, it was pointed out last night that the terms of settlement, should the Stock Exchange see fit to negotiate with Mr. Ryan, might not be as hard as some have anticipated. On the other hand, the dictatorial tone of the basis of settlement was considered to be such that the Stock Exchange could hardly accept without losing prestige and position in the matter.

Asked concerning his advertising that he was willing to buy Stutz stock, apparently in violation of the ruling of the Exchange, which stated that none of its members was to deal in Stutz shares, and the subsequent refusal of certain newspapers to accept his advertisements on the second day after trading in Stutz was suspended by the Stock Exchange, Mr. Ryan said:

"I shall continue to declare a dividend of 20 per cent. until the stock is doubled in value. I bought these securities because I believed in the value of them. The press said I was going to make capital out of the situation, but this is untrue. I have told the Governing Committee that I intend to settle this thing.

"I have sufficient resources to take up every share of the stock. At 2:30 P. M. March 31 I left the committee after telling them to stop selling the stock, but they continued to sell it until 3 o'clock. There are 272 stockholders, but they have no market to sell. I told the Exchange to either take the stock off or put it back as regular stock to be traded in. They refused to take it off or put it on and the situation is deadlocked at present. It is not marketable collateral. I do not want to hure the public—not one soul."

It was not made clear just what was intended in the statement that a policy of declaring a 20 per cent. stock dividend would be continued until the capital of the Stutz Motor Company was doubled. Stock dividends have already been declare which are sufficient to double the original capital of -00,600 shares, bringing the eventual capital up to 200,000 shares. If this is to be again doubled, making 400,000 shares the shorts in the issue would be caught more tightly than ever before, as every stock dividend increases the amount of stock which they are short, with no place to buy except of Allan A. Ryan & Co.

A stock dividend of 20 per cent. fell due yesterday, or in other words, the shorts were called upon to give a due bill for a fifth of a share of stock, and such a process will have to be continued with each stock dividend falling due. With the shares selling ex-dividend yesterday with the closing of the books for the dividend, the price was quoted at 305-330. This was merely a nominal quotation of bid and asked, however, as no shares were traded in by Allan A. Ryan & Co. It was asserted that up to yesterday they were taking all stock offered at $400 a share. There has been no private settlement with any of the shorts. Some of them, it is asserted, have endeavored to see Mr. Ryan as to a settlement, but he has refused to see them, apparently feeling, as he states in his plan of settlement, that the settlement must go through the Stock Exchange.

It was announced yesterday that 200 shares of Stutz stock would be sold today at the Securities Salesroom on Vesey Street, and considerable interest attaches to the price per share that the block will bring.

BETHLEHEM RE-ELECTS RYAN.

Again on Steel Board, Despite Recent Resignation.

At a meeting of the Directors of the Bethlehem Steel Corporation yesterday Allan A. Ryan was re-elected to the board. A few days ago he startled the financial district by tendering his resignation as a Director, and there were stories in circulation that difficulties had arisen between Mr. Ryan and Charles M. Schwab, Chairman of the board of the Bethlehem Corporation. Mr. Ryan's term as Director would have expired yesterday, had he not tendered his resignation, so that the Bethlehem Company not only refused to accept his resignation, when such came before them officially, but re-elected him for a new term of office. Mr. Ryan, it was stated in the late afternoon, would accept the re-election. This appeared to set at rest rumors of differences.

After the meeting Mr. Schwab was asked whether there was any significance in Mr. Ryan's resignation not being accepted. "No," he replied. "Allan has been a Director of the corporation since its inception and it was only natural to expect that he would be re-elected, since his term had expired."

Mexican Government Threat to Run Railroad to End Strike May Start Revolt in Sonora

NOGALES, Ariz., April 6.—Unless the Southern Pacific of Mexico Railroad and its striking employes come to an agreement and trains are started running within seventy-two hours, the Mexican Federal Government will seize the railroad and operate the trains with soldiers, according to an ultimatum served on both sides by Federal Judge Carlos Velasgo at Nogales, Sonora, today.

Such action by the Government will result in a revolution throughout Sonora, according to political leaders of the State, who recently have openly threatened revolution should Carranza forces try to enter and assume jurisdiction over the State authorities.

The strike was ordered last week despite a Federal court injunction ordered by President Carranza postponing calling of the strike for seventy-two hours. The railroad was completely tied up when practically all its operating forces walked out.

Automobilists reaching here today from Cananea said the miners there were to have walked out last night in sympathy with the railroad workers. This strike, is was said, would involve approximately 6,000 workers and shut down the camp of the Cananea Consolidated Mining Company.

WOMAN JUMPS TO HER DEATH AT FIRE

Thinking Her Escape Cut Off, Widow Leaps from Madison Avenue Lodging House.

ANOTHER SAVES HERSELF

Third Woman Is Rescued from Building by Human Chain Composed of Four Men.

One woman lost her life unnecessarily by jumping from the top floor when rescue was in sight, another woman saved herself by running down four flights of stairs through fire and smoke with a pillow before her face, and another woman was saved by a human chain composed of four men, when a fire, shortly after 10 o'clock last night, burned rapidly through a five-story lodging house at 162 Madison Avenue, near Thirty-second Street.

The woman who jumped and was killed by the fall was Mrs. Emily Kershaw, a widow, 55 years old, who had kept a boarding house until a few days ago at 249 Madison Avenue. She was on the fifth floor, talking with Mrs. Josephine Mayer, when the cry of "Fire!" rang through the house. She ran to the staircase and found her escape apparently cut off by the volume of smoke and flame running up. She and other tenants on that floor ran back and forth in a panic. Finally, to escape the dense smoke she climbed out upon a window ledge on the fourth floor.

In the meantime Truck Company No. 24 had arrived and was running up ladders against the front of the building, while lines of hose were being carried into an adjoining building on the downtown side. A dozen firemen shouted at her not to jump, promising speedy rescue, but she did not hear them, and, overcome by the panic, she jumped. She was killed instantly by the fall to the cement pavement in front of the house.

Her companion, Mrs. Mayer, who is a very small woman, about 60 years old, caught up a pillow, held it tightly her face, and ran down the stairs through the fire, which had been carried from floor to floor through the stairwell. To the great astonishment of the firemen, she suddenly popped through the front door of the building, which seemed to be ablaze from top to bottom.

Her hair and clothing were slightly singed and smoke-blackened, but she was entirely unhurt. She explained afterward that her father had told her half a century before to pick a pillow, in case of fire, hold it tightly to her face, and make a dash for it. This was the first time in her life, she said, that she had had occasion to make use of this advice.

Several other persons on the top floor were rescued by Fireman Geraghty of Truck 24 and other firemen. They had a line of hose to the top of the adjoining building, carried it to the front of the burning house and let it dangle. While the other held it, Fireman Geraghty climbed down on the hose, swung back and forth until he could catch a foot in the window casement, and then jumped inside.

He heard three or four choking and panic-stricken women together and led them to the back of the building, where they were about to be hoisted up to the roof, when it became apparent that the fire was under control. A few minutes later they were led or carried down the charred stairs.

The members of the human chain, who rescued Mrs. Grace G. Kingsley, were Policeman Amil Squasoni, Fireman Thomas Ford of Engine Company 4, and two citizens who volunteered their aid—David Richard of 339 West Forty-third Street and Frank Frain of 8 Amsterdam Avenue.

With the fire close behind her Mrs. Kingsley climbed out of a window on the third floor to a stone ledge over the main entrance on the second floor. About four feet north of her was the building line and on the property adjoining a loft building was under construction. Lighting the way by his electric torch, Policeman Squasoni led the group of men into the half-finished building.

They found a broken ladder in the rear and climbed to the third floor. From the front of the third floor they could not quite reach the woman but the two citizens caught the policeman and fireman by the legs. Clutching the side of the building they crawled out to full length.

Trusting to the strength and resolution of the two volunteers, who were strangers to them, the uniformed men each took one of the woman's hands and pulled her off the ledge. Richard and Frain held fast. They gradually pulled the three to safety. While this was going on a number of men and women were carried to safety by the ladders which were run up to the second and third floors.

The three thousand children of Public School 4, 173d Street and Fulton and Third Avenues, the Bronx, filed out in excellent order in less than three minutes following the sounding of a fire signal by Principal Simon Hirsdansk shortly after 1 o'clock yesterday afternoon. The dismissal was sounded after the discovery of a fire in a clothes closet on the second floor. James Jennings, the school janitor, put out the blaze before the arrival of firemen.

GOMPERS UPHOLDS HARBOR STRIKERS

Calls Men Justified, but Makes Light of Move to "Save Eight-Hour Day."

INTIMIDATION IS CHARGED

Railroad Men, Declaring Fight in Final Phase, Say Ferries Are Nearly Normal.

Samuel Gompers, President of the American Federation of Labor, expressed yesterday afternoon his approval of the strike of harbormen employed by the railroads and asserted that the men were justified in striking if they believed that the eight-hour day was jeopardized. After a conference with the strike leaders in the Continental Hotel Mr. Gompers, who had arrived during the day from Washington, made it plain that the strike had his sanction.

The harbormen were jubilant at Mr. Gompers's expression of sympathy with their action and declared that yesterday's developments presaged an early victory. They were further encouraged by the offer of William S. Brown, International President of the Marine Engineers, of financial and other aid for the strike. It was said that Mr. Brown represented 21,000 workers.

Mr. Gompers was inclined to scoff at the plan suggested by the harbor men for a general strike of workers throughout the country in support of their eight-hour day. His views on the strike were expressed during a talk with newspaper men, in response to questions regarding his position.

Calls Move Justified.

"I haven't any appointments with any officials connected with the unions now involved in the harbor strike," Mr. Gompers said. "I have, however, seen officers connected with the Marine Workers' Affiliation. I contend that the men are justified in taking any steps that would improve their working conditions, and if they feel that the railroads are adopting means to deprive them of the eight-hour day, whether this step is taken by private owners or the railroads, they are justified in their fight for the assurance of the eight-hour day."

"What can you tell us about the general strike of all workers suggested by the harbormen to aid the eight-hour day?" he was asked.

"An idea—" he said, smiling. "What's the use of talking about it?"

Captain William A. Maher, President of the Masters, Mates and Pilots Local, and William S. Brown, the International President of the organization were among the strike leaders who talked with Mr. Gompers and with Frank Morrison, Vice President of the Federation, who also arrived at the Continental yesterday.

"There is no possibility of the strike being won by the operators," Mr. Brown told reporters. "If the unions now on strike do not win along the present lines they will surely involve other trade unions. It is the duty of labor to back up the fight. It is really a test of the principles of the eight-hour day and our organization will use every effort to assure the continuance of the eight-hour day."

Union men said that the railroads were not moving 5 per cent. of their tugs. "They have nothing to crow about just because the ferries are running," said Thomas B. Healey, President of the Marine Engineers Local. "We don't care particularly about tying up the ferries because that just means inconveniencing the public."

Threaten Law Breakers.

This is a summary of the situation from the standpoint of the railroads, as given out by J. J. Mantell, Chairman of the sub-committee of the Managers' Association:

"1. Ferry schedule practically normal. Floods of letters from patrons urging companies to resist strikers.

"2. Last phase of the strike is in progress; namely, intimidation and threats of violence. The Legal Departments of the railroads have this in hand. The strikers will be proceeded against in every case of infraction of the law.

"3. The railroads are endeavoring to comply with the provisions of the Transportation act of 1920, but the strikers are disregarding that law and the support of the public is thereby forfeited as the law depends for its enforcement upon public opinion.

"4 The first effect of the advertisements is in evidence; applications for employment are coming in in increasing volume, one case of fifteen engineers applying in a body being reported.

"5. Notwithstanding the fog which hung over the river practically all day yesterday, 879 carloads of freight were delivered into New York. The situation today is better.

"6. There was a statement in a morning newspaper alleging that Mr. Healy had said that Mr. Crowley of the New York Central had offered to make a separate settlement. Mr. Crowley absolutely denies making this statement to the newspapers, and Mr. Healy, when called upon by the New York Central officials in regard to same, also denied making this statement."

Milk companies and produce merchants said that the situation with regard to transportation of foodstuffs from the New Jersey side was improved. John J. Fitzpatrick, retail sales manager of the Borden's Farm Products, announced that milk deliveries by his company would be normal today in all sections of the city except the upper West Side. Most of the delay, he said, was due not to the strike, but to the late arrival of trains on the Delaware and Hudson Railroad.

The railroad managers announced yesterday that they would publish a paid advertisement giving their side of the controversy, declaring that neither wages nor working conditions were involved, but refusal to stop delivery to United Fruit Company piers.

TENANTS PLAN UNION TO ENLIST 500,000

COURTS AGAIN CROWDED

Plans made last night by the Executive Committee of the Tenants' Defense Union at a meeting held in the office of the United Hebrew Trades, 175 East Broadway, have the following objects in view:

Organization of one big tenants' union with branches in the various boroughs to embrace a membership of 500,000 by May 1.

Co-operation by the members of the American Labor Party, Central Federated Union and all trade unions, Jewish and non-Jewish.

Trade unionists living in houses where rent "strikes" are called and refusing to join the strikers to be disciplined by their organizations "just like the men who refuse to go out when a strike is called in a shop."

An appeal to Governor Smith to call a special session of the Legislature to pass additional housing legislation to be recommended by the organization, the legislation to include classification of dwellings as public utilities and in the present emergency to place them under the direction of a commission endowed with great powers.

Draft Building Program.

During the afternoon the sub-committee on building construction appointed by Mayor Hylan met and sent the Mayor the following suggestions urging their support by the city:

Suspension of the Tenement House law during the housing emergency and vesting in Tenement House Commissioner Frank Mann power to supervise the reconstruction of old and unused buildings; under this power certain buildings, it was said, might be exempted from present laws so that they might be remodeled into apartments.

The proposal to exempt from taxation new buildings for a period of years was discussed but it was decided that this was unconstitutional.

Organization was announced of Lawyers' District Boards in every Municipal Court district, modeled after the Selective Draft Boards with representatives in each Municipal Court, to advise tenants of their rights under the new laws. The boards are being organized by Daniel W. Blumenthal, who began work by appearing on behalf of tenants before Justice Leopold Prince in the Eighth District Court. Aaron J. Levy, head of the Board of Municipal Magistrates asked lawyers to volunteer their services without compensation to the district boards.

Courts Are Overflowed.

Landlord and tenant cases flooded the courts and there were enthusiastic demonstrations when Justices, in accord with the new law, granted liberal postponements, in some cases up to six months, so that tenants might have time to seek new homes.

There was almost a riot in front of the Westchester Municipal Court on Williamsbridge Road when more than one thousand persons tried to crowd into Justice William Morris's Court, which could hold less than half that number. Landlords and tenants came face to face and bitter recriminations were exchanged until the police reserves of the Westchester Station reached the scene and restored order.

The courts were scenes of great confusion. Women fainted, mothers lost their children in the press of litigants sweeping into the courtrooms, perambulators blocked traffic and court attendants almost threw up their hands in despair when called on to handle the tremendous number of cases.

Real estate organizations are arranging to give tenants free advice on the new laws. The United Real Estate Owners' Association, of which Stewart Browne is President, established an arbitration court at 280 Broadway for landlords and tenants. Mr. Browne said inquiries concerning the new laws were being received from tenants as well as landlords.

350 Before Justice Davies.

Well over 350 hold-over and non-payment proceedings came up before Justice John R. Davies, in the Seventh District Municipal Court. In the hold-over cases, which predominated, tenants often got from one to three months in which to find new quarters, the recent rent laws making the long extensions possible.

An allowance of sixty days was granted the dispossessed yesterday by the Sixth District Municipal Court. Justices Timothy A. Leary and Thomas Murray disposed of 297 cases during the day. This was an increase of over 40 from the day before. The dispossessed were told that if at the end of the sixty-day period they were still unable to find new locations they could ask the court to extend their time until such accommodations could be located. Most of the landlords said they wanted the premises and not the rent.

What was said to be the biggest crowd ever assembled in the Seventh Municipal Court, Pennsylvania Avenue and Fulton Street, Brooklyn, gathered when 450 landlord and tenant cases were heard. More than 1,000 litigants and their families jammed the sidewalks, hallways and courtroom, and there was great confusion. Justice Boyce obtained the consent of many landlords to postpone evictions until July and to give tenants more liberal notice to vacate their rooms.

Assails W. J. Salmon.

When it came out yesterday that Mayor Hylan appointed to his Sub-committee on Building Construction Walter J. Salmon, a real estate operator, of 17 West 42d Street, Truly Warner, head of a chain of hat stores in the city, said "People who have had any dealings with Mr. Salmon will laugh themselves sick when they learn of his appointment." Mr. Warner said that Mr. Salmon had raised his rent nearly 100 per cent.

"He asked us to take the next store in the Seymour Building on 42d Street to accommodate him," continued Mr. Warner, "and after we moved in he came to us and said he had measured both stores, that the old store measured 12 feet 5 inches and the new store 12 feet 7 inches.

"He said he had contracted to give us only 12 feet 5 inches, and asked us what we were going to do about the two inches. I just laughed at him, and he said he would tear down the wall and take the two inches."

Mr. Warner recalled that at the time his rent was raised he put a big sign in his window saying he would not "rob the public to pay his landlord."

In reply to Mr. Warner's statement Mr. Salmon said he "had some litigation" with the hat man. He admitted raising the rent, and said property on Forty-second Street had greatly improved since the war. He denied the two-inch incident had ever taken place, and declared that when Mr. Warner's rent was raised he saw a good opportunity to get some advertising out of it. Anyway, said Mr. Salmon, he was not really the landlord of the property, but merely President of the corporation which owned it.

Replies to Women's Charge.

Mr. Salmon was asked regarding the complaint made to the Health Department by Katherine Clemmons Gould, President of the Woman's Chamber of Commerce, of 500 Fifth Avenue, who said that the "insanitary conditions in the building owned by Salmon would not be tolerated in the poorest tenement districts." She said she appealed repeatedly to the owner and nothing was done. Mr. Salmon replied that it was found that hair combings discarded in a hairdressing shop in the building clogged the pipes and these were cleaned out and larger pipes were being installed. The same cause of the trouble was given by Health Commissioner Copeland, who is associated with Mr. Salmon on the new subcommittee.

In real estate circles there was some disappointment that Mayor Hylan had not appointed to the committee one of the large builders or owners of real estate. Mr. Salmon, it was said, does not appear in the Real Estate Directory for 1919-1920 as the owner of a single piece of property. He is said, however, to be one of the largest lessees of property in the Forty-second Street zone.

Denies Available Vacancies.

John J. Murphy, former Tenement House Commissioner and Secretary of the Tenement House Committee, denied that there were 33,000 vacant apartments in the city which might be fitted for use, as alleged by Edward P. Doyle, legislative agent of real estate interests, who is also a member of the Mayor's newly appointed committee. Mr. Murphy said that the vacancies existed "chiefly in the brain of the able representative of the real estate interests." The proposal to make the tenement house laws easier, he said, were efforts being made by real estate interests to break down the laws which they regarded as meddlesome.

Mayor Hylan has called a public hearing at the City Hall for 10:30 o'clock tomorrow morning to discuss two rent bills which the city is called on to approvel The first is known as Senate Bill No 24, "An act in relation to summary proceedings to remove monthly tenants in the cities of New York and Brooklyn for holding over" and Senate Bill No. 1551, "An act to amend the New York City Municipal Code in relation to proceedings for eviction of tenants."

SAN JOSE, Cal., April 6.—Herbert C. Hoover attempted to register here as a Republican for the California primaries next month, but failed because his affidavit of registration arrived from New York too late to be entered in the register here as a Republican for the nounced today.

Mrs. Hoover's affidavit also arrived too late.

RAILROAD STRIKE IN CHICAGO GROWS

CHICAGO, April 6.—Freight enginemen and firemen on all roads in the Chicago switching district voted tonight to join the striking switchmen, leaving trains at the end of the night shift.

Strikers asserted that this would add 8,600 men to their ranks and that 25,000 other railroad men would be on strike by tomorrow.

Between 15,000 and 18,000 packing house workers were thrown out of work today by the unauthorized strike of switchmen in the district.

A. F. Whitney, Vice President of the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen, announced that approximately 1,000 union switchmen from other cities had arrived to replace the strikers and that an additional 1,000 were on the way.

ASK BETTER CONTROL OF CONVERTED HOUSES

Charity Organization Society Opposes Too Liberal Policy in Remaking Old Dwellings.

In the annual report for its thirty-seventh year, ended Sept. 30 last, made public yesterday, the Charity Organization Society argues against a too liberal official policy in allowing the conversion of old houses into tenements and dwellings in the hope of lowering rents for the poor.

The poor "always have been condemned to live in old houses," the report says, and, though new houses still are beyond their purses, despite wage increases, "we should prevent the erection of houses that are unsafe, insanitary, lacking the decencies of life; but preventive measures alone do not increase the number of rooms for rent.

The society's Tenement House Committee is considering the problem presented by old dwellings, the report says, and "the fact that there is no adequate supervision of houses not classed by the law as tenement houses." After telling of resistance in the last session of the Legislature, without any attempt to be technical, of efforts to cheapen the alteration of old dwellings into tenements, "a perennial effort given added strength by the scarcity of rentable space," and the final passage of a bill which made such adaptations somewhat cheaper without abandoning the maintenance of suitable standards, the report continues:

"Out of the discussion of these measures there came a clear knowledge of the very great need of better control of old dwelling houses, designed for occupancy by a single family, now used as boarding houses and lodging houses, or after alteration used as alleged non-housekeeping apartments. Recently more than 2,000 old dwelling houses in Manhattan alone have been converted into eight suites of rooms for occupancy by eight families. The plans show no kitchen and the houses are therefore passed upon by the Superintendent of Buildings and are not submitted to the Tenement House Department. It is common knowledge that many of these families do, in fact, cook upon the premises and that, in fact, the houses are within the jurisdiction of the Tenement House Department. So far it has been impracticable for the Tenement House Department to assume and exercise that jurisdiction.

"There is a prevailing impression that we must permit congestion to avoid high rent. Nothing could be further from the truth. There are various ways in which congestion can be prevented. The zoning ordinance might be amended so as to limit the cubical contents of buildings per square foot of area of ground. In at least three-quarters of the area of the City of New York no building for human habitation should be allowed to cover more than 45 per cent. of the land."

Holds Gasoline a Sunday Necessity.

HUNTINGTON, W. Va., April 6.—Gasoline is as necessary for an automobile as feed for a horse, ruled Magistrate Samuel Wright, in discharging two Huntington garage owners who were charged with having violated the Sunday closing law. The defendants were arrested Sunday on orders of Mayor C. W. Campbell, who charged that they had sold gasoline to motorists in violation of the "blue law."

REPUBLICANS DOOM GOVERNOR'S PLANS

Disapprove Program for Executive Budget and Reorganization of State Government.

MOVE FOR RECONSTRUCTION

Senator Sage's Bill Proposes to Consolidate Hospital, Charities and Prison Commissions.

SOLDIER BONUSES TO PASS

Increased Pay for Teachers Also to Go Through—Other Bills Will Swell Budget.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, April 6.—The Republican leaders of the Legislature have determined that Governor Smith's recommendation for the inauguration of the Executive budget is to be thrown on the scrap heap, together with the rest of his plan for reorganization of the State Government in the interest of retrenchment, of which it was the central feature.

Speaker Sweet announced today that the Governor's executive budget plan had been disapproved by the leaders, as had the proposal to lengthen the Governor's term of office. In place of three constitutional amendments proposed to carry out the Governor's reconstruction plan, the Republican leaders are having framed others which will modify the plan in many directions, and among other things will continue most of the jobs, as a matter of vital interest to the party in power.

Would Continue Elective Offices.

Under the Republican reconstruction plan, it is certain that, besides the Governor and Lieutenant Governor, the Attorney General, the Controller and possibly the State Engineer would be continued as elective officers. To the State Engineer's department, which with the completion of the Barge Canal has become of secondary importance, it is proposed to give a new lease of life by transferring to it the Department of Public Works, now headed by a Superintendent appointed by the Governor.

The Controller, under the Republican plan, would be purely a State auditor, and the Secretary of State a custodian of State records and Keeper of the Great Seal. The automobile tax now levied by the Secretary of State, and tax levies by the Controller would be collected by a new Department of Finance and Taxation. The office of the State Treasurer would become a bureau in the Controller's department.

Senator Henry M. Sage, Chairman of the Senate Finance Committee, introduced the first of the Republican reconstruction measures today. This was a proposed amendment to the Constitution under which the State Hospital Commission, the State Board of Charities, the State Prison Commission and the State Department of Prisons would be consolidated into a State Board of Mental Hygiene, Charities and Correction, composed of not less than nine members, not appointed by the Governor, but elected by the Legislature, as are members of the Board of Regents now.

Plan Next Three Weeks' Program.

In the Legislature it was a day of inactivity, but the leaders taking advantage of the lull have decided upon the program for the remaining three weeks of the session. From what became known of the plans it seems certain that the so-called "social welfare" program for which the League of Women Voters have been contending actively is doomed and that there will be no prohibition enforcement legislation, either rigid or "liberal."

Among proposals of importance which will be pressed is that for bonuses for veterans of the World War, in all probability $10 for each month of service, though the amount has not been definitely decided upon, nor has the method by which the money is to be raised.

Provision will be made also for increased salaries for teachers, but even here details remain to be worked out. The bills presented by the Lusk Committee, which has been investigating seditious activities, will be put through, as will two bills to "regulate," Americanize and compel to be exclusively political the Socialist Party, which may be presented to the Legislature tomorrow or Thursday. The bills are being prepared by Frank B. Gilbert, Deputy Commissioner of Education.

Lieut. Col. Theodore Roosevelt, sponsor for the Minimum Wage bill, which is part of the welfare program, has been asked by Mrs. Melvin P. Porter, President of the Buffalo Women's Joint Legislative Conference, to move to have that measure taken out of the Rules Committee for debate in the open for the purpose of "disproving what the women term an idle boast on the part of Mark A. Daly, lobbyist for the Associated Manufacturers and Industries, that men introduce welfare bills in Albany, but they never fight for them."

Some measures which may add considerably to the State budget which already has broken all records by its amazing total, are slated for passage. It was stated today that the leaders still remained so greatly in the dark regarding the plans for the New York-New Jersey vehicular tunnel that the amount of money for next year's construction work had not been determined. An appropriation for the purpose will be made, however, before final adjournment.

STRIKE LEADERS SENTENCED

Five Winnipeg Inciters Get One Strike Leaders Sentenced.

WINNIPEG, April 6.—Six leaders of last year's general strike were sentenced to jail today. The Rev. William Ivens, W. A. Pritchard, R. J. Johns, ex-Alderman John Queen and George Armstrong received one year for each of six counts of seditious conspiracy, with sentences running concurrently, and six months for common nuisance. R. F. Bray received six months on the nuisance count.

Doubts Amundsen's Dash to Pole.

WASHINGTON, April 6.—The Norwegian Geographical Society in a cablegram today to the National Geographical Society expressed doubt as to the correctness of recently published reports that Captain Roald Amundsen, discoverer of the South Pole and now leader of a North Polar expedition, had begun his final dash to the pole. Officials of the geographical society here said the explorer expected to dash for the pole in the Spring of 1921.

Dealings in Stocks Broaden, Aided by Low Call Money Rate—Rails Advance.

Speculative confidence over the immediate future of the money market found further expression yesterday in a broad advance of stocks, the railroad issues taking a minor part in the movement. The fact that the rails were stirred, although moderately, out of their lethargy was, perhaps, more significant of a widened interest in trading than extensive advances of steel, sugar, oil and motor shares. Call loans went at 6 per cent. throughout the borrowing period and supplies were considerably in excess of the demand on the Stock Exchange floor. There were indications of revived pool operations in certain of the volatile industrial stocks, which have been products on numerous occasions of the last year of an easement of market credit. It has happened before that concerted efforts to bid up stocks have shortly been followed by a rise of the call loan rate, which developments have not failed to leave their imprint on sentiment among cautious followers of the market. So long as time money commands from 7½ to 8½ per cent. or more it is clear that the underlying credit situation is tense and too great stress might easily be laid upon downward fluctuations in the call rate.

Strength of the steel stocks was probably the dominant feature of the day's business. Large blocks of United States Steel common changed hands, developing greater activity in this issue than had been seen for some time. Traders made capital of reported large sales of copper for foreign as well as domestic account. Quite likely the very fact that sentiment in the Street was more cheerful from internal causes tended to emphasize the possibilities of increased sales abroad by American producers, but at the same time indications are appearing of real improvement in European countries as the Spring advances. The adverse exchanges continue, of course, to restrict exports to Continental Europe, but sizable amounts of essential commodities, including machinery and coal, are being financed and reports coming from localities of southeastern Europe where physical want prevailed during the Winter show that goods are moving more freely and conditions are better.

The occupation by French forces of several German cities was not looked upon in the financial community yesterday as an event with serious possibilities. Rather curiously German exchange moved forward and the reaction which occurred in rates on other countries was connected with matters other than those of military import. Sterling declined 3 cents to the pound, with a closing rate of $3.98¼ for checks. French, Belgian and Italian quotations were reactionary throughout the session as offerings of bills expanded over the previous day. The advance in a week of more than 20 cents to the pound sterling naturally invited considerable profit taking, and it might be assumed also that exporters who had been holding back their bills when the market was rising hastened to get rid of them as soon as a temporary top seemed to have been reached. Another sizable shipment of gold was received and further imports are looked for on steamers soon to arrive.

Foreign Exchanges.

LONDON, April 6.—Bar silver 72d per ounce. Bar gold 103s. Money 3½ per cent. Discount rates: Short bills 5½@5¾ per cent; three months bills 5⅝ per cent. Gold premiums at Lisbon 140.

PARIS, April 6.—Prices were steady on the Bourse today. Three per cent. rentes 57 francs 35 centimes. Exchange on London 59 francs 72 centimes. Five per cent. loan 88 francs 40 centimes. The dollar was quoted at 14 francs 75 centimes.

Intercontinental Rubber Report.

The Intercontinental Rubber Company reporting for 1919 shows net profits after deducting all charges and Federal taxes of $101,111. This was equal to 35 cents a share earned on the $29,031,000 capital stock. The surplus account for the year shows total profits and income from investments amounting to $215,237. Profit and loss surplus at the close of the year was $4,446,079.

NATIONAL LEAD CO. EARNS $4,632,560

Net Income on $20,655,400 Common Stock Equivalent to 14.17 Per Cent. Dividend.

TAX RESERVES INCREASED

Company Will Continue Policy of Conservatism, Says President E. J. Cornish in Report.

The report of the National Lead Company for last year shows net earnings, after deducting expenses, reserves and other charges, of $4,632,560. After the deduction of preferred dividends this was equivalent to 14.17 per cent. a share on the $20,655,400 outstanding common stock, as compared with net in the preceding year of $4,692,815, which, after preferred dividend allowances, was equal to 14.46 per cent. earned on the same stock. The balance sheet as of Dec. 31, 1919, shows an increase in the tax reserves of $2,350,931 to $4,347,191 from the preceding year, while promotion reserve was increased to $1,500,000 from $1,000,000 in 1918. Accounts payable decreased to $3,936,780 from $7,874,871, and surplus increased $1,894,058 to $18,553,965, as compared with the preceding year. Edward J. Cornish, President of the company, in his remarks to stockholders, said in part:

"The showing for the year is quite satisfactory. In considering it, however, we should bear in mind that the period of readjustment to peace conditions is not yet passed. Wages and salaries are higher than a year ago. As yet high prices do not appear to have checked consumption. But conditions are abnormal and unstable. The company, therefore, must continue its conservative policy, keeping itself strong financially and endeavoring to meet successfully each problem that arises.

"On the whole, the internal affairs of the company are satisfactory, and if there are any clouds on the horizon they are such as threaten business generally, and are not peculiar to the National Lead Company."

Discussing foreign business in 1919, Mr. Cornish said that the Argentine company organized by National Lead had a profitable year and that the demand from Europe could not be met because domestic orders were so pressing.

The United States Cartridge Company, which was taken over by the National Lead Company in January of this year, is increasing its sales of shotgun shells and sporting ammunition, according to Mr. Cornish, who explained in the report that the greater part of its profits made on war orders were paid back to the Government as taxes. The profits of the cartridge company for 1920 are estimated at $2,000,000. At the close of the year there were 1,810 common stockholders in the company, or 141 less than in 1918, while the number of preferred holders increased 114, to 4,985.

WILL ACQUIRE COAL LANDS.

Temports Association to Incorporate in Virginia with $6,000,000.

The Terminal Ports Association announced yesterday that articles of incorporation for the Temports Corporation will be filed in Virginia shortly. The new concern will have a capital of $6,000,000, according to the announcement, and its control will be donated to the association. It is the plan for the new company to acquire coal properties in West Virginia which will be divided into 1,000 acre parcels and leased to operators. It is also the purpose of the new concern to reserve the right to purchase the total output of the field if it so desires. Plans call also for the purchase of a terminal site, and the obtaining of tonnage to transport coal. Chauncey H. Murphy, Louis B. Hall, Jr., and Benjamin Catchings, President of the Terminal Ports Association, will be Directors of the new corporation.

$9,800,000 IN GOLD HERE FROM ENGLAND

Minnekahda Brings Third Big Shipment of Bullion to Pay War Loans.

CARMANIA BEARS LIKE SUM

Her Arrival Today Will Swell Total of Such Receipts to $39,200,000.

The third big shipment of gold bullion sent by the British Treasury to its fiscal agents in the United States, J. P. Morgan & Co., to pay off the Anglo-French war loans and other war loans raised in South America, arrived yesterday on the Atlantic Transport liner Minnekahda. The bullion weighed seventeen tons, and was stowed in the steel-lined specie room of the liner under the charge of the chief officer and the purser. It was valued at $9,800,000 in United States currency. As the Minnekhada did not reach her pier until 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon it was decided to keep the bullion on board for the night.

This morning the gold will be conveyed in motor trucks with an armed guard to the Federal Reserve Bank in Nassau Street, to which it will be sold by J. P. Morgan & Co., in a similar manner to the shipments which arrived on the Red Star liner Lapland and the Cunarder Saxonia. The total amount of gold bullion received in the three shipments was stated yesterday to be $29,400,000. The Cunard liner Carmania will arrive late today with another $9,800,000, making a total of $39,200,000 of such shipments.

While no information could be obtained from J. P. Morgan & Co. or the Federal Reserve Bank as to the exact amount of gold bullion that Great Britain was going to ship to the United States to pay off her war loans, it was understood it would probably be from $100,000,000 to $150,000,000. The Anglo-French loan of $500,000,000 at 5 per cent. is due in October and a considerable number of the bonds have been purchased from time to time during the past year in the open market by the British Treasury Department, at less than par.

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

Money at 6 Per Cent.

For the first time since Feb. 20 call money yesterday stood at 6 per cent. all day. Since that earlier date the money market has undergone quite a strain, what with the March 15 settlement coming in the interim and with the other big movements, both from and to this centre, and the rate has been consistently stiff until within the last two or three business days. Since Feb. 20 call funds have loaned at 15 per cent. twice and at 14 per cent. once, and have stood at or above 10 per cent. on no less than fifteen of the thirty-one intervening days on which call loans were made.

***

Government Withdrawals.

Yesterday's withdrawals of Government funds with local banks amounted to approximately $12,700,000, the amount virtually closing out all the credits the Government received as a result of the March 15 offering of one-year 4¾ per cent. Treasury certificates. Thus, it was explained, the Statement of Government deposits with the banks in this week's Clearing House actual statement will give a pretty clear indication of what this city is doing on the current offering of three-month Treasury certificates.

Treasury Finance.

The statement of the Treasury Department calling attention to the fact that the big reduction in the public debt during March was more apparent than real, and announcing the department's intention of again appealing to the money market at a early date, brings up the question of rate once more. The 4¾ per cent. rate quite obviously did not appeal when the department offered its one-year notes. It probably will turn out better in the case of the present offering of three months' bills, but there is nothing to indicate that it will go indefinitely. The private remarks of bankers, the utterances of the Chamber of Commerce's Committee on Finance and Currency, and even some of the inferences contained in the local Federal Reserve Bank's annual statement all point to the virtually unanimous belief on the part of financial experts that the Treasury should increase its rate. Whether it will do so, however, is a different matter.

Acceptances in Demand.

For the last few weeks there has been an unusualy large and persistent demand for prime bankers' acceptances, not only from the much-talked-of "small interior banks," but also from savings banks, insurance companies and from corporations. Also, it is learned, some foreign buying of rather respectable size is said to have taken place. One report had it that a large trust company had purchased upward of $25,000,000 bankers' acceptances for the British Government, out of funds accumulating against the $500,000,000 Anglo-French maturity, and there have been other large orders. The rate, in the neighborhood of 6 per cent., seems to be attracting new buyers of good bills surprisingly. Incidentally, the volume of bills held by the Reserve Bank has been contracting the last few weeks, having gone down from $231,257,309 on Feb. 27 to $171,748,000 last week. This contraction, it is said, reflects the maturity of bills held and the inability, or at least the failure, of the Reserve Bank to replace, as well as the lessened volume offered to the bank by dealers.

Steel Stocks Strong.

Steel company shares were market leaders in the late trading yesterday, the buying in United States Steel being especially neavy. One house was credited with having purchased 30,000 shares of steel common, which advanced to 106, the high as well as the close for the day. Doubtless part of the buying in this issue was attributable to short covering, the low money rate and the buoyancy of the list in general not affording much comfort to the bears.

Lackawanna, Bethlehem and Republic Iron and Steel followed the lead set by United States Steel, substantial gains being recorded by all of them. There are a number of traders who believe that the steel shares have not reflected in their market action the earning possibilities that are foreshadowed by the extensive and urgent demand for steel that exists the world over. This is held to be especially true with regard to United States Steel. From the market action of the shares yesterday it would appear that this feeling was becoming more general throughout the trading community.

Copper Stocks Active.

The forward movement that took place in the copper shares was not unexpected. Rather there has been surprise that it was postponed so long, considering the favorable news that was constantly coming forth with regard to the copper situation. With export and domestic demand increasing rapidly it was only natural to expect that reflection of this would be found in the stock market. Anaconda gained more than two points and Inspiration, Cerro de Pasco, American Smelting and others of the copper group made corresponding advances. It was in the final half hour that the coppers came to the fore and during a few minutes they appeared on the tape almost to the exclusion of all other issues.

Baldwin Shares Advance.

It appeared that the shorts were once more being squeezed in Baldwin Locomotive. The stock advanced above 140, thereby ranging close to the high for this year. Baldwin still remains in the mystery class. There are reports a-plenty as to the prospective melon cutting, but the weak holders of the shares have not been inclined to wait. Many disposed of their stock when the Directors at their last meeting failed to take other than routine action, when some recapitalization plan confidently had been expected. There is nearly always a sizable short interest in Baldwin which is inclined to cover hurriedly when the market turns upward. Since the floating supply is not believed to be large this buying brings about some sharp advances.

***

Standard of New Jersey Heavy.

While most of the high-priced issues were advancing Standard Oil of New Jersey was declining yesterday, the loss amounting to about 13 points and bringing the issue down to 785. As compared with the high of the year Standard of New Jersey is now off some 120 points. It appears that the speculative holdings which were acquired in anticipation of a melon cutting, with the advent of the stock to listing on the New York Stock Exchange, are now being sold. There was less talk recently of a stock dividend, or even a subdivision of the shares, both of which possibilities were mentioned following the favorable decision on stock dividends by the Supreme Court.

***

February Rail Earnings Poor.

With the returns from a majority of the railroads for February in the hands of the Interstate Commerce Commission it appears that for the first time in the memory of local railroad managers the class 1 carriers of the country will show a net operating deficit in the neighborhood of $10,000,000. Most of the Eastern roads have reported and the figures indicate that their net operating deficit will be more than $25,000,000. The actual deficit, however, is less because the Southern and Western roads will show approximately $15,000,000 in net operating income for the month. On the Railroad Administration basis of $75,000,000 standard return to the roads in each month, the operating deficit for the Government will be $85,000,000. With a net operating deficit of $10,000,000 the roads have apparently failed by $6,000,000 to make enough to pay their taxes in February. In the case of several of the roads February earnings have shown marked improvement over February, 1919, but these are in the minority and fail to offset the losses shown chiefly by the Eastern roads.

The Labor Board Appointments.

Railroad men who have recently been in Washington say that while the gossip in that city has it that the President is not finding the kind of men he wants to appoint to the permanent Railroad Labor Board eager to accept, it is believed that these appointments will be announced within a reasonably short time. It is also expected that the President will appoint the new Interstate Commerce Commissioners soon.

Information Regarding Foreign Internal Loans

The constant discussion regarding the depreciation in the value of foreign currencies prompted us to prepare a new circular which explains briefly the reasons for this depreciation. The circular explains why it is to the advantage of Americans to buy the internal loans of European governments rather than purchase drafts of deposit money for their account in foreign banks.

Brief descriptions of some of the more attractive foreign investments are included.

COPPER REFINING CURTAILED IN 1919

CAUSED BY POOR DEMAND

The Phelps-Dodge Corporation describes in its report for 1919, issued yesterday, how the production and refining of copper was curtailed when the demand was found to be poor and effort was turned to the development of additional ore reserves. The income account shows the result of the year's slump in copper consumption, the company's gross earnings being no more than $28,366,437, compared with $59,483,208 in 1918. The balance available for dividends, after expenses had been met and $3,798,348 set aside against mine depletion, was $3,214,344. The year before the corresponding item was $10,282,870. As the net income was equal to $7.14 per share of stock and $10 per share was disbursed to shareowners, there was a deficit of $1,285,656 at the end of the year.

The balance sheet as of Dec. 31 shows $18,516,862 materials on hand, mainly copper for the market, an increase of approximately $8,000,000 over the showing a year before. Cash and securities totaled $7,425,754, against $12,985,408. The depreciation and depletion account amounted to $60,795,100, in contrast with $49,579,707 in 1918, and the increase of more than $11,000,000 found reflection in a decline of surplus, this item being $123,794,061, against $131,379,716 at the end of the preceding year. Including copper received from outside sources and marketed by the company, the year's sales comprised 149,284,465 pounds at an average price of 17.13 cents per pound at New York.

The report says that there was practically no demand for copper during the first quarter of 1919, and the price went as low as a shade under 15 cents per pound in March. In May, June and July there was a wave of buying, which continued into August, carried the quotation forward to 24 cents, the highest of the year. Then there was a lull until November, when active buying appeared again.

"With the production reduced to a basis of two-thirds of normal," the report states, "with the almost complete absorption of French and British stock and with the heavy sales made to our own fabricators, the statistical position of the metal at the end of the year showed a great improvement over that existing at the beginning."

Besides devoting attention to the uncovering of new reserves of ore, the company pushed work during the year on additional reduction facilities. The company, says the report, was free from labor and political disturbances at the Montezuma mines, the principal property in Mexico.

From a letter of Mr. F. K. Rupprecht, President, to us with respect to this issue, we summarize as follows:

BUSINESS

The Consolidated Textile Corporation was organized under the laws of the State of Delaware on September 27, 1919, and has acquired either directly or through stock ownership the business and assets of the Pilot Cotton Mills Company of Raleigh, North Carolina; The James N. Williamson & Sons Company of Burlington, North Carolina (Ossipee and Hopedale Mills); The Ella Manufacturing Company of Shelby, North Carolina; The Lynchburg Cotton Mills Company of Lynchburg, Virginia; The Windsor Print Works of North Adams, Mass., and the Pelham Manufacturing Company of Pelham, Georgia, and has arranged to acquire the Bonham Cotton Mills Company of Bonham, Texas.

This Company manufactures a wide variety of Cotton Goods, including Chambrays, Napped Flannels, Percales, Printed Napped Flannels, Crepes, Fine Brown Sheetings, Osnaburgs, Drills, Print Cloth, Yarns, and a wide range of Printed and Dyed Fancy Cotton Fabrics. The product of the mills is sold under trademarks, which are well established and distributed in both the domestic and export markets.

ASSETS

After the completion of this financing the Company's net tangible assets after deducting all liabilities except this issue are $13,462,052.39 or more than four and one-third times the total funded indebtedness of $3,000,000. It also appears that the net quick assets alone (that is current assets less current liabilities) amount to $5,497,537.54 or approximately 183% of such outstanding issue of $3,000,000.

EARNINGS

Net earnings of the businesses now controlled by the Company for the past three years ended December 31st, 1919, before taxes, have averaged approximately $1,900,000, while for 1919 they were $2,363,654.08, equal to over ten times the required interest payment. Since the acquisition of such businesses by this Company, the combined earnings have increased, and for the calendar year 1920 it is conservatively estimated that the net earnings of the Company will be largely in excess of the 1919 earnings of the businesses.

DIVIDENDS

The Company is now paying dividends at the rate of $3.00 per share per annum on 267,637 shares outstanding of its capital stock. At the present market price of about $33 there is an equity of approximately $8,800,000 following this note issue, equal to nearly three times the amount of this issue.

COVENANTS

No mortgage or lien can be placed on the properties of the Company during the life of these notes. The Company will at all times maintain quick assets equal to at least 150% of its current liabilities. The Company will pay as a sinking fund $125,000 semi-annually, to be applied to the purchase or retirement of the notes at not exceeding 102½% and accrued interest, subject to the Company being credited against such sinking fund payments with the face amount of all notes converted into stock.

All legal matters in connection with this issue are being passed upon by Messrs. Rushmore, Bisbee & Stern, of New York.

The accounts of the Company have been audited by Messrs. Price, Waterhouse & Co., of New York

We offer the above notes, when, as, and if issued and received by us, and subject to the approval of counsel.

STUDEBAKER STOCK DIVIDEND DECLARED

Distribution of 33 1-3 Per Cent. on Common Stock Is Made, Payable May 5.

BUSINESS IS EXPANDING

Directors' Action Means Increase in Common Capitalization from $45,000,000 to $60,000,000.

The Directors of the Studebaker Corporation, which is one of the large manufacturers of automobiles, yesterday declared a stock dividend of 33 1-3 per cent. on the common stock. This is payable May 5 to stock of record, April 19. The action means an increase in the common capitalization of the company from $45,000,000 to $60,000,000. The new stock will carry the regular quarterly dividend which will be declared soon.

Such action by the Directors was something of a surprise to the financial district. There have been rumors for some time that important developments might be expected with relation to this company, but the majority were inclined to the opinion that the rate on the common stock would be increased. It was considered that the way was being paved for a dividend increase by the last quarterly declaration, which was 1¾ per cent. regular and 2¼ per cent. extra. Reasoning from this it was believed that the regular dividend eventually would be increased to at least 10 per cent. annually and perhaps to 12 per cent.

The present capitalization of $15,000,000 from the surplus account, which totals $28,000,000 bears no definite relation to the dividend action which will be announced later from South Bend. None of the Directors would comment yesterday on what might be expected in the way of common dividends with the greater amount of common stock outstanding when the dividend becomes payable. The only mention was the following sentence in the official statement of the stock dividend. "The additional stock will carry the dividend payable June 1."

The business of the company, it was asserted, was rapidly expanding. During the first quarter of the year 14,000 cars were manufactured and sold, this output being from the Detroit plant alone. The expected total output for the year, it is estimated, will be 80,000 cars, of which 52,000 will come from the Detroit plants. The additional output will come from plants which will be in operation at full capacity within a short time.

AMERICAN CAN CO. NOTES.

First National Bank Buys $12,000,000 in 5 to 8 Months' Securities.

The American Can Company has sold to the First National Bank $12,000,000 in 7½ per cent. discount notes. The notes are dated April 12 and will mature in four equal instalments on Sept. 13, Oct. 13, Nov. 12 and Dec. 13. No public offering of these securities will be made, it is understood, but the purchasing bank is expected to dispose of part of them to other financial institutions.

The American Can Company has been doing seasonable financing of this kind for some years. The proceeds of the sale of the notes are to be used for the purchase of tin plate which the company uses, and for other raw materials. The notes, it is understood, will be eligible for rediscount.

The amount of this financing is identical with similar arrangements made last year and the year before. The company sold $12,000,000 in six to nine months notes to the First National Bank, as of March 17, 1919, and in January, 1918, it sold a similar amount in seven to ten months notes.

Business Foundations

THE real cost of production cannot be determined without an accurate Valuation of your plant upon which to base a reasonable allowance for depreciation.

Without knowledge of total costs profits become guess work and dividends may be sapping the life blood of the property and destroying the foundations for future credit.

COMPTON TO START BONUS REFERENDUM

Former County Chairman to Form National Committee for Taking Country-Wide Vote.

ATTACKS LEGION LEADERS

Declares Blanket Demand Is Stain on Organization—Says Roosevelt Has Heavy Responsibility.

Asserting that until the demand for blanket bonuses for all able-bodied veterans is abandoned and the organization's lobby at Washington has been eradicated, the American Legion should change the preamble of its constitution to read "For God, Country and Me," George Brokaw Compton, former New York County Chairman of the Legion, last night announced his purpose of forming a national committee to take a countrywide referendum of Legion members on the blanket bonus question.

Mr. Compton charged the Legion leaders with "jumping headlong on the bandwagon and driving recklessly along the road of popularity." He also insisted that Assemblyman Theodore Roosevelt "now has a heavy responsibility for failing to raise his voice in protest against the departure of the legion from its original worthy and patriotic professions," and maintained that unless the present movement were halted the Legion would have to amend its slogan from "100 per cent. Americanism" to "15 per cent. Americanism."

He announced that his effort to "save the Legion" was in response to a general demand, saying:

"Letters and telegrams deploring the Legion demand continue to come to me daily in such numbers that I have decided to invite all members of the Legion in favor of forming a large committee, representative of the whole country, for the purpose of saving the great potentialities of the Legion for the useful service to the public as well as to its members by advocating a national referendum by ballot of individual members on the question of blanket bonuses, to write to me at 501 Fifth Avenue, New York City."

Mr. Compton's announcement is in the form of a challenge to National Commander Franklin D'Olier of the Legion and in reply to Mr. D'Olier's description of those who object to the blanket bonus as "a new form of conscientious objectors." The New York County leader flatly asserts that Mr. D'Olier should explain his championship of bonuses, in view of the fact that "such a demand is contrary to his (D'Olier's) personal convictions regarding not only the best interests of the Legion itself, but also the best interests of the whole American people."

"Hasty and superficial methods of obtaining Legion sentiment," continues Mr. Compton, "are especially pernicious in this matter, because it is easy for leaders to misinterpret sentiment favoring a bonus as being sentiment also in favor of demanding blanket bonuses. Many of those who favor a bonus do not want to demand it, or to be represented as demanding it. In bonus arguments this distinction has not been emphasized as much as in fairness it should have been."

The New York County leader charges that the officers of that organization instead of teaching the members the grave consequences of a two million dollar bond issue or taxation to that amount at this time "have jumped on the 'band wagon' and are now themselves driving it recklessly along the road of popularity."

After calling it "easy for demagogues to convince the ex-service man that he wants a bonus and not so easy to convince him he wants to demand one, Mr. Compton asserts, "it has been easy for officials of the American Legion to interpret a willingness to receive into a willingness to demand. He accuses a "small body of self-seekers and politicians in the Legion" of making the loudest noise.

LEGION POSTS URGED TO BE READY MAY 1

Committee on Americanism Plans to Meet Any Outbreak of Radicals.

At a meeting last night of the Committee on Americanism of the American Legion, at the Automobile Club, 247 West Fifty-fourth Street, Lorillard Spencer, Chairman, advocated strenuous preparations by the Legion to prevent Radical demonstration on May 1. A man in the gathering, who would not give his name, suggested that every Post of the Legion hold a meeting on the night of April 30, to be in readiness should anything occur.

Mr. Spencer said that he did not believe the Legion should do anything without consulting authorities beforehand. However, he advocated that every Post send a list of all men available on that day to the police heads so that should the authorities need men they would know where to find them.

Harold Schwab of the Manhattan Naval Post, who led 3,000 war veterans during their attack on the Madison Square Garden radical demonstrations last May, said that the Legion was saying too much, and not acting enough. He did not believe in using force, but suggested, instead, that the Legion urge on the city officials that no red flags be permitted on the streets on that day.

Mr. Spencer answered that he believed there were enough policemen, reserves and National Guard organizations to take care of any radical uprisings, should they occur. Attention has been called to the coincidence that almost every active National Guard organization in the city will hold reviews on or close to May 1.

George Hutton, President of the Paterson (N. J.) Post of the Legion told how Paterson disposed of the radicals last Fall. If the City of Paterson could handle its Socialists in such an orderly manner, he said, he believed New York City would have no trouble in seeing that the red flag of the enemy did not appear on its streets.

"In camp we obeyed army regulations," said Mr. Hutton, "but when we got to the front we were often obliged to take matters in our own hands. I believe we are approaching the front now in civil life. If the authorities do not look into the matter, it is up to us to be in readiness in case we are called upon in an emergency."

Mr. Spencer said that he would adopt the methods used in the Boy Scout organizations throughout the country. In that way there would be no difficulty in getting the men together as quickly as possible, should the necessity arise.

FRENCH GET 10 PER CENT. OF EX-ENEMY WARSHIPS

Five Cruisers, Including the Emden; 10 Destroyers and 40 Submarines, Their Share.

PARIS, April 6.—Particulars of the distribution of enemy warships among the Allies have just been published here. France's share, which is 10 per cent. of the total tonnage of all the captured enemy ships, with the exception of submarines, represents 92,000 tons, half of which is in German ships and the reminder in Austrian vessels.

Five cruisers and ten destroyers are allotted to France, and the same number of cruisers and destroyers to Italy. Each of these two powers will also receive a light cruiser and three destroyers, which may be used for a year for experimental purposes, but must be destroyed when that time has elapsed.

France will receive the cruiser Emden. Forty submarines now in French ports are also allotted to France, and of these ten may be put in service. France is the only power to which the privilege of using captured submarines has been granted.

Paul Bignon, Under-Secretary of State for the Mercantile Marine, emphasizes the cordial relations between Great Britain and France in a statement printed in several newspapers with reference to the negotiations in London concerning the final distribution of German tonnage among the Allies.

M. Bignon declares that Great Britain, in abandoning her claim to 200,000 tons of shipping which the French Government urgently requested for France, "showed great consideration," and that France "should be grateful to England in view of the fact that Great Britain's interests were severely affected by the various arrangements which reduced the total amount of tonnage available for distribution."

Pan-Pet on London 'Change.

The listing of Pan American Petroleum and Transport Company Class B common stock on the London Stock Exchange is the first listing of an American issue since the outbreak of the World War. Blair & Co., who received cable advices yesterday that the stock had been admitted, call attention to the fact that some months ago, when the common shares of the Pan American Company were reclassified, a substantial block was taken by British interests.

CALLS BUSINESS MEN TO CONFER ON SHIPS

Admiral Benson Asks Aid of 17 Men Representing Output of $15,000,000,000.

SEEKS ADVICE ON OPERATION

Method, Price and Terms of Sale for Shipping Board Vessels Will Be Discussed.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 6.—Seventeen American business men, representing an annual output worth $15,000,000,000 to $18,000,000,000, have been asked by Admiral W. S. Benson, Chairman of the Shipping Board, to consult with him upon the ultimate disposition of the board's merchant fleet. A two days' conference will be held at the offices of the Shipping Board next week, beginning on Thursday.

A statement by Admiral Benson shows that he has not abandoned his policy of getting the Government out of ship operation. The business interests will not be asked to discuss this policy, but merely how the ships should be disposed of and how operated pending the sale.

The men called to Washington were selected because of their alliance with the great products of the country, such as grain, flour, farm machinery, steel, motors and electrical machinery. Admiral Benson says men of this character are necessarily interested in how efficaciously their products can be marketed abroad.

The men asked to come to Washington include two former Chairmen of the board, Edward N. Hurley, and John Barton Payne, now Secretary of the Interior. The others are James Bell, Washburn Crosby Company, Minneapolis; S. B. Bush, Buckeye Foundries Company, Columbus, Ohio; Charles G. Dawes, Central Trust Company, Chicago; James A. Farrell, U. S. Steel Corporation, New York City; James N. Gunn, U. S. Tire Company, New York City; Alex Legg, International Harvester Company, Chicago; Charles H. McDowell, Armour Fertilizer Company, Chicago; H. L. McLaren, McLaren Rubber Company, Charlotte, N. C.; Eugene Meyer, Jr., War Finance Corporation, Washington; Arthur Phelps, Dodge Motor Company, Detroit; George H. Peak, Moline, Ill.; Julius Rosenwald, Sears Roebuck & Co., Chicago; Fred Vogel, Sr., Pfister-Vogel Leather Company, Milwaukee; Fred H. Wells, Peavey Elevator Company, Minneapolis; Owen Young, General Electric Company, Schenectady, and C. B. Warren, Detroit, Mich.

In a letter to each of these men Admiral Benson says that two large business problems must be solved. One is the method, price and terms of the sale of Shipping Board vessels to private owners, and the other is the operation of its fleet, pending the sale and disposition thereof.

"Unless our national surplus can be successfully disposed of abroad in competition with foreign countries, our American laborer, farmer and capitalist must of necessity be injured and our national prosperity impaired," the Admiral states.

All available data bearing on Shipping Board problems will be submitted for consideration of the conference, out of which, Admiral Benson trusts, may come valuable aid to their solution.

Default in payment of interest due on the first day of January, 1920, upon the above bonds of the Fort Wayne, Van Wert and Lima Traction Company has brought about a situation such as to suggest the necessity of forming a Committee to protect the interests of the bondholders against possible serious loss. MEXICAN SECURITIES

While foreign investment in the United States is now being largely directed to the securities of the countries engaged in the war, many of the issues of the Mexican Government's direct obligations and National Railway Bonds guaranteed by the Mexican Government, may be purchased today for less than the amount of the accumulated arrears of interest.

Having in view the official declaration of the Mexican Government that will shortly resume payment of defaulted and future interest on these bonds, and the justification lent to that statement by the figures relating to the daily growth of Mexican Commerce and Industries, the bonds are among the most promising of all the foreign securities now offered.

Write for our descriptive booklet on Foreign Government and Municipal Bonds which furnishes detailed information concerning all Mexican issues.

WEATHER RULES DAY AS COTTON RISES

TRADING ON LIGHTER SCALE

The weather again dominated the cotton market yesterday, although trading was on a lighter scale than on the previous day and price fluctuations were not nearly so violent. In the morning, with the over-night advices from the South somewhat better than they had been on Monday afternoon, the market sold off twenty-five to thirty-five points, absorbing a good deal of the profit taking and some short selling put out to catch whatever reaction might develop from a supposedly over-bought technical position. But this reaction was a disappointment to the professional traders and as soon as the selling eased a little the market became steady and even recovered about half of the initial drop by midday or shortly thereafter.

In the afternoon prices began to stiffen and in the last hour, on reports of freezing weather in Oklahoma and elsewhere there was another upward rush which carried prices 75 to more than 90 points above the lows of the morning and 45 to 57 points up on the day. This late sharp advance was interpreted by many observers to indicate an exceptionally strong undertone, one likely to prove susceptible to the slightest bullish provocation, and, by the same token, it did much to discourage the few bears who remain in the market.

Yesterday's reaction in the foreign exchange market, where sterling sold down to $3.98¼, against a maximum of $4.03 on Monday, was not regarded as a serious influence against advancing cotton prices. On the contrary, it looked more like a temporary reaction, and not like a definite turning in the movement. In this respect, the cotton trade is optimistic in the extreme over the rise in sterling in the last two months, and predictions are freely made that the exports of the next two or three months will be quite up to the standards of November, December and January, when 850,000 to 900,000 bales a month were moving.

GOLD FOR SOUTH AMERICA.

British Shipments to New York Reported Going to Southern Republics.

LONDON, April 6.—It is said in well-informed American quarters here that the bulk of the recent shipments of gold to New York was intended for transhipment to South America, where it will be used to pay off the accumulation of wartime debts.

This, it is held, is virtually necessary in view of the unwillingness of South American traders further to extend credits, many of which are long pending, and their reluctance to await a balancing up through the eventual restoration of British industries to a normal production basis.

In addition to the shipments of gold routed through New York it is said that considerable gold has been sent direct to South American ports.

New York Bank Opens in Madrid.

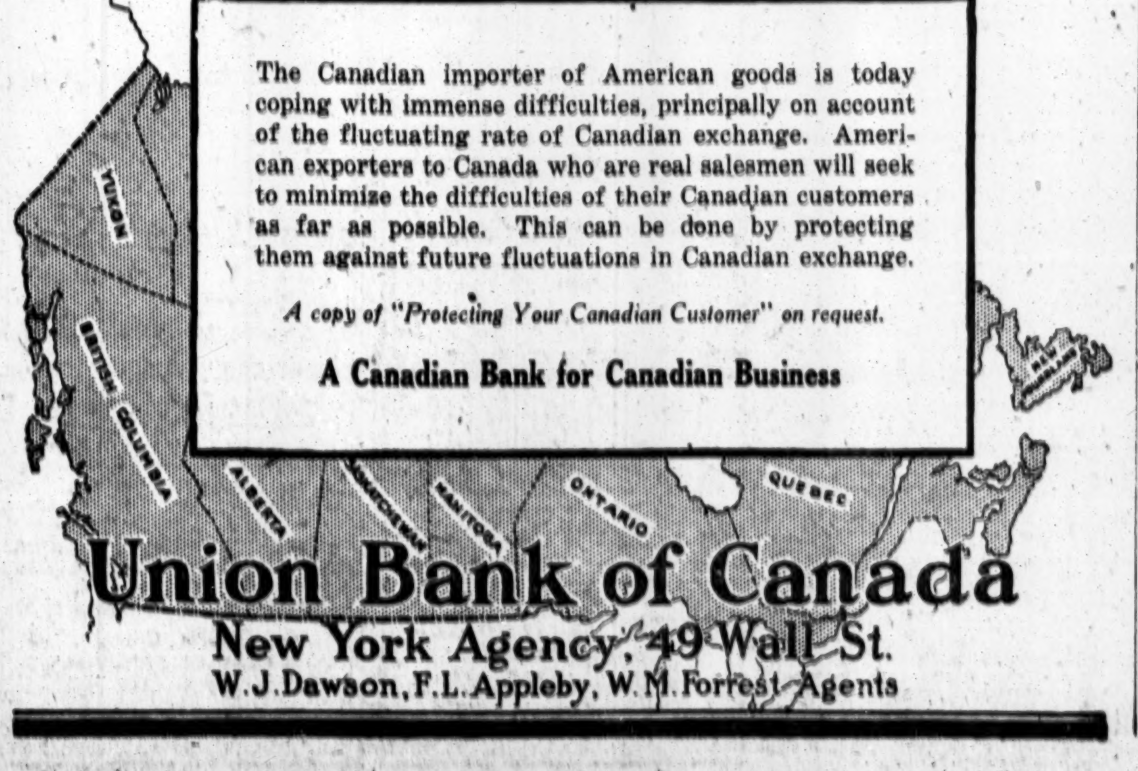
Protecting Your Canadian Customer



The Canadian importer of American goods is today coping with immense difficulties, principally on account of the fluctuating rate of Canadian exchange. American exporters to Canada who are real salesmen will seek to minimize the difficulties of their Canadian customers as far as possible. This can be done by protecting them against future fluctuations in Canadian exchange.

EXTERNAL LOANS

6½% Credit Notes due 1919
5½% Bonds due December, 1921

The increasing orderliness with which the present Russian Government is administering the affairs of the country, added to the important fact that Great Britain and other European Powers have already resumed commercial relations with different points of the former Muscovite Empire, has created a favorable reaction in the market quotations of Russian Government Securities.

In view of pending developments looking towards peace with the Allies, the important consideration that Russian 5½s and 6½s are now standing at slightly over 30% of their face value, and that the total Bond Issues circulating in the United States do not exceed $75,000,000, we recommend them as a good speculative investment.

FAIR WEATHER SEES FIFTH AV. THRONGED

FLAGS AND BUNTING ABOUND

Seventh Century Chinese God Has Place in Art Exhibition—Prize Competitions Announced.

The second day of Fifth Avenue Week brought out thousands of shoppers and spectators who thronged the thoroughfare looking at the decorations and exhibits which the merchants and manufacturers have arranged in honor of the occasion. Members of the Fifth Avenue Association, which sponsored the celebration to draw attention to the fine points of the famed street, were gratified by the interest of the general public in this the first of which is planned as an annual celebration.

Unlike Monday, when the weather was inclement, flags and bunting were everywhere in evidence, adding to the attractiveness of the other features of the celebration. Some of the conning towers of the traffic police were also decorated for the occasion.

One of the main events yesterday was a pageant entitled "America the Beautiful; Democracy's Goal," which was given in Madison Square by the pupils of Public School 15, Manhattan. About 750 children took part in the program, which was planned by Anning S. Prall, President of the Board of Education; Superintendent of Schools Ettinger and Dr. Edward W. Stitt. The pageant pleased an assemblage of 5,000. Last night the Friedburg Sextet gave a concert in the Plaza at Fifty-ninth Street.

The association announced that Herbert Adams, Joseph Howland Hunt, Edwin Howland Blashfield and Paul Iribe, President of the Beaux Arts in Paris, had consented to act as judges in the contest for the most artistic window display of merchandise in the Fifth Avenue section.

The valuable mineral collection of M. L. Morgenthau, President of the Mirror Candy Company, has been placed on view in the store at 526 Fifth Avenue and has attracted much attention. A marble statue of the God of Mercy, found in an ancient Chinese temple and dating back to the seventh century, is in an exhibit of rare objects d'art in the window of the Yamanaka Galleries at 680 Fifth Avenue. Dreicer & Co., jewelers, at 560 Fifth Avenue, received praise for their display, entitled "The Story of the Pearl," showing the metamorphosis of a pearl.

Colonel Michael Friedsam, President of B. Altman & Co., has offered through the association 100 bronze and twenty silver medals to school children for the best essay on topics connected with Fifth Avenue. Colonel Friedsam has also offered prizes of $15 and $10 for posters and slogans by pupils in the seventh and eighth grades in the high schools.

The Fifth Avenue Association will award cash prizes of $25, $15 and $10 through the Art Alliance of America to the students of the art schools in the city for posters to be used next year in advertising Fifth Avenue Week.

A special organ recital and choir festival will be held tomorrow night at the Little Church Around the Corner (Church of the Transfiguration), 1 West Twenty-ninth Street. C. B. Clark, organist of the church, will play.

CIRCUS SURE OF SUPPLIES.

No Food Shortage There—John Ringling Himself Goes Shopping.

The scare over a food shortage because of the harbor strike reached yesterday to Madison Square Garden, where John Ringling is the provider for some 1,500 men and women, 735 horses, about 30 elephants and about 1,000 other animals. Mr. Ringling decided that he would take no chances; so he took a squadron of motor trucks and went shopping for a week's supplies.

The list that he took with him included 900 pounds of butter, 600 pounds of coffee, 100 bags of table salt, 600 dozen eggs, 3,000 pounds of vegetables, 6 barrels of sugar, 150 pounds of lard, 150 dozen oranges, 350 tons of hay, 140 tons of straw, and 2,200 bushels of oats. Fresh meat would have been a big item on the list, but it had not been definitely decided yesterday what quantity to buy. The normal daily consumption by the circus in New York City is about 1,500 pounds. Mr. Ringling said, however, that he would make arrangements which would insure that the lions, tigers, and other animals would not go hungry, and that the army of circus workers would be provided for.

When the circus takes to the open air after its New York season, every one connected with it, from the Ringling brothers to Zip, the "What-Is-It?" of the sideshow, gets meals in the big circus restaurant, but while the show is in New York only the attendants, grooms, helpers, and others who have similar duties, have their meals provided, so that Mr. Ringling's shopping yesterday was comparatively moderate—for the circus. In the Garden, for present purposes, the management has installed a big restaurant, known in circus circles as the "Hotel de Ringling."

The show is having a record-breaking season in New York. The Garden was pocked every day last week, and the demand for seats for this week almost exhausted the supply before the week began.

REVIVES DAYLIGHT REPEAL.

Assembly Will Make Third Attempt to Pass Measure.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, April 6.—Under a motion of Assemblyman Charles H. Betts of Wayne, the bill to repeal the Daylight Saving act will be brought up for another vote in the Assembly tomorrow or Thursday. It was predicted tonight that the bill would pass.

The confusion due to the fact that train schedules are arranged on Standard Time and that other States have failed to fall in line and adopt daylight saving laws, and the confusion which has resulted, will be used by the advocates of the repeal bill as arguments in their favor.

When the repeal was before the Assembly last week it lacked only one vote of the number necessary for its passage. The Senate has already acted favorably on the bill.

Even with the repeal bill passed, cities and incorporated villages would have power to adopt "daylight saving time by local ordinance."

DETROIT VOTES FOR CARLINE

Issue of $15,000,000 Bonds for City-Owned Road Carried at Election.

DETROIT, April 6.—The proposal sponsored by Mayor James Couzens to bond the city for $15,000,000, with which to begin the building of a municipally owned street railway system, to compete with the present Detroit United Railway, was carried at yesterday's election, according to complete figures tabulated this morning. The vote was 89,285 in favor of the bonding issue and 51,093 against, or 63.6 per cent. of the total vote cast, against a required 60 per cent.

Mayor Couzens announced today that, with the consent of the City Council he would begin excavation for the new car tracks at once.

GOMPERS SOUNDS NOTE OF WARNING

Tells Employers of Menace in Hindering Rational Development of A. F. of L.

Employers were warned yesterday by Samuel Gompers that if they sought to hinder the rational development of the American Federation of Labor and render it impotent, the country would be confronted by a formidable movement contrary to the best interests of both capital and labor.

At a luncheon of editors of New York trade and technical journals at the Automobile Club of America Mr. Gompers described the A. F. of L. as a "bulwark of Americanism," and said that employers must choose between the present policies of organized labor and the control of trade unions taken over by those "who are without respect for labor, for employers, or for the public, even for the Government of the United States."

Aspirations of the workers for the better things of life should be encouraged, he contended, on the ground that industry would be stimulated to greater production. The principle of collective bargaining by labor's representatives was held to be in conformance with the constitutional privilege of "power of attorney" and served to eliminate haggling with individual employes.

"To understand the economic program of the American Federation of Labor," Mr. Gompers said, "it must be recognized that the American labor movement as represented by trade unions and the American Federation of Labor is an attempt to crystallize the sentiments and views of labor and find for them orderly, rational expression. If there is to be no understanding, no co-ordination among those who feel discontended, then discontent will find expression in ways of no good either to progress or to the world.

"The charge has been made that we represent only a small fraction of the working people of the country. With nearly 5,000,000 in our federation, it is not true to say that we represent but 5 per cent. of the people of the United States. The fact is, based on the calculation of five to a family in American homes, we represent at least 25 per cent. of our population of 100,000,000."

Mr. Gompers then discussed the aspirations of wage earners, like all normal people, for a better life, for better things in the work shop, in the home and in the standards of the American people.

"You might ask me 'Should all workers receive the same pay?' I answer 'No'; pay the standard minimum and all the worker is entitled to if he builds up the quality of his industry. No employer should be allowed to continue unless he can afford to pay the minimum standard. If he can't, he should get out of business and make way for some one else who can. We hold that the American people are willing to pay for a finished article a sum sufficient to pay for a minimum standard wage.

"Too often have I read or heard the declaration that the American Federation of Labor is just as inimical to the welfare and progress of our country as any revolutionary group," said Mr. Gompers. Then he called attention to the promise his organization made a month before this country entered the war that its members were ready to do their part, and "the working people of America kept the faith and made good."

"And now, after the war is actually over, there seems to have arisen a spirit of reaction," he said. "The ideal of freedom, to defend which the United States entered the war, is now threatened. We defeated German autocracy, and we resent the thought that industrial and political autocracy shall be the practice in the United States now.

"There is a ferment all over the world in which revolutionary propaganda is at work. If employers by the great force of their wealth try to make our labor movement impotent, our influence will soon go adrift, and business will not be free from agitation, but rather confronted with a new movement contrary to American patriotism.

"I would not be associated with the labor union movement for one moment if I did not believe in its rational development. We stand as the bulwark of Americanism. It is a question of choice whether we shall continue or whether we shall be taken over by those who are without respect for labor, for employers, or for the public, even for the Government of the United States."

Applications Name Routes in All Boroughs of the City.

A statement sent out yesterday by authority of Grover A. Whalen, Commissioner of Plant and Structures, announced that applications have been received for the establishment by the city of thirty bus lines in addition to the twenty now in operation. Mr. Whalen is in Albany urging the passage of the Lynch bill conferring upon the city power to establish and operate bus lines wherever there is a need for them.

KAPPISTS FLEE TO HUNGARY

Many Prussian Junkers Finding a Friendly Refuge There.

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, April 6.—THE NEW YORK TIMES correspondent's inquiry whether any monarchist conspirators had been arrested since Saturday was answered in the negative today. The Government's Secret Service agents, however, have traced some of them to Hungary, where they hope to gain the protection of friends in exalted Government positions.

There is a rapidly growing movement in Junker circles to emigrate or invest money in Hungarian estates because the elements in power which are monarchically inclined are more congenial to the Wilhelminian cliques which hope Hungary will become what the Baltic province was prevented from becoming, namely, a salient for a monarchist campaign in Germany.

Many Prussian junkers who by usury and the sale of their agricultural products accumulated wealth during the war, have bought large tracts of land in Hungary comparatively cheap because there the German mark still counts, and young Prussian nobles, who in pre-war times would waste their time playing officer, are now learning to cultivate and fertilize the soil in the neighboring kingdom, as Hungary is still styled officially. They were highly welcomed by the feudal Magyars, who, though they hate Prussianism, regard them as in a common cause. These Prussian junkers are believed to have prepared sanctuaries for the Kapp conspirators.

TENANTS BUY DRIVE APARTMENT HOUSE

PROPERTY HELD AT $750,000

Building Which Houses Seventy-two Families Is Now Owned by Forty Occupants.

Forty tenants in the Vauxhall apartment house, a ten-story building at 780 Riverside Drive, bought the property yesterday from Michael Kaufman. The house was purchased in the name of the 780 Riverside Drive Company, the holding corporation for the syndicate, for a price reported to be about $750,000. G. D. Price, J. S. Ranckel and C. C. Pettijohn comprised the committee of tenants who took over the building.

The Vauxhall, which houses seventy-four families, covers a plot 106 by 150 at the northeast corner of 155th Street. It is arranged in suites of from four to seven rooms, which show an annual rent return of about $95,000. Mr. Kaufman acquired the property recently from the Vauxhall Realty Corporation, G. Maurice Heckscher, President.

Other apartment house deals yesterday involved holdings in various parts of the city. Aaron Bacharach sold to a client for Signor Hirschberg, the five-story apartment house at the northeast corner of Seventh Avenue and 11th Street, 25 by 100. This property has been held at $62,000.

The Realty Sales Specialists, J. S. Stone and Louis Freidel, sold for the Lawyers Mortgage Company to Mrs. Sarah Wolfsenson, 69 Forsyth Street, a five-story and store tenement. The building will be altered for business for the buyer's own occupancy.

J. Anthony Minott resold for the Blennerhassett Apartment Hotel Company, to a client for investment, 126 West 134th Street, a five-story triple flat on plot 30 by 100.

Adam A. Schopp sold for Dr. Stuyvesant F. Morris, the five-story tenement at 175 Ludlow Street, on lot 25 by 87.

Queens Borough Transactions.

Aaron Bacharach sold for a client to James J. Kennedy the three-story dwelling at 373 First Avenue, Astoria.

H. R. Williams & Son sold for Ida Graves the dwelling at the corner of Myrtle and Hamilton Avenues, Richmond Hill, to Katharine Steeg for occupancy.

Trolley Co. Halts Greenwich Buses.

GREENWICH, Conn., April 6.—A warrant held by the Port Chester (N. Y.) police and obtained by the New York & Stamford Trolley Company prevented the Community Bus Company, Inc., which on Sunday started a bus line in opposition to the trolley company, from running any buses through here today. The trolley company charged that the bus company was operating in Port Chester without an omnibus license.

BIG BROOKLYN DEALS.

Remsen Street Frontage Added to Building Site.

The four-story business building at 157 Remsen Street, on a plot 57 by 100, directly in the rear of the site of the old Brooklyn Academy of Music on Montague Street, between Clinton and Court Streets, was purchased yesterday by the same interests that recently acquired the Academy plot.

Acquisition of the Remsen Street building will provide an entrance on that street for the large office structure eventually to be built on the Montague Street plot, which is now improved with a two-story taxpayer.

Among the tenants in the Remsen Street building are: Cavanaugh & Kuhn, insurance brokers; J. Sarsfield Kennedy architect, and the Royal Indemnity Company. B. H. Sanders and Edward W. Rider represented the owner of the property and Redmond Brothers were the brokers for the buyers in the transaction. The reported price paid for the Remsen Street building was $100,000.

It was also reported yesterday that negotiations were well advanced for the purchase by a group of Syrian manufacturers of Saengerbund Hall, at the corner of Smith and Schermerhorn Streets, one of the oldest meeting places for German singing societies in the borough. This property, which is owned by the Brooklyn Saengerbund, has been held at $120,000 by the society.

The purchase of the property by Syrians will mark another stride in the expansion of the people of that race in the downtown section of the borough. For years there was a Syrian centre located in Hicks and Henry Streets, Amity Street and Atlantic Avenue, but the growth of the community within the last five years has caused a broadening of the centre in the direction of Smith Street. Within the year many of the old dwellings in Schermerhorn and Livingston Streets have been purchased by Syrians. They built a new church and remodeled many old dwellings in the district.

Greenwich Village Project.

The M. Morgenthau, Jr. Company sold for the Owners Syndicate, Inc., to a client of the Everett M. Seixas Company the two three-story high-stoop brownstone dwellings, each on a lot 19.8 by 54 feet, at 210 and 212 West Eleventh Street, between Seventh Avenue and Waverley Place. These houses are located only 19.5 feet east of the corner of Waverley Place and Eleventh Street, which is now being improved with small apartments. The houses will be renovated.

Commercial Leases.

J. B. English leased for the Willard S. Burrows Company a store at the northeast corner of Thirty-fourth Street and Seventh Avenue to H. Shabowitz for ten years.

M. H. Tropauer leased for the estate of David Bloom the store at 131 Second Avenue, southwest corner of St. Mark's Place, to the Chain Shirt Shops, Inc., for a period of ten years at an aggregate rental of about $100,000.

Christopher Street Sale.

William A. White & Sons sold for George A. Hedden and others to the Empire Mortgage Company the northeast corner of Seventh Avenue and Christopher Street, an irregular vacant plot, with a frontage of 32 feet on Christopher Street and 30 feet on Seventh Avenue.

BIG ROOF GARDEN

For the Ambassador Hotel on Park Avenue.

A new and somewhat unique idea in construction has been worked out in connection with the Ambassador Hotel, now being built on Park Avenue from Fifty-first to Fifty-second Street. At the fourteenth floor there is a setback of a twelve foot depth made necessary in order to comply with New York City's zoning law, which requires that at certain distances from the ground floors must be built back from the front of the structure.

In the case of the Ambassador Hotel the fourteen floor setback is a bare roof area running the entire length of the block from Fifty-first to Fifty-second Street. Instead of leaving this space, 200 by 12 feet unoccupied, a regular lawn, with grass, flower beds and shrubbery, will be substituted. This will give the occupants of the floor a veritable front yard although some 200 feet above street level.

At the front of the yard along the entire Park Avenue side will be an artistic balustrade and lattice work, so that persons may utilize the little touch of green far above the street without danger or inconvenience.

It is declared that this is the first time New York City's zoning laws have been utilized in this way, and the innovation is probably distinctive among buildings of the world.

Increases Third Avenue Holdings.

Spotts & Starr, Inc., sold for Bertha Lewy two five-story flats at 1,025 and 1,027 Third Avenue, on a plot 39 by 70, to J. J. Daly, owner of the adjoining property at the southeast corner of Sixty-first Street and Third Avenue, held at $55,000. The buyer now controls a plot 60 by 70 feet.

Tenants Buy Downtown.

The Brown, Wheelock Company sold for Isabella C. May of Washington, D. C., the six-story basement and sub-basement building, 80 by 100, with L 20 by 25, at the southwest corner of Third and Mercer Streets, built by day's labor under the supervision of McKim, Mead & White. The building is equipped with sprinklers and contains about 68,000 square feet. The purchasers are Sol Friedman & Co., who have been tenants of the property for the last twenty-three years.

In Westchester County.

J. Clarence Davies sold for Laurence J. Bengert to Ethel M. Ring 246 South First Avenue, Mount Vernon, on a rectangular plot 50 by 105.

Miss Ethel H. Roselle sold her property on Rebecca Avenue, Pleasantville, to Carl Jacobson and Erik Gundberg through the agency of Chauncey B. Griffen & Co.

DEALS FOR VALUABLE BROADWAY HOLDINGS

J. G. ABRAMSON IS BUYER

Operators Are the Purchasers of the Bellguard, at the Southeast Corner of 89th Street.

Two upper Broadway apartment hotels were purchased yesterday by Joseph G. Abramson, who acquired from the Selma Realty Company and the Yorga Realty Company respectively the Bonta and the Narragansett, at the southeast corner of Broadway and Ninety-fourth Street. The Bonta, which occupies the corner, is seven stories in height, fronts 84 feet on Broadway and 146 feet on the street. The Narragansett is a twelve-story building with a Broadway frontage of 63 feet and a depth of 100 feet. Together they contain about 300 suites, ranging in size from one to three rooms and bath. The reported purchase price was $1,500,000, which includes all the furniture and equipment.

Negotiations are now pending whereby both properties, with the exception of the Broadway ground floor front, will be leased, the intention being to install stores on the Broadway side of the property. Leitner, Brener & Leitner were the brokers in the transaction.

In connection with apartment house property several blocks to the south of the Bonta and the Narragansett, it was learned that Harris and Maurice Mandelbaum, operators, are the buyers of the twelve-story Bellguard at the southeast corner of Broadway and Eighty-ninth Street, the sale of which was reported by the Shenk Realty Company last week. The building, which contains five stores and thirty-six apartments, returning $110,000 annually in rents, had been held at $1,000,000. Nassoit & Lanning negotiated the sale. Eisman, Lee, Corn & Lewine, attorneys, represented the purchasers, who have been active traders in this section, having sold the Roxborough at Broadway and Ninety-second Street and bought and resold the Chatsworth apartments at Riverside Drive and Seventy-second Street.

Curry to William Burns the northwest corner of Broadway and 142d Street, a six-story elevator apartment house, known as the Bon Air, on plot 100 by 50. The property was held at $160,000. The sellers purchased the property through the same brokers recently and took title about ten days ago.

How we did our Home over for less than $100.

YOU know that spring feeling of being sick of every room in the house. After living shut up all winter, the wallpaper seems dingy, the rugs ugly and every piece of furniture looks like something from the zoo.

Along about dandelion time, I always begin to shift things about, but the more I move them the worse they seem.

This year I was in despair. I made up my mind we would have to repaper and repaint, and buy a lot of new draperies, furniture and rugs. So I sent for the painter and the paperhanger. But when I got their estimates, I just had to lie down and rest. Then I made a tour of the stores, and oh! the lovely things I saw. And oh! the lovely prices!

At last one evening, I handed to my husband a list of the things I thought we needed, and the cost. He took one look at it, then at me, and we both just burst out laughing.

"What do you think I am," he said, 'a munition worker?"

Then came the reaction and we were both as glum as we could be. He sat with his eyes on the ceiling, and all of a sudden he said:

"Gee, how I hate that old chandelier!"

"Me, too," I replied, "but when we bought it, we thought it was exquisite."

"By Jove!" he said, "that reminds me. Coming out on the car one day I overheard an architect talking to his client. He was saying something like this: 'The trouble with half the homes in this city is that the lighting effect is wrong. People buy fixtures because they think they are pretty, instead of buying lighting effects. Oftentimes, by simply changing the distribution of light, I have shown people how to save hundreds of dollars that they were intending to spend on re-decorating or on new furnishings. You see, the old fashioned kind of lighting made a glare around the chandelier, and left great chunks of gloom along the walls and floor. The new idea in lighting is to get plenty of light in all parts of the room, without too much anywhere. This new system, called the Duplexalite, does that. It has made it possible for the first time to use in the home the Mazda C lamp, which is the most efficient and economical lamp yet discovered.'

"And then he went on to tell how it was made. It seems that most of the light rays go to the ceiling and are then deflected to all parts of the room, giving a soft radiance that makes every object in the room look its best, while other rays go directly downward through a glass disc giving an increased intensity for reading or working."

To cut a long story short, my husband made some inquiries the very next day. He found that Duplexalites had long been used in several of our leading retail stores and in the best hotels and were even going to be installed in his own office. He also found that in the home they could be used with beautiful shades of silk, cretonne or parchments and so can be made to harmonize with any decorative scheme in any room, no matter how elaborate or how simple.

And when we found that an electrician could put up four or five Duplexalites in an hour, that settled it.

The upshot of it is—that for less than $100 we have succeeded in actually doing our home over, without repapering or repainting a single room, or buying a stick of furniture—just by changing the lighting. And, as they say in the movies, "You wouldn't know the old place now."

MYSTERY IN RETURN OF 9-CARAT JEWEL

LAWYERS MAKE DELIVERY

Refuse to Reveal the Identity of Client for Whom They Acted—Woman Suspect Held.

In circumstances as mysterious as its disappearance, the nine-carat egg-shaped diamond, set as a one-stone marquise ring, stolen last Thursday afternoon from a gold meshbag in the apartment of Mrs. Claire Leicester Turek, on the ground floor of 450 West End Avenue, was returned at noon yesterday to Emanuel M. Gattle, jeweler, at 630 Fifth Avenue, by Abraham J. Rose and A. B. Kellogg of the law firm of Kellogg & Rose, 115 Broadway, on behalf of a client who said he learned through an advertisement in The Times last Sunday that the ring had been stolen. The ring was variously valued at $7,500 to $22,000.

The ring was not recovered by the owner, however, until Detectives Joseph Daly and Ernest Moore of the West Sixty-eighth Street Station had obtained from the office of District Attorney Edward Swann a subpoena duces tecum for the purpose of subpoenaing Mr. Gattle and the ring to appear at the District Attorney's office this morning. When the detectives showed the subpoena to Mr. Gattle at 3 o'clock in the afternoon, according to their story, he immediately turned the ring over to them and they delivered it to Mrs. Turek. Mrs. Turek later consented to having the marquise ring placed in charge of the property clerk at Police Headquarters, pending the outcome of criminal proceedings instituted by Mrs. Turek against Mrs. Florence Levison, 28 years old, of 64 West Ninety-third Street.

Mrs. Levison Arraigned.

The marquise ring was surrendered to the Fifth Avenue jeweler soon after Mrs. Levison was arraigned before Magistrate Koenig in the West Side Court on a charge of grand larceny in connection with the disappearance of the ring, preferred by Mrs. Turek. Assistant District Attorney John J. Hogan, at the request of the prisoner, consented to have a hearing on the charge against Mrs. Levison adjourned until next Tuesday morning. She was released in $5,000 bail.

According to a story told by Mrs. Turek, she received a telephone call from Mr. Gattle, who is the head of E. M. Gattle & Co. Mr. Gattle, she said, informed her that her ring had been left in his custody by the two lawyers, and said he was certain of its identity, because he recollected having sold it to her husband about a year ago for $7,500. Mrs. Turek said Mr. Gattle made two stipulations in connection with the return of the ring. Detectives, who were listening in on the telephone wire, hastened to the District Attorney's office to obtain the subpoena.

In a statement later in the afternoon, Mr. Gattle explained that on Monday afternoon, after he learned that Mrs. Turek had inserted the advertisement in The Times offering a reward of $2,500 for the return of the ring to E. M. Gattle & Co., a man came to his store and informed him he had in his possession a marquise ring which tallied with the description of the ring mentioned in the advertisement, and that he had obtained it Saturday, after having placed a deposit of $1,500 on it. The man left the store, Mr. Gattle said, with the understanding he would return the ring yesterday through his attorneys.

Lawyers Return Ring.

Yesterday morning, Mr. Gattle said, Mr. Rose, accompanied by Mr. Kellogg, walked into his store, and, after introducing themselves, Mr. Rose turned the marquise ring over to Mr. Gattle. Mr. Gattle said Mr. Rose informed him his client did not seek the reward of $2,500 offered by Mrs. Turek, nor did he expect to receive back the $1,500 which he had paid as a deposit to the person from whom he had obtained the ring.

Mr. Rose refused to reveal the identity of his client, saying he was a business man who didn't wish to receive any notoriety through his connection with the return of the ring.

"If there should follow any criminal proceeding in connection with the matter," Mr. Rose explained, "my client, of course, will make a full explanation of the manner in which he came into possession of the ring."

Mr. Rose was asked if his client was identified with the jewelry business in this city. He said, at first, that he did not care to discuss that phase of the matter, but later said: "To say he is connected in a way with the jewelry business would not be inaccurate."

Detectives Daly and Moore said yesterday that the theft of the ring from Mrs. Turek's meshbag while the bag lay within a few feet of the bed on which the owner was reclining Thursday afternoon was one of the strangest cases they ever had handled. In a deposition in the West Side Court yesterday morning Mrs. Turek accused Mrs. Levison of being the only person who had "exclusive opportunity" to take the ring.

IRWIN UNTERMYER A CANDIDATE AGAIN

Tammany Hears Father Has Asked His Appointment to Supreme Court Vacancy.

BRONX CLAIMS THE PLACE

Democratic Organization There Believes It Is Entitled to Recognition—Appointment Means Nomination.

Irwin Untermyer, who was defeated for Justice of the Supreme Court on the Democratic ticket at the last election, is a candidate for the same office by appointment, it was reported yesterday. According to information in Tammany circles, Samuel Untermyer has asked Governor Alfred E. Smith to name his son for the remaining vacancy on the Supreme Court bench. Whether Mr. Untermyer had other backing for the appointment could not be learned.

Irwin Untermyer's nomination by Tammany last Fall resulted in one of the principal issues of the campaign. He was beaten by Justice Joseph E. Newburger, whom he displaced on the Democratic slate, by 56,877 plurality and by Philip J. McCook, the other Republican nominee, by a plurality of 32,660. It was charged by Mr. Untermyer's opponents that his nomination was dictated by Charles F. Murphy, leader of Tammany.

It was not believed by Democratic leaders that the Governor would be likely to appoint Mr. Untermyer, particularly as the party would be bound to back up the appointment by a nomination, and there will be nine Justices of the Supreme Court to be elected this Fall.

The Governor has already filled two vacancies by the appointment of Edward J. McGoldrick and William P. Burr to succeed the late Justice P. H. Dugro and the late Justice Eugene A. Philbin. The Bronx County Democratic organization has put in a claim for the third vacancy, caused by the resignation of Justice Francis K. Pendleton. In view of the growing importance of the Bronx in city politics, it was said to be probable that the appointment would go to that county.

District Attorney Francis Martin and Sheriff James F. Donnelly are candidates for the appointment. Because the appointment of either would cause a vacancy in a county office, which would have to be filled at the next election, a suggestion was said to have been sent from Tammany to the Bronx Democratic organization that it might be better politics to suggest another man.

WOMAN'S MURDER MYSTERY.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., April 6.—Mrs. Frances de Lorm, 28 years old, was found strangled to death in a vacant lot in the outskirts of the city early today. The police have only slender clues, as her husband, William de Lorm, said she had left home on Sunday night without saying where she was going. A woman living in the vicinity of where the body was found reports hearing a woman's screams and the voices of men late last night.

There were marks of a rope about the neck, and a piece of clothesline found under the body is thought to have been used in strangling Mrs. de Lorm.
